The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FIRMLY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

THE VILE WEED.

Smikes made up his mind to stop chewing. He never was much of a chewer, anyhow, he said. He hadn't used tobacco but a few years, and rarely consumed more than an ounce paper a day. But he feared the habit might get hold of him and become fixed, and if there was anything he abhorred it was to see a man become a slave to a bad habit. He had used the weed some, to be sure, but there had never been a time during the last ten years when he could not stop at any moment. But so long as he did not become habituated to its use he did not care to stop. He could leave off at any minute, and it was a great satisfaction to feel so.

Thompson he thought was an abject slave to his pipe. He pitied Thompson, for he had seen Thompson try to stop smoking several times, and fall ignominiously every time he undertook it. But Smikes wanted to show his wife how easy he could quit. So Monday morning he remarked carelessly to Samantha that he guessed he would stop using tobacco. Samantha said she was glad of it, and added impetuously what she had said before—that it was a vile habit. Smikes appeared a little nervous and confused when Samantha said this, and mumbled out something about being glad he had never got into it himself. In his agitation he pulled out his tobacco box and was about to take a chew, when he recollected himself and plunged out of the door, forgetting his umbrella.

About half way to the office he met Jones, with whom he was having some business transactions. While they were talking the thing over Smikes got a little enthusiastic, and he had almost reached the office before he noticed that he was rolling an uncommonly large quid around his mouth like a sweet morsel. How it got there Smikes did not know. He puzzled over that little thing all the rest of the forenoon, and at last he took it out of his mouth and threw it away, satisfied that he must have taken it while talking with Jones. Twice that afternoon Smikes took out his tobacco box and looked at it. Once he took off the cover and smelled of the tobacco. It smelt so good that Smikes felt impelled to remark to himself that it was the easiest thing in the world to stop chewing.

He congratulated himself again and again that day that he did not become entangled in the meshes of the filthy vice, and he alluded to the matter three or four times that evening at the tea-table, till Samantha marvelled greatly at the firmness of Smikes. She had always heard that it was a hard thing to leave off, but Smikes had told her and kept telling her that it was "just as easy," and her reverence for the virile strength and independence of Smikes grew like a gourd. That night Smikes had the nightmare. He thought that a legion of foul fiends had got him up in a corner of the back yard, and had rolled upon his body a monstrous quid of "fine-cut tobacco," as large as a cart-wheel, and were trying to force it into his mouth.

Smikes struggled vigorously, and when Samantha shook him and asked what was the matter, his only reply was that "anybody could stop chewing if they only made up their mind to it." The next day Smikes was a little nervous. He told everybody who came in what a simple thing it was to stop chewing. The third day he harped upon it all day long. He told one man about it three different times, and when that much-informed individual ventured the opinion that he would be chewing again in less than a week, Smikes indignantly ejaculated: "Mrs. Jenkings, when I make up my mind to a thing that is the last of it."

The fourth day Smikes heard that chamomile blossoms were sometimes used as a substitute for tobacco, and just out of curiosity he devoured a couple of ounces of them. He said to the druggist when he bought them that it was easy enough to stop the use of tobacco. On the fifth day Smikes got sick. His nerves gave out. He snapped something at Samantha at the breakfast table, upset his inkstand, burnt his fingers poking some cinders out of the grate, and had no appetite for dinner. That day the devil whispered to Smikes that tobacco was really beneficial to some temperaments. Smikes had a temperament of that kind.

The sixth day Smikes felt like a murderer. He seemed to himself to have become transformed into a Modoc. His mouth was dry and parched. A stout, healthy-looking old gentleman came into Smikes' office that day. He was a great friend of Smikes, and as he drew forth his silver tobacco box and daintily shook out a portion of the pungent weed, Smikes felt his mouth water. He remarked to Mr. Johnson that he had refrained so long just to satisfy himself that anybody could chew or let it alone. He was fully satisfied that it could be done; but he rather thought that his was one of those temperaments that are really acted upon in a beneficial way by the temperate use of tobacco.

Mr. Johnson said he thought so too, and as he handed Smikes his box remarked that he had chewed regularly for thirty years, and didn't know that it had ever injured him any. As Smikes rolled a large quid back into his left cheek, he said he thought there was a great difference in men. He was satisfied that he could stop chewing at any moment, but there were some temperaments to which a gentle narcotic or opiate was really a blessing.

NEW HAMPSHIRE LECTURE BUREAU.

An enterprise has been started in Manchester, under the above name, which doubtless will greatly benefit the literary public in New Hampshire. The object is to furnish lectures for the various towns and societies in the State, at prices within their means, and at the same time give the people as much of entertainment and instructions as they have heretofore been enabled to secure for large sums, from foreign lecturers obtained through foreign lecture bureaus.

The managers, in their first circular, recently issued, say:

"The original purpose of the lecture system was to impart knowledge; its present purpose seems to be mere gratification for the hour. Feeling that this evil should be corrected if possible, we were prompted, at the earnest solicitation of others, to become a medium of communication between the lecturers and lyceums of this State. New Hampshire has furnished the nation some of its greatest men. It has still ability second to none, and fully adequate to meet all the requirements of a first-class course of lectures. We wish not to enter into any competition, nor to seek personal gain, but simply to introduce the talent of this State to her citizens, and thereby, if possible, to raise the standard of thought in connection with the lecture platform."

The managers further say that "hitherto, a course of lectures has been too expensive to be available in all communities. A maximum price has been demanded for a thing of minimum value." They hope to reverse this and put a course of lectures within the reach of every community at a price which shall be reasonable and fairly remunerative to the lecturer. They offer an entertaining and instructive course of eight or ten lectures for from $100 to $300, including all expenses. This is scarcely half the price usually required. In other cases the price will be from $10 to $25 a lecture, and all expenses of hotel, travel and bureau free.

Among the lecturers already engaged by the bureau are Revs. S. L. Blake, J. F. Lovering and D. W. Faunce, Hon. Wm L. Foster, S. B. Page, Concord; and Dr. A. H. Crosby, of Manchester; Rev. J. S. Black and Rev. Charles Wetherby of Nashua; Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett and J. P. Bartlett, Esq., of Portsmouth; Rev. Dr. Savage of Franklin; Rev. Silas Ketchum of Bristol; Maj. O. F. R. Waite of Claremont; Hon. John M. Shirley of Andover; Professors Young and Huntington of Dartmouth College, and other well-known New Hampshire men.

It is expected that a number more will be secured, and their names and the subjects upon which they will lecture will be announced in the next circular.

All communications and inquiries should be addressed to the "NEW HAMPSHIRE LECTURE BUREAU," Box 1033, Concord, N. H.

Readables.

At Grand Rapids, Mich., Sunday, about twenty acres of ground were burned over and 200 buildings consumed. The loss cannot be less than $300,000. It is impossible as yet to give the amount of insurance, but it will approximate $200,000.

A draught horse attached to a load of wood balked on a crossing of the Old Colony Railroad, at Harrison Square, Mass., on Saturday, and defied the united endeavors of many men to move him. A train came along and effectually cured him of balking.

A wag, speaking of the gathering of lawyers to dedicate a new court house, said he supposed they had gone to view the place where they must shortly lie.

A philosopher, who married a vulgar but amiable girl, used to call his wife brown sugar, because, he said she was sweet but unrefined.

New Jersey people don't say "liar" right out, but remark: "Sir, you remind me of my lamented brother, who could pervert truth with the greatest ease."

"Madam," said a certain nameless one to Mrs. Brown, the other day, "you are talking simple rubbish. "Yes, sir," replied the ever crushing lady, "because I wish you to comprehend me."

Miss Francis Charles has been appointed register of deeds for Oxford county, Me. It is to be hoped, says the New York Evening Post, that her strongminded sisters will not insist that she owes her appointment more to her masculine name than her feminine gender.

Mrs. Caroline A. Currier, aged 31 years, daughter of Mr. Jacob H. Currier of Boston, night watchman at the City Hall, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart on Sunday. Cause, unrequited love for Mr. Warwick H. Sanborn, a salesman in a carpet store.

Saturday evening Michael Higgins and John O'Neil got into an altercation at the farm-house of E. B. Benham, near Cheshire, Conn., which resulted in the stabbing of O'Neil by Higgins, from the effects of which he died Sunday afternoon. It seems that Higgins had made some improper proposals to Mrs. O'Neil, who is the housekeeper at Benham's, at which O'Neil became incensed, when the altercation ensued, which resulted in the stabbing as before mentioned.

The police of Meriden were notified of the murderous assault, and during Saturday night found Higgins dead in his room at Benham's, having died from heart disease, which had been aggravated by the excitement. O'Neil was 35 years of age, and leaves a wife and child. Higgins was 50 years of age and has no family. All the parties were employes of Benham's.

A young man named John Frasier some time since eloped with Kate Foohstick, a girl 17 years of age, from Wheeling where they resided. They went to Pittsburg and thence to Harmony, where they stopped at a hotel. While the girl was lying in bed Frasier shot her in the head with a revolver and then shot himself. He lived but a few hours. The girl is still living but cannot recover. No definite cause is assigned for the act, but it is supposed Frasier was jealous.

At Lindsay, Canada, on Saturday, a man named David Nesbitt murdered May A. Hopwood. He was afterward arrested. It appears that the prisoner had been keeping company with the deceased, and her friends warning her not to keep company with Nesbitt, he persisted that he was married to the deceased and that if he did not get her his life would be lost. On meeting her that morning on the way to the station, he wished to accompany her, and on being refused returned to the house of her brother and after some angry words shot her twice near the heart.

A nervous man in the sleeping car on a night train from St. John, hearing the conductor call out "Jackson Brook!" seized a companion in a berth above him, dragged the unfortunate man out into the middle of the car and strove to rush him to the door, shouting at the same time, "The axle's broke; we're all going to destruction." It was some time before he was calmed down.

The libel suit of Miss Linda Gilbert against the Chicago Evening Post was concluded Friday. A verdict for plaintiff was given, assessing damages at six cents.

Rev. Mr. Chiniquy, the ex-Catholic priest, lectured in Halifax on Friday evening and was afterwards stoned in the streets, together with Rev. Mr. Goodfellow, his friend, and they had to take refuge in a neighboring house.

A beautiful young lady, daughter of Count Ceoppieri of Carrara, Italy, recently set her dress on fire with a match with which she had ignited a cigarette, and was burned to death.

A dialogue between Walworth, the New York murderer, and a visitor, gives a clew to the formation of his character. "You have never been at any regular, steady work, as work is generally understood, during any part of your life, have you?" "No, perhaps not. I was in the Canal Commissioner's office at Albany, and served under two political parties, so that I am posted in politics somewhat." A loafer in a public office, practised in no useful employment, with a drunken father living apart from his mother, is good stuff to make a murderer of.

One of the firm of A. T. Stewart & Co., named Booth, recently died in Paris, which doubtless started the rumor that Edwin Booth had deceased. The report was published throughout England and France, and even out West.

A lady recently took some number four shoes home from which to make a selection, but finding them just a little small, sent her little girl back with them to exchange for larger ones. "What size does your mother wear, sissy?" asked Mr. shoemaker. "She told me to bring home some half-past fours," replied the little five-year-old.

State News.

In Dover on the 4th an elm tree 150 years old and over four feet in diameter was blown down. It was torn out by the roots, and in the fall it turned up a stone lying upon its roots, which is estimated to weigh twenty tons. Some of the roots of the tree, about eight inches in diameter, were broken like tow strings as the tree fell over.

The dwelling house of F. E. Allen in Concord, was entered on Friday or Saturday night, and all the clothing and wearing apparel in the house carried off. Mr. Allen and family are absent, and the house is closed. All the silver ware is missing, but whether removed by Mr. Allen for safe keeping or taken by the burglars is not known. Two other burglaries are believed to have been committed by the same parties during last week. The police have arrested one party on suspicion and are looking for two companions.

LOST AND FOUND.

[Salem Gazette.]

Last Wednesday a lady of Lynn sold to one of the peddlers of Messrs. Mooney & Wadleigh of this city a quantity of rags. On Saturday she came to Salem, and said the rags contained something of value, and, if possible, she must have access to them. She did not know the name of the peddler, and as many are employed by the firm, it was, as the reader may imagine, a matter of uncertainty, whether the rags could be found. On going up to the barn, however, and overhauling the bags, the woman soon recognized some of her scraps, and, after further and diligent search, took out from the pile two savings bank books and an envelope containing notes to the amount of about sixteen hundred dollars—the whole amount represented being about tour thousand dollars!

It seems that, previous to selling the rags, she was about to go away, and put the securities into the ragbag for safe-keeping, naturally supposing that thieves would not think of looking there. Afterwards the peddler came along, and she sold the contents of the bag without thinking that the securities had been transferred as above described.

—If a man wants fine fruit he should keep a dog under the tree—cut up in pieces and buried among the roots. The carcass of even the average cur is declared to contain about one pound of phosphorus, an important element of fertility. In view of the curtailed condition of the sheep trade and the impaired health of orchards, there ought to be more shipwrecks on the sea of canine life; more barks gone down forever.

—A Western editor sees a peculiar appropriateness in calling old newspapers "back" numbers, since their introduction by the ladies for bustles. Oh!

—English cavalry are to have spiked helmets in lieu of the present shako.

—It has been ascertained that during the last five months five hundred and forty young ladies fainted on various occasions. Four hundred and ninety-nine fell in the arms of young gentlemen; forty were caught by their aunts and grandmothers; and only one had the misfortune to fall on the floor. She, however, picked out a soft place to fall upon, and was providentially received by an otto-man.

How to Baffle Disease.

The man who puts a bullet through his head dies more speedily than he who is continually sending volleys of strong, cathartic pills down his throat, but the drastic pelets are as fatal in the end as the leaden ball. It is only a question of time. Common sense should teach everybody that the idea of expelling disease by subverting the bodily vigor which is its natural antagonist, is supremely absurd. There should be no purgation without invigoration and regulation. These three processes should go on together and they do so in all cases where Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are used as a remedy for disease or for the general debility growing out of a torpid state of the digestive and secretive organs. In this great vegetable cordial are mingled three essential elements of cure: a purifying element, a tonic element and an anti-bilious element. By these means dyspepsia, bilious disorders, intermittent fevers, sick headache, constipation, and nervous debility are readily cured and epidemic disease prevented.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This filthy stuff was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $2, by all Druggists. 688

In spite of your teeth,
Both above and beneath,
Being lightly enamell'd and thin,
They will never break down,
Nor turn yellow nor brown,
If the SOZODONT'S daily brushed in.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 410

BOY WANTED.

APPLY to WM. W. HENDERSON & CO.

It was a day in mid-summer;
The boiler had burst;
Four-and-thirty brave fellows
Lay mangled in the dust.

Our hearts melted with sorrow;
With lightning speed we sent,
Thinking only of the glad to-morrow,
If we found the Centaur Liniment.

Well, we found it at Lindsley's store, three miles away; but it did its work, saved pain, inflammation, and suffering.

The Centaur Liniment always does its work, whether it be for scalds, bruises, rheumatism, stiff joints or lameness.

But this to us is an old story. Why will any suffer? Come all ye halt, lame and sore, and be healed for a dollar or fifty cents, and if you haven't that, then for nothing. We know what the Centaur Liniment is, and will warrant it every time.

Cripples throw away their crutches and leap for joy. Horses neigh for it. When Centaur Liniment comes in the front gate, pain flies out at the window

If you would sleep without pain, walk without limping—straighten out that crooked knee, use those rheumatic-distorted fingers, or get rid of a horrid neuralgia, just use the Centaur Liniment. (White wrapper.)

The other kind (yellow wrapper) is just as effective upon your lame horses and mules. A wonder, says one; a miracle, says another.

The article is selling as no other article ever sold, and it only sells because it cures. See the certificate around the bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir.—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking the VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly,

THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of the Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPTOMS.—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine. The mouth is clammy, or has a sour or bitter taste. Other frequent symptoms are waterbrash, palpitation of the heart, headache and blurred vision, as seems as scaling before the eyes. There is general debility, languor, and aversion to motion; dejection of the spirits, disturbed sleep and frightful dreams.

FEEL MYSELF A NEW MAN.

NATICK, MASS., June 1, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—Through the advice and earnest persuasion of Rev. E. S. Best, of this place, I have been taking VEGETINE for Dyspepsia, of which I have suffered for years. I have used only two bottles, and already feel myself a new man. Respectfully,

DR. J. W. CARTER.

A Source of Great Anxiety

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. H. R. TILDEN,

What I Know About Vegetine.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 9, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir.—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking VEGETINE about the middle of last winter and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine. If you desire, you will call or address me at my residence, 386 Athens Street.

P. H. S. Association.

We have but just been able to procure a full report of the Opening Address of the President of the Portsmouth High School Association, Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, at the meeting on the 4th of July. To him in large measure was due the entire success of the School Reunion. His agreeable manner of presiding—cordial, affable, and his constant flow of humor and ready repartee, added much to the enjoyment of all. His remarks were about as follows:

Graduates of the Portsmouth High Schools—Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth:—In behalf of the teachers, pupils and graduates of our high schools, who have remained at the old homestead, I welcome you to the home of your childhood,—to the scenes and associations of your school-days,—to these streets, so often enlivened by your walk and voice,—to this town, so full of pleasant memories,—to hearts throbbing with schoolmate recollections and affections.

As you walk these streets, so familiar and I hope so dear, you will pass no dwelling by whose fireside your progress and success in life have not been discussed and enjoyed; no home from which cordial welcomes, like the electric current over the wires, have not been passing to all portions of this country. For what State, what city, what town, is there in all this broad land, which has not felt the power of some son—or the rejoicing influence of some daughter of Portsmouth. (Applause.)

We give you a hearty and cordial welcome, because you are of our household and because you have done so much to reflect credit upon the old homestead. You have enjoyed and profitted by that system of universal education planned and commenced by our ancestors before they were able to provide comfortable dwellings for their families; a system which has made New England the source and nursery of that culture and expanding influence which to-day are shaping the institutions and the destiny of the North American continent.

Thus trained and thus fortified, you have gone from us to new duties and to new homes, in which you have done so much to make us proud as well as glad to see you. In the learned professions, in art, literature and science, in all the departments of enterprise and business, and in all the relations of life, you have reflected honor upon yourselves and upon your town, and your schoolmates now greet you with a cordial and affectionate welcome. (Loud Applause.)

Historical.

After all the glorification, there are some persons who regret that the late social celebration should be allowed to so completely cover up and ignore the historical anniversary of the settlement of this town and State. To be sure, there was formal notice made of the event, by the State Historical Society, at Concord, on the 21st of May—the identical day of the landing at Odiorne's Point, as near as it can be fixed; but Portsmouth City and people have, like those of Dover, taken no note of the interesting and important event.

It was to be expected, and was at one time understood, that an historical address would be delivered as part of the 4th of July exercises; but even this was dispensed with or neglected, and scarcely an allusion was made to the matter.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Quint, the antiquarian writer, and historian of Dover, &c., now of New Bedford, was here on the Fourth with Col. Albert H. Hoyt, editor of the Historical Magazine; and they doubtless expected at least some brief services commemorative of the great anniversary. In reply to a remark from a member of the literary committee—that towns or nations do not and should not celebrate periods less than a century,—as for instance the coming centennial 4th of July,—Dr. Quint said he should regard a quarter of a thousand years as an epoch worthy of being marked in the life of any nation. And so it would seem to many others.

Have A Drink.

Messrs. Editors:—If all the petitions offered up within a week past by unfortunates living between Pleasant Street and the river, on behalf of the revered corporation which has a monopoly of the business of not supplying the city with water—the corporation which magnanimously refrains from reducing its patrons' bills, no matter whether any water is furnished or not—had been answered, the stockholders and managers of the Portsmouth Aqueduct Company would ere this have been sunk to the very bottom of a certain sulphurous lake, where they would get a taste of the miseries they have so long inflicted upon the helpless people of this city. The Aqueduct Company may think they know exactly how much water is a sufficient supply for a man, woman or child; but if some of the heaviest stockholders could only experience the pleasure felt by a thirsty man when he goes to the faucet at midnight or later and finds it dry, the company's idea of what constitutes "a sufficiency" might undergo an enlargement. I would not be unreasonable—I do not now venture to ask for water enough to wash my face and hands in every day; but I should like to have at least one drink each morning and evening, if convenient. I do not grudge paying a dollar a bucketful for water, but to have to pay a dollar for no water at all is not right. That's no way to use a man. BIBULOUS.

Changing Names.

[Communicated.]

Messrs. Editors:—I regret exceedingly to notice the action of the city fathers last Thursday in changing the name of Haymarket Square to Manhattan Park. Park is defined by Webster as "an enclosed place in cities for exercise or amusement." To give the name to this place for the days of the Reunion, when it might be said to be enclosed by the three beautiful arches erected by the New York boys, was perhaps an allowable stretch of the right use of the word; but to perpetuate it, will be to make ourselves a laughing stock to every one. We do not need this to keep fresh our recollection of the enjoyment of the occasion, and we do need to keep up all the traditions and mementoes of the past, which made our city a pleasant place for the absent sons to look back to; one of which is of the time when this locality was truly a Haymarket. Let us hope that sober second thought will induce a reconsideration of their vote by the Aldermen. Yours,

CONSERVATOR.

Boys' High School Exhibition.

The annual Exhibition of the Boys' High School took place on Monday afternoon. The programme was rather tame, consisting almost wholly of declamation and dialogue, the rendering of which was not especially brilliant. Singing was freely interlarded, and was very fair, although, it might have been improved by the infusion of a little more animation and spirit. It is more than probable that the excessive heat of the day had much to do with the lack of spirit and vivacity which marked the exhibition.

The salutatory by O. J. Pfeiffar was very well done, barring a few harsh gestures, as also the declamation entitled "Ashes of Roses," by M. E. Noble, save that it was too long. The graduating class number but five, G. W. Bartlett, L. A. Drake, O. J. Pfeiffer, W. H. Moore, 4 years, and Edwin B. Fonda, 3 years.

The teachers, Messrs. Smith and Clark, are assiduous in their labors to keep the school up to its proper standard, but we think that the programme was not well calculated to exhibit the results of their efforts. For ourselves, we would have preferred some exercises in grammar, arithmetic, and other practical branches of education. Yet it may be that we are entirely wrong in our criticism and we are open to conviction.

After the distribution of the medals to the meritorious pupils, the Mayor presented to the graduating class their diplomas. The chairman of the committee, James P. Bartlett, Esq., then addressed the graduates as follows:

Young Gentlemen, Graduates of the High School of '73.

To you this day and this hour is one of peculiar interest and significance. It is the close of an epoch in your lives not soon to be forgotten. From the stand point that you now occupy, you may turn and look over the path which has led you through your four years course, and if your retrospection is honest and critical, you will see deviations, and short comings at frequent intervals, often opportunities neglected, and perhaps a want of earnestness at times in the pursuit of your studies; these may cause you to think that if you now had the four years course before you, you would be more thorough and at the end find yourselves better grounded than you now are. I do not recur to these reflections from a wish to take anything away from your merit for what you have done, but that they may prove an inspiration to you to do your best in the course of continued studies which is before you.

Two of your number have passed an examination for admission to Dartmouth College, and are to be received into that institution "without condition," a term which indicates that you are well prepared to enter upon the full classical course; and I learn that the other two contemplate entering the scientific department of the same College, with the assurance that they are well fitted for admission there. Thus the end of this year of the High School presents a feature which I think has never been presented before—that of the whole graduating class closing their term with honor, and passing without intermediate study to the pursuit of a higher course at college.

We feel gratified at the determination and earnestness of purpose which have caused your decision to continue your studies, with a view of fitting yourselves to take a higher rank in the performance of the duties of life; it is an honorable ambition, and reflects honor upon our school and its teachers.

We bid you God's speed, and when in future years, there shall be other reunions of the past pupils of the Portsmouth High Schools may you be there to add your testimony as thankful witnesses to the benefits which you have here enjoyed,

After remarks from Rev. Mr. Hardy, Rev. Dr. Bingham, Rev. Mr. Alden, the Mayor and Mr. Hatch, the exercises were closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Hardy.

The annual exhibition of the Girls' High School takes place this (Tuesday) afternoon.

P. & D. Railroad.

"Sojourner," a racy correspondent of the Boston Journal, is stopping a while at the edge of Newington, and thus writes of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad: The cutting of the road through has not been injurious to any very valuable farms, except, perhaps, the Wentworth estate below, it having cut through and isolated a fine growth of pine timber and injured one of the most picturesque scenes on the river. Litigation, I believe, has grown out of this; but what is the use, now-a-days, of trying to run against a railroad? The fate of the bull on the track awaits those who attempt it almost invariably. My old friend, Capt. Huntress, who owns a beautiful little farm and fishing station on a projecting point, is much aggrieved, and his mind is not made up exactly as to what he shall do; whether to put a fence across the "cussed road" and stop proceedings or overwhelm the company with a lawsuit. He owns about twelve acres, and the road cuts close to the barn, severing him and two or three acres from the main territory, and filling up his well, and if any one has serious cause for complaint, it is the Captain. He rested on his hoe, while telling me the story, and though he is a philosopher, the fire flashed from his eyes as he recited his wrongs. His neighbors, who have more ground to fall back on, acquiesce and pocket the compensation awarded by the commissioners, while they make lots of money by stabling stock, taking boarders, and letting out their cattle. In the meantime crops languish, hay is run out, and all the thought for the time is the railroad.

This road when completed—and it is thought that it will be entirely graded by the last of August—will be one of the most attractive in New England from the charming scenery among and by which it runs. It crosses a branch of the Piscataqua at Noble's Island in Portsmouth, and then striking the river bank it holds it to the point above, as stated, the shore of Eliot, Me., opposite, with a background of highland, old Agamenticus crowning the picture in the east. The bridge is a bold venture, the bed of the river hard—the piles driven from two to seven feet—and it will be necessary to buttress it with heavy stone to fortify it against the swift tide and ice. But it will be safely done, and this crossing will be a very pleasant feature of the route. It lands upon Dover Point, and taking this north, a view will be enjoyed of Great Bay on the west, and Cocheco river on the east, with upland and vale to diversify the prospect until Dover is reached. The bridge is the most difficult feature of the undertaking, but excellent engineering will triumph over all obstacles. The bridge will be built, it is thought, by November. The stones needed for culverts, &c., are taken from the piers of the old Piscataqua Bridge at Newington.

Manhattan Park.

Messrs. Editors:—Allow me to propound a conundrum, viz.: Isn't it rather running a good thing into the ground, for our City Fathers to throw aside the time-honored name of "Haymarket Square," for the little three-cornered piece of ground at the junction of Middle and Court streets, and rechristen it by the ludicrously inappropriate title of "Manhattan Park?" It was perhaps in very good taste for the New York delegation of returning Sons, by whose liberality and enterprise it was made to look so beautiful on the 4th, to call it "Manhattan Park;" but it isn't a "Park," any more than my back yard is, and that is but just big enough to hold the bootjacks, shaving mugs and blacking bottles which are sometimes thrown into it by way of encore to feline musicians giving evening concerts. "Haymarket Square" goes back to a day and a generation long past, and to me it seems little less than sacrilege to discard it now; but if this is to be done, I say let's go the whole hog, and call Market Square by the pretty name of "Boston Common." A RETURNED SON.

Laconics.

Schooner Laura Alone, a fishing craft from Boston ran ashore on Smutty Nose Island, Isles of Shoals, on Sunday afternoon, and her crew narrowly escaped drowning. The Steamer Major went to their rescue however, and succeeded in saving all of them, although in an exhausted condition. The vessel will be gotten off without serious damage.

About one hundred and eighty of the passengers from the wrecked steamship City of Washington passed through this city, Saturday night, on their way to Boston, where they arrived at about 11 o'clock and were temporarily provided for in the Eastern Railroad depot.

Steamer Appledore will leave Pier wharf at 8 o'clock A. M. on Wednesday, and again at 11, to convey the Catholic picnic party to Kittery Point.

The boat race between the U. S. S. Plymouth's gig and a picked crew of marines from the navy yard in Com. Howell's barge, comes off this afternoon at high water slack,—about 3 o'clock. The course is from the compass station in the lower harbor to a buoy off the navy yard and return, and a fine view of the whole race may be obtained from Pierce's island, Newcastle bridge or the vicinity of Doane's fish-landing.

P. S. Since the above was in type we learn that owing to a slight hitch in the arrangements, viz.: that the Plymouth's men have been paid off, have left for parts unknown and cannot be found,—the race will not come off. It is hard work to keep a boat's crew of sailors together for a week after being paid off, to pull a race.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE No. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complainant before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE No. 100.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 3. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, }
WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873. }

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, on the 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live-oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 640 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 8th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. ‡awj1

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEORSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Darwinism in the Kitchen.

I was takin' eft my bonnet
One afternoon, at three,
When a hinseck jumped upon it
As proved to be a flea.

Then I takes it to the grate,
Between the bars to stick it;
But I hadn't long to wait
Ere it changed into a cricket.

Says I: "Surely my senses
Is a-gettin' in a fog!"
So to drowsd it I commences;
When it hailers to a frog.

Here my heart begun to thump,
And no wonder I felt funky;
For the frog, with one big jump,
Leaped hisself into a monkey.

Then I opened wide my eyes,
His features for to scan,
And observed, with great surprise,
That that monkey was a man.

But he vanished from my sight,
And I sunk upon the floor,
Just as misens, with a light,
Came inside the kitchen door.

Then, beginning to abuse me,
She says: "Sarah, you've been drinkin'!"
I says: "No, mum, you'll excuse me:
But I've merely been a-thinkin'.

But, as sure as I'm a cinder,
That party what you see
A-gettin' out o' winder
Have developed from a flea."

YANKEE DUEL IN AUSTRALIA.

An American named Frank Cole had a "little affair of honor" in Melbourne, Australia, recently. One Rodney, a Welshman, with whom Cole lived, missed some $500 in money and a gold watch valued at as much more, and he accused "that d——d American," as he termed Cole, of taking them. The latter demanded an apology, but this Rodney refused to give to his entire satisfaction, and he knocked him down. On arising, the Welshman drew a pistol, but it was taken from him by some bystanders, while Cole taunted him with cowardice in trying to shoot an unarmed man, and offered to try shots with him according to the code. Rodney accepted, and the parties were brought into a room in the rear of a public house, where a distance of twelve paces was measured off by seconds, the combatants furnished with pistols, blindfolded and placed sideways towards each other. The referee counted the regular "one, two, three," and both parties fired, but neither hit. An attempt was made to have the affair end there, but Cole refused, and turning to his second, James E. Harlin of Portland, Me., said, "Fix this handkerchief around my eyes and see that it is done there, too, (pointing to Rodney) for I must have satisfaction." At the next shot Rodney fired before time but missed, when Cole shot him fatally through the lung. The Welshman left a daughter, and in her possession were found the missing purse and watch which had been the cause of the duel.

—"A young lady who's 'pa struck lie' a few years ago, and who has since been at boarding-school, recently returned, and a party was given for her benefit. Upon the bottom of her invitation cards she caused to be inscribed 'R. S. V. P.,' and one was sent to an illiterate rich fellow, who had also made his money by boring. He did not come, but sent a card with the letters 'D. S. C. C.' Meeting him in the street, she asked him what the letters meant. 'Tell me first what yours meant.' 'Oh! mine was French for 'Respond if you cannot accept.' 'Well, mine was English for 'Darn sorry I can't come.'"

—This is the way in which a reporter can write up a city sunset when he gives his mind to it: "As the lengthening shadows merge one into another, betokening the end of day, the ridges and spires of the city seem girt with molten gold, while the mellowed light of the declining sun falls upon them, and soon upon all a ruby tinge o'erflows." Very good, but how about a lady's nose?

—A German physiologist has discovered that tobacco smoking by boys "interferes with the molecular changes coincident with the development of tissues, and makes the blood corpuscles oval, and irregular at the edge." Any person can thus ascertain if his boy smokes by merely taking out a handful of his blood corpuscles and observing their edges.

—Rutland, Vt., is in a bad fix. The taxpayers held a meeting there recently and refused to vote a tax to defray the necessary expenses of the town for a year. The Herald leaves the tax-payers to the reflection that they have darkened the streets, opened the doors for burglars and incendiaries, disbanded the fire department and saved a few cents.

— A physician was lecturing on the ignorance of people of their own complaints and said that a lady once asked him what his next lecture was to be upon, and being told "the circulation of the blood," replied that she should certainly attend, for she had been troubled with that complaint for some time.

The Worcester Gazette, speaking of the possibility of division in the Republican party of Massachusetts which may profit the Democracy, says: "We do not prophecy what will happen in the future, but as politics stand to-day we see less likelihood of such a rupture than two years ago."

—Self-sacrifice.—Boy (to lady teacher) —"Teacher, there's a gal over there a winkin' at me!" Teacher—"Well, then, don't look at her!" Boy—"But if I don't look at her she'll wink at somebody else!"

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 1873.

The Editorial Excursion.

Sunday at Profile—A Portsmouth Lady's Flask—A Wise Pony of the Heathen Chinee Variety—Mount Lafayette—Where Next!

PROFILE HOUSE, July 14.

The excursion ends to-day with the return of the party to their respective homes. Twenty-four of them went up Mount Washington and back, on Saturday, obtaining a fine view. We arrived here Saturday noon, per stage, having as fellow passengers from the Twin Mountain House, two of the famous Vokes family, Fawdon and Jessie, who are as attractive as on the stage. The Profile had over 250 guests on Sunday and Episcopal service was held in the spacious drawing-room. Gilmore's Band furnished the music. We found our Portsmouth associates with whom we had parted, cosily ensconced here at the Profile one day ahead of us. The topic of conversation interesting the guests was the ascent of two ladies with two gentlemen on foot to the top of Mount Lafayette in four hours and a half—returning in two and a half hours. The parties were Mr. O. C. Moore, of the Nashua Telegraph, Mr. Washington Freeman, of the CHRONICLE, Miss Mary Southworth, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Alice I. Freeman, of Portsmouth, the last named lady leading the passage down. The distance from the Profile House to the summit is four miles, Messrs. Taft & Greenleaf having built a new and shorter road than the old one. This road goes over Eagle Cliff Mountain. Misses Freeman and Southworth are the youngest ladies who have succeeded in walking up to the summit of Mount Lafayette and back again.

We were not emulous of the brave example, and so chose to go up on a French pony, which her name was Jessie, and she bounced us until we stood up in the stirrups in mute despair, when she found a level place. Such a getting up hill was not in our previous memory. Mobile brought up the rear of the procession with a placid countenance and dignified appearance—for he rode a horse! Jessie is as cunning as a White Mountain stage driver. She would cast a sly glance behind at the guide and then trot away from him, far enough to venture a minute's rest and a bite at the shrubbery. That animal's appetite as she neared the summit increased in inverse proportion to her speed. Coming down, she would stop at the steepest places when half over them, and while standing nearly on her head, snatch a mouthful of leaves and then move on just as the guide raised his stick to coerce her. We ascended in an hour and fifty one minutes and descended in twenty-nine minutes less time. The view from Mount Lafayette well repays the sight seer for the sufferings his pony endures from want of breath on the way up! It is as fine as that from Mount Washington, although Lafayette is 1000 feet less in height. We weighed 125 1-2 pounds when we started on this excursion, but have probably dropped the odd five and a half pounds on the way here. There is too much rush about editorial excursions, too much feeding and too much travel, while sleep and rest are not properly attended to. In the distant future when America has been thoroughly seen by every member of the Association, it is hoped that that serio-comic organization will have a week's reunion where no more than three hotels will be visited and it will not be necessary to travel 150 miles in stage coaches. G.

THE SHABBY GENTEELS OF NEW YORK.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

The advertising columns of the daily papers bear witness to the straightened circumstances of these fashion imitators, and it is a very common announcement to see notices like these:

FOR SALE—7 octave piano, Weber, maker; cost $1,000, good as new, for $195; steel and cover thrown in. Property of party declining housekeeping. Address, ——.

AT PRIVATE RESIDENCE, No. —— street, property of family going to Europe—magnificent Marie Antoinette style, satin brocade parlor suit, made to order; nearly new; cost $600 for $150; one do., $400 for $125.

FOR SALE AT SACRIFICE—Ladies' elegant coupe, horse and harness; cost $1,250 for $250. Party going to seaside. Address A. G. H., Box ——.

What a tale of extravagance and folly these advertisements tell! People are so puffed up with false pride that they will make almost any sacrifice to keep up appearances and shine in their "set," beside others who can count their income by tens of thousands. This rage for show that has possessed our people is shown in the manner in which many of our would-be aristocratic ladies maintain a carriage to make their calls. There are in this city probably fifty livery men who drive a lucrative business by supplying a showy turn-out to such families as cannot stand the expense of maintaining one of their own. They will, for a stipulated sum per hour, supply a carriage, horses and coachmen to their patrons, who usually keep a suit of livery in their house in which to dress the coachman. When an order is given, the family coat, pants, boots, hat, etc., are sent to the stable, into which a be far crawls, and in half an hour the would-be fashionable lady drives up in front of her friend's house in all the pomp and splendor of a coach-and-pair and liveried driver. No one suspects that all but the coachman's livery is borrowed for the occasion, and the impression is left upon the mind of the spectator that Mrs. Jones's husband is growing wealthy. Other ladies who have no coach envy her, because they do not know that by spending $8 or $10 a day they might themselves shine to as good advantage. Not infrequently does one coachman attached to a stable wear the liveries of five or six families per day. I know of what I write when I speak thus. Among these cases I have in my mind's eye is that of the family of a prominent ex-Judge of the Superior court, who makes calls with a borrowed coach, with a coachman and two footmen, dressed in the family livery. An establishment of this magnificence usually costs $6 to $10 per hour.

Readables.

A recent number of the Danbury News has this little fling at the female of the period—or perhaps we should say at the female of all periods: "At the depot on Monday evening an eager-looking man jumped from the train and clasped a waiting woman to his arms. "Heavens! my wife!" said he. "Mercy! my ruffles!" said she. Which showed what both were thinking of.

A French aeronaut and two companions recently ascended before he was already, the fastening having given way, and after attaining a height of three miles dropped into the sea. Happily they were saved by a passing vessel.

A German shoemaker was killed in cold blood by a Chinese washerman at San Francisco, Saturday. In Lansingburg, N. Y., Sunday night, a policeman shot one man fatally and wounded another. During a brawl in a Jersey City saloon, Saturday, a white man was killed by negroes. The discovery of a horrible murder has just been made at Jennersville, Pa., the mutilated and dismembered body of a strange man being found in the woods.

A suggestion is made that when Wise crosses the ocean in the Graphic balloon, he should drop bottles containing messages into the ocean every hour, so that clue may be had to his whereabouts.

At Cleveland, Ohio, a young man by the name of Orlando Harris, while returning from work, discovered a boy bathing who was about to drown. Harris dropped his dinner pail and basket on the ground, and at once sprang in. He evidently leaped into the water without thinking of danger, as he was unable to swim. He managed to reach the exhausted boy, but found himself beyond his depth. Not being able to help himself, he still had the presence of mind and heroism just as he was about to sink, to give the boy a push toward shore. He shoved the boy so near land that a brother caught him and drew him out, but the brave young man was drowned.

Joaquin Miller has accepted a challenge to ride to the hounds against a noted English sportsman. He says he will break the Englishman's neck if he can find country rough enough. Somebody's neck could get broken in that contest without causing the world much loss.

The life saving station at Saco Pool, Me., will be located and organized immediately. Boat houses will be erected, 24X12 in size, to accommodate the latest and most approved patterns of surf-boats. A crew of eighteen men, residing in the vicinity, will be enlisted in government employ for each station, whose duty it will be to repair to their respective stations on the first indication of a storm. Every station will keep its number flying from the station-staff so that vessels seeing it can tell at once where they are. It is also intended to put it in telegraphic communication with the nearest principal signal station, so that the approach of storms from seaward may be indicated at once.

The New York Times thinks that perhaps the severest blow to General Butler's plans is, that his Framingham speech has been voted intolerably dull.

Buffalo has arrested a 19-year-old bigamist. The two unhappy wives each declared that they didn't want him, but the other shouldn't have him.

State News.

While Taylor Dame and others were raising a one-story building with jack-screws, in Rochester, some of the blocking canted over, letting one end of the house down a couple of feet or so. The chimney came off at the ridgepole with a crash, staving a big hole in the roof, and then bounded to the ground in two large chunks, with a few scattering bricks. One piece went clear over Dame's head, and the other landed down beside a little child, the loose bricks striking Dame on the back, badly bruising though not dangerously injuring him. It was a narrow escape from death.

Wilfred D. Fitts, the somnambulic assaulter of Candia, is again at home, having been dismissed from Dr. Bancroft's care at Concord.

Further développements in the case of Mrs. Carlton who is accused of placing obstructions on the track of the Concord Railroad on the 8th inst., would seem to point conclusively to the fact that she was the only one concerned in it, and that she was influenced by pecuniary motives. There is a decided resemblance between her handwriting and that in which the note was written which she alleged the robbers had left.

John P. Parker, the proprietor of the Washington House, at Seabrook, had a valuable Gold-dust colt, which was the pet of the family, shot and stabbed on Wednesday night last, because he refused to sell liquor to the men who did it.

THE GOODRICH MURDERESS.

Lizzie Lloyd King, the murderess of Goodrich, sleeps soundly in Kings county jail. Leading papers were furnished her at her request, and she read all they contained in reference to her case. Some of the statements she remarked were incorrect, but she did not specify them. For a time she appeared in rather a melancholy mood, but subsequently brightened up and seemed very cheerful. She conversed some time with Fanny Hyde, the murderess of George W. Watson, whom she considerably resembles. They spend a greater part of their time in each other's company. The excitement in Brooklyn over the case is unabated and it is the topic of conversation in every house and upon every corner. The trial will not take place in three months, as it will be September before the next grand jury will be empanelled. Miss Palm, the affianced wife of Goodrich, had a long interview with the murderess, Monday. The detective, Miss Handley, is still in search of Roscoe, as is also Lucette Myers.

THE TRUTH AT LAST.

One of the editors of the Boston Transcript has long been convinced that the current version of the cherry tree story was inaccurate; so he went in to find the true facts of the case. Into the dusty records of the past he dived, and, found what he was after, grappled with it, and drew it forth to the light of 1873. It will be observed this version bears some resemblance to the one that has so long occupied a prominent place in spelling books, but it is far more beautiful and pathetic in its tone. If it does not exhibit a Sir Galihad purity, it shows a childish ingenuousness that will call forth the warmest admiration of the old country. Here it is in all its beauty:

"Georgey, boy," said the grandfather to the future Father of his country, "Benjy Franklin's father is a soap boiler, and he is going to grow up and call down the fire from heaven. Yours is not, yet you are not wholly uninstructed, my son, in the science of chemistry. Tell me, then, since I have leached these cherry-wood ashes for more than a week, is the liquid ready for the addition of soap grease?" The hero of Monmouth, Trenton, and such, let up for a space upon the stick he was whittling to reply, with all the ingennousness of childish ignorance, "Father, I cannot tell a lye." After that he passed into history.

A GRAND EXHIBITION OF NATIONAL INDUSTRY.

The American Institute of the City of New York will hold its 42d Exhibition this Fall, opening on the 10th day of September next, and continuing until late in November.

This Exhibition promises to be far more interesting than any which have preceded it, inasmuch as special effort is being made to have the leading industrial operations carried on upon the premises.

The American Institute is the oldest of all societies now in existence of its kind, and is is not in any sense a private corporation, its earnings being devoted by its charter to the encouragement of home industries.

For circulars, giving classification of articles, rules for exhibitors and full particulars, address, General Superintendent, American Institute, New York City.

Importance of Healthy Blood.

Every drop of blood that circulates through the veins eventually becomes a solid particle of the body. Flesh, bone and muscle are merely solidified blood, and upon the quality of the blood depends the condition of the whole physical system. Unless the liquid material by which the human substance is renewed and sustained is pure and nutritious it is impossible that the body can be healthy and strong. One of the most important properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is that of improving the condition of the vital fluid when infected or impoverished. Acting directly and powerfully upon the stomach, in which the manufacture of the blood is commenced, and upon the liver which secretes a fluid next in importance to the stream of life itself, this powerful vegetable tonic and depurent has an immense indirect influence upon the circulation. Hence the extraordinary cures wrought by the Bitters in cases of general debility, malarious fevers, rheumatism, biliousness, constipation, &c.

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not too far gone its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked breasts, scalds, burns, saltrheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. Its virtue is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells just because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserves to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing these certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Prices 50 cents, large bottle $1. J. B. Rose & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Lost.

ON Monday afternoon, between the New Castle Toll House and H. M. Curtis' store in New Castle a POCKET-BOOK, containing eighty dollars ($80) in money, a safe key, one E. & R. ticket from Ports. to Boston, and a tax bill with the owner's name on the same. The said Pocket-book has black leather covers, with an elastic band for a strap and was lost between the hours of 5 and 6 o'clock. Whoever may find the same and return it to the owner will be paid the sum of $20 on its delivery, by H. M. CURTIS.

—It has been ascertained that during the last five months five hundred and forty young ladies fainted on various occasions. Four hundred and ninety-nine fell in the arms of young gentlemen; forty were caught by their aunts and grandmothers; and only one had the misfortune to fall on the floor. She, however, picked out a soft place to fall upon, and was providentially received by an otto-man.

How to Baffle Disease.

The man who puts a bullet through his head dies more speedily than he who is continually sending volleys of strong, cathartic pills down his throat, but the drastic pellets are as fatal in the end as the leaden ball. It is only a question of time. Common sense should teach everybody that the idea of expelling disease by subverting the bodily vigor which is its natural antagonist, is supremely absurd. There should be no purgation without invigoration and regulation. These three processes should go on together and they do so in all cases where Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are used as a remedy for disease or for the general debility growing out of a torpid state of the digestive and secretive organs. In this great vegetable restorative are mingled three essential elements of cure: a purifying element, a tonic element and an anti-bilious element. By these means dyspepsia, bilious disorders, intermittent fevers, sick headache, constipation, and nervous debility are readily cured and epidemic disease prevented.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $3, by all Druggists. 688

BOY WANTED.

It was a day in mid-summer;
The boiler had burst;
Four-and-thirty brave fellows
Lay mangled in the dust.

Our hearts melted with sorrow;
With lightning speed we sent,
Thinking only of the glad to-morrow,
If we found the Centaur Liniment.

Well, we found it at Lindsley's store, three miles away; but it did its work, saved pain, inflammation, and suffering.

The Centaur Liniment always does its work, whether it be for scalds, bruises, rheumatism, stiff joints or lameness.

But this to us is an old story. Why will any suffer? Come all ye halt, lame and sore, and be healed for a dollar or fifty cents, and if you haven't that, then for nothing. We know what the Centaur Liniment is, and will warrant it every time.

Cripples throw away their crutches and leap for joy. Horses neigh for it. When Centaur Liniment comes in the front gate, pain flies out at the window.

If you would sleep without pain, walk without limping—straighten out that crooked knee, use those rheumatic-distorted fingers, or get rid of a horrid neuralgia just use the Centaur Liniment. (White wrapper.)

The other kind (yellow wrapper) is just as effective upon your lame horses and mules. A wonder, says one; a miracle, says another.

The article is selling as no other article ever sold, and it only sells because it cures. See the certificate around the bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir.—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking the VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly,

THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of the Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPTOMS.—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine. The mouth is clammy, or has a sour or bitter taste. Other frequent symptoms are waterbrash, palpitation of the heart, headache and disorders of the senses, as seeing double, &c. There are also pain in the shoulder, and sometimes a motion; dejection of the spirits, disturbed sleep and frightful dreams.

FEEL MYSELF A NEW MAN.

NATICK, MASS., June 1, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—Through the advice and earnest persuasion of Rev. E. S. Best, of this place, I have been taking VEGETINE for Dyspepsia, of which I have suffered for years. I have used only two bottles, and already feel myself a new man. Respectfully,

DR. J. W. CARTER.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 9, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, ESQ.:

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking VEGETINE about the middle of last winter and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of Dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine, to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 386 Athens Street.

Girls' High School Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the High School for young ladies in this city, took place on Tuesday afternoon. The comfort of the occasion was marred by the excessive heat, the crowd of spectators of both genders filling the room and the door-ways leading thereto, and completely shutting out the air, so that it required but a slight stretch of the imagination to lead one to believe that a Turkish Bath was being administered to the unfortunate inmates there assembled. The beautiful display of flowers was a redeeming feature, and their beauty and fragrance lent a charm to the occasion. The young ladies bore the heat with equanimity and went through the following somewhat lengthy programme:

The graduating class consisted of sixteen young ladies, each attired in a muslin dress of immaculate whiteness and covered with frills, flounces and fluting that made us perspire to think of the amount of labor it took to get the outward man in shape to properly graduate. We must again utter our protest against such elaborate toilets that unrelenting custom has forced upon the graduates of the Girls' High School. It is the mind that we want to see exhibited and not a dress maker's establishment, But nevertheless we must admit that the fair damsels looked pretty and we should have felt proud to have been the father of any of them. The programme was as follows:

Piano Solo. By Miss C. G. Neil.
Music. Keller's American Hymn."
1. Salutatory.....Miss M. E. Prescott.
2. Rehearsal. "A Persian Legend." Miss E. D. Lowd.

13. Presentation of Diplomas.
14. Award of Haven Medals.
15. Addresses by the Committee and others.
Prayer.

The piano solo by Miss C. G. Neil was finely rendered, and the singing of "Keller's American Hymn" was a great improvement over that to which we listened the day previous.

The salutatory by Miss Prescott was well done, being given in a clear and distinct voice and with good emphasis.

The rehearsal of the "Persian Legend" was omitted and the dialogue of "Cinderella" was given in its stead.

The rehearsal of "The Voices at the Throne" was by Miss C. Pryor and the composition of "Theory and Practice" by Miss E. J. Magraw, and both were well done.

The dialogue of "Dr. Arnold's Prescription," was rendered by Misses L. Grace Akerman, M. E. Prescott, M. E. Cunningham, in an unexceptionable manner, which fully atoned for its extreme length.

An original composition entitled "Happiness more in pursuit, than in possession," shew considerable thought and was distinctly read by the author, Miss M. E. Prescott.

"A Legend of Bregentz" by Miss E. L. Grace, was then given, after which the song of "My Home, my Happy Home," was sung by the school.

The Rehearsals of "Contentment" by Miss Guptil and "Mona's Waters" were good, the latter particularly so. Miss Giddings deserves credit for the excellent manner in which she recited, showing that she had an intelligent conception of her theme, and rendered it accordingly.

"Modesty," a composition written and read by Miss L. G. Akerman was a production of much merit and was given with a modest demeanor, showing that she believed the sentiments which she wrote. We commend Miss Akerman's thoughts to the attention of every young lady.

The recitation of "Boorioboola Gha" by Miss Nellie Chesley, was prettily delivered, being given with a maidenly reserve that was interesting and commendable.

Miss L. E. Giddings' composition entitled "Choice of Pursuit," indicated some thought but was more distinguished for its smoothness and pleasant choice of words. It was exceedingly well delivered, which fully compensated for any minor faults that it might have possessed.

The dialogue of "After School, What?" was given, and after a musical selection of solo and chorus a fine composition ("Study of History") was read by the author, Miss Nellie Chesley, the production being brief and well written.

Albert R. Hatch, Esq., delivered the congratulatory address to the graduating class, following which was the award of medals, as follows:

FOURTH CLASS.

First Prize.—Emma Jane White Magraw, Emma Louise Grace, Emma Ellsworth Foltz Guptill.

2d Prize.—Clara Eva Lowd, Laura Ellen Giddings, Helen Louise Chesley.

3d Prize.—Mary Ellen Cunningham, Ella Dora Lowd, Clarabella Pryor.

4th Composition.—Mary E. Prescott.

THIRD CLASS.

1st Prize.—Williametta Conn, Abbie H. Langley.

2d Prize.—Ellen M. Freeman, Lizzie H. Marston, Alice J. Freeman, Mary L. Varrell.

3d Prize.—Mary G. Goodrich, Emma L. Hayes, Mabel Moses, Laura E. Hodgdon.

SECOND CLASS.

1st Prize.—Gertrude C. Neil, Josie F. Prescott, Carrie H. Hawkins.

2d Prize.—Bessie B. Thurston, Mary E. Stewart, Lillie L. Joy, Kate J. Morrisey, Nellie E. Reed, Emma G. Hall.

For each of the prizes as the several classes were called up, a drawing took place as there were not sufficient number of medals to give to each, although all were alike meritorious.

Addresses were delivered by Revs. Carlos Martyn and A. C. Hardy, Rev. Mrs. Chapin of Iowa, and Rev. Dr. Bingham. A letter was read from J. G. Whittier, expressing his regrets at his inability to be present. Rev. Mr. Alden then closed the meeting with prayer and the benediction.

On the whole the exhibition was a success. A programme more varied in its character would be more pleasing to many but as the design is to make a good show, probably no better selection could have been made for this end.

Boys' High School Medals.

The following list of medals awarded at the exhibition of the Boys' High School on Monday was received too late for insertion in Tuesday's issue and therefore we give it to-day.

Second Year.—To Wallace S. Holbrook and Charles E. Giddings; for "Diligent Application, Good Deportment and General Improvement in all the studies pursued." Frank H. Thompson deserves a similar medal.

Third Year.—To Edwin B. Rundlett, for being the best scholar in "English Composition." To Mark E. Noble, for being the best scholar in "Book Keeping and Mathematics." To Frank H. Neal, for "Diligent Application, Good Deportment and General Improvement in all the studies pursued." Charles F. Shillaber deserves a similar medal.

Fourth Year.—To William H. Moore, for being the best scholar in "Latin and Writing Latin." To Oscar J. Pfeiffer, for being the best scholar in "Mathematics." To George W. Bartlett and Lewis A. Drake, for "Diligent Application, Good Deportment and General Improvement in all the studies pursued."

Great Falls & Conway R. R.

The Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway Railroad held its annual meeting at the Ward Room in Ward One on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock and chose the following board of Directors: Thornton K. Lothrop, of Boston; Ichabod Goodwin, William H. Y. Hackett, of Portsmouth; Benjamin T. Reed of Boston; George Wm. Burleigh, of Great Falls.

The corporation voted to accept the recent act of the Legislature of New Hampshire authorising the road to connect with the Portsmouth & Dover road at Dover, and voted to increase the capital stock, the amount not exceeding $150,000, to build the same. At the meeting of the directors, held subsequently, T. K. Lothrop was re-elected president, and W. H. Hackett, clerk.

Eastern Railroad in N. H.

The Eastern Railroad in New Hampshire also held its annual meeting at the same time and place and elected the following Board of Directors: Benjamin T. Reed, of Boston; William H. Y. Hackett, of Portsmouth; Robert W. Hooper, of Boston; Ichabod Goodwin, of Portsmouth; Frederick W. Choate, of Beverly.

The Corporation voted to lease the branch to be extended from the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway Railroad, to connect with the Portsmouth & Dover at Dover at Dover. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Ichabod Goodwin was chosen president, and W. H. Hackett, clerk.

Ye Park.

It is a singular fact that such pleasant occasions as that recently enjoyed in this city often prove to be a soil where seeds of animosities and prejudices are germinated and get a rapid growth. To prevent such a result, who would not lift a voice and make the most determined effort? Such a seed is that Manhattan flag. Let old Haymarket Square be restored to its time honored memories, and all our peculiar names and titles be preserved. HOSPITALITY.

Newcastle.

Messrs. Editors:—The Spring term of the Grammar school closed July 3d. The session has been a pleasant and happy one, both to students and teacher, while, at the same time, laden with good results. It was the intention of the pupils to close the school with an "old-fashioned picnic" but the "glorious 4th" being so close at hand, it was deemed advisable to postpone it till the 11th.

On the morning of the 11th, though a heavy fog obscured the sun, a goodly number of children with friends started for the grove that make the shores of Little Harbor so attractive. All went merrily till a little sprinkling dampened the ardor, but Mrs. Fletcher opened wide her doors and invited all to "come in."

The time passed swiftly with music and song, while some of the young Misses were practising the theory, learned at home, of carving (?) pies and cakes. (There is nothing ideal in the last clause!) and preparing the not frugal board. When once prepared and surrounded it was not surprising to see how deftly hands cleared the table, for the edibles were good, with keen appetites to appreciate them. After the repast was over, the Principal, F. R. Wade, late of Le Grand Institute, Iowa, read his report for the term. He prefaced his remarks by saying that the Register was the freest from 'excuse' and 'tardy' marks of any he had ever examined or had during his experience as a teacher, that punctuality and good lessons were the predominating features of the term whose close they were now celebrating.

The following named pupils have not lost a day during the term: Irving W. Hall, Nellie Frost, Lizzie Garland, Cora B. Hall, Carrie S. Hall, Mary B. Neal, Ellen A. White, Lois A. Rand and Grace B. Rand. The following have lost but one day: Stillman White, Elmer Upton, Bertie Trussel, Ivan Meloon, Forrest Becker, George H. Amazeen, Anna Tarlton, Myra Trefethen, Ella Curtis and Myra Batson. The report closed with a statement that over two thirds of the school had been present every day, except two, during the term, while but few of the scholars had lost over three days. The Principal's report being finished, prizes were awarded to Irving W. Hall, Cora B. Hall, Lizzie Garland, Ellen A. White, Mary B. Neal and Nellie E. Frost. W.

Laconics.

Civil Engineer Chandler, on the occasion of celebrating his "majority" (the completion of his twenty-first year) at the Navy Yard, Saturday, received his friends in good style. His residence, beautifully situated at the water's edge on Seavey's Island, was tastefully decorated with flags; and a bountiful hospitality was dispensed by the family. Many guests were desirous of sitting in the chair once owned by the king of Otaheite. Among the toasts was this: May our host abide another twenty-one years, and his forty-two-o not forsake him."

Among the oldest, most faithful, courteous and unobtrusive public officers, in this vicinity, is Mr. Edward N. Anderson, messenger at the Navy Yard. He has been at his post, year in and year out, for more than twenty years; and has always acted well his part, which is where all the honor lies. We, like hosts of other citizens, have been indebted to him.

The committee of reception of the Sons held a meeting Tuesday evening, and adjourned to the call of the Auditing Committee.

The Tigress sailed on the 14th from New York in search of the Polaris.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and invite all interested to the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE NO. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been served on him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE NO. 100.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 640 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best kind of their respective kinds; work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the whole work.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the guarantee will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. cawjl

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of pushing their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. All Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

An Aim.

Give me a man with an aim,
Whatever that aim may be—
Whether it's wealth, or whether it's fame,
It matters not to me.
Let him walk in the path of right,
And keep his aim in sight,
And work and pray in faith away,
With his eyes on the glittering light.

Give me a man who says:
"I will do something well,
And make the fleeting days
A story of labor tell."
Though the aim he has be small,
It is better than not at all;
With something to do the whole year thro'
He will not stumble at all.

But Satan weaves a snare
For the feet of those who stray,
With never a thought or care
Where the path may lead away.
The man who has no aim
Not only leaves no name
When his life is done, but ten to one
He leaves a record of shame.

Better to strive and climb,
And never reach the goal,
Than to glide along with time—
An aimless, worthless soul;
Aye, better to climb and fall,
And sow though the yield be small,
Than to throw away day after day.
And never strive at all.

TRICKS UPON TOPERS.

[Danbury News.]

Roff, who keeps the news stand in the Post office building, turns many an honest penny with a root beer fountain. The fountain has two escapes, and at each of these he keeps a glass standing to catch the drippings. He noticed, recently, that a couple of elderly men who lounged in the post office in the evening drained these glasses as soon as they were partly filled. Great and mighty results frequently grow out of slight causes. When Roff detected them an idea struck him. Before setting the glasses the next time, he dropped a teaspoonful of catarrh snuff in each one. It was a new kind of snuff, and Roff was glad of the opportunity to test it. He wasn't confident these men had the catarrh, but that was really no business of his (it wasn't anything he could help) and, besides, science must be attended to, so he entered upon the experiment with all the hopefulness and expectation of a young and ardent nature.

About eight o'clock, the old buffers came around, and having listlessly examined the periodicals, watched the opportunity which Roff was quivering to give them, and raised the glasses hurriedly to their lips, and as hurriedly absorbed the contents. They then lounged about as listlessly as before, for about two minutes. At the expiration of that time, one of the twain commenced to look surprised. The other man also looked as if he had received unexpected intelligence. Then their faces simultaneously appeared griped, and the first man remarked: "O! O!" and struck for the wall. Whereupon the second man made a similar statement, and also started for the same destination. Roff hurried after them. He didn't go out on the walk where they were, because they didn't appear to want to engage in any business, and Roff had just put on a clean linen suit. So he stayed on the step, and watched those aged people as they swayed on the curb, and bombarded the gutter with root beer, and catarrh snuff, and pieces of liver, and such things as were handy at the time. He hasn't seen them since. He regrets this, as he wants to get their certificate to put in a circular.

— Some one has sent to the Atlantic Monthly the following stanzas: "Lightly she lifts the large, pure luminous shell, poises it in her strong and shapely hand." "Listen," she says, "it has a tale to tell, spoken in language you may understand." Smiling, she holds it at my dreaming ear; the old, delicious murmur of the sea steals like enchantment through me, and I hear voices like echoes of eternity. Let her poise. She may also lift the convoluted univalve in a "strong and shapely hand," and her biceps may swell out like a muskmelon. But the antique swindle touching the "old, delicious murmur of the sea," is a humbug. For, reader, if you will hold a beaver hat, or a goblet, or a pickle bottle to your ear, you will hear the same delicious murmur.

—A Danbury man's order for his wife's hat is a novelty in its way. She was sick and couldn't go for the hat, so he drove in himself. He told the milliner to put on a dollar's worth of parsley, fifteen cents worth of string beans, ten cents worth of cherries, a few green currants, a beet or two, a little cabbage, and about three slices of turnips, or if it was too early for turnips, make it two new potatoes instead.

—A suggestion is made that when Wise crosses the ocean in the Graphic Balloon, he should drop bottles containing messages every hour into the ocean, so that some clue may be had to his whereabouts. Passengers by the Cunard steamers are requested to carry sheet-iron umbrellas, or keep in the cabin, while Wise is throwing bottles.

—Widows who have promised their husbands to never marry again on the face of the earth, can go to the Mammoth Cave and have the ceremony performed.

—Kansas mosquitoes are said to reach such gigantic magnitude that there isn't room for more than two of them to bite an ordinary-sized man at once.

—The Louisville Courier Journal says that "that Boston preacher's sermon on the war of the lava beds must have been Modoctrinal than usual."

Many valuable records were destroyed by a fire at the Navy Department on Tuesday.

A man was beaten to death by his wife and step-son at Keokuk, Iowa, Saturday. Two men fought with butcher knives in a Chicago saloon, Sunday night, and one of them was killed. During a quarrel in New York, Monday night, a man was knocked down and killed for calling his assailant a liar.

The cholera has broken out among the convicts in the Ohio penitentiary.

Chief Engineer Chas. De Valin, has been ordered to duty as inspector of machinery afloat at the navy yard.

George Gifford, a former editor of the Portland Press, has received an offer of a prominent position upon the Inter-Ocean of Chicago, with a salary of $3000 per annum.

The bids for the construction of the new sloops of war authorized by the last Congress, which are to be opened on the 7th of August, are already coming in. Most of the bids so far received are from New York and Boston.

The first event of regatta week at Springfield, the single scull race between John Biglin and Ellis Ward, took place Tuesday. It had an unexpected ending, Ward being seized with vertigo while pulling, and of course compelled to stop. He was taken ashore at once, and happily the attack did not prove to be dangerous. A serious accident occurred on the river in the morning. While practising, the boats of the Amherst and Columbia College crews came into collision, and the Amherst boat was ruined, while one of the Columbia crew received severe injuries.

A base ball match was played Tuesday afternoon between the Harvard and Brown freshmen, in which Harvard won.

The receipts from the sale of postage stamps for the two weeks since the abolition of the franking privilege have greatly exceeded those of any similar period in the history of the country. The receipts last week were in excess of one million dollars. The average annual postage of congressmen is computed at $1000, which they will have to pay out of their increased salary.

Charles H. Merrill, a Portland lumber dealer, was shot on the 16th by an insane Irishman named John Carlin. He will probably recover.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 30,

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

PROVINCIAL ASSEMBLY OF 1767.—Governor Benning Wentworth resigned in the preceding year, and in June, 1767, John Wentworth arrived in Portsmouth with a commission as the royal Governor. There was no Senate, but a Council of twelve members, one of whom was the Lieutenant-Governor when there was such an officer. The Governor had a right to negative the choice of any committee whom he did not like. I have the names for the Councillors for that year. Portsmouth and Newcastle had quite a share,—Theodore Atkinson, Theodore Atkinson, Jr., M. H. Wentworth, probably G. Gaffney, and possibly others.

Thirty-one towns were represented in the Provincial assembly. Twenty-three of these towns were in what is now Rockingham county. No counties had been formed then. Four of the towns were in Strafford county and four in the westerly part of the Province.

The Representatives of Portsmouth were William Parker, Esq., John S. Sherburne, Esq., and Jacob Sheafe. Hampton had Col. Jonathan Moulton and Christopher Tappan, Esq.; Greenland, Col. C. March; Newington, Richard Downing, Esq.; Stratham, Andrew Wiggin, Esq.; Exeter, Peter Gilman; Hampton Falls, Mesheck Weare, Esq.; Newcastle and Rye are put down as classed towns. There were two Representatives, Thomas Bell, Esq., of Newcastle, and Richard Jenness of Rye.

It seems from the list of Representatives that the towns chose usually their ablest men. Two of the Representatives that year, afterwards, besides filling other important offices, became Governors of the State under the constitution, after the war of the revolution. These were Mr. Weare of Hampton Falls, and Mr. Bartlett of Kingston. Several others arose to places of distinction. The Speaker was Hon. Peter Gilman of Exeter. He was Speaker about a dozen years in succession.

The population of the Province that year was 52,000. There was one Representative to 1677 persons of the whole population, under the constitution, in 1823; the Representatives were about 200, or one in 1210 inhabitants. A full number now from all of the towns allowed to send, would be about 560, or one to 883 inhabitants,—a much larger representation than is needed.

—A student who had been afflicted with a sermon one hour and a half long, says grumblingly that these professors study so much about eternity that they have no conception of time.

—Hetchy-Hetchy Valley sets itself up as a rival to the Yosemite.

Some Mountain Notes.

Looking back over the excursion of the New Hampshire editors to the White Mountain region, we find but little to add beyond a few wayside notes, which we record below:

The ascent of Mount Washington by one honorary and two active delegates, on foot, in the midst of a drenching rain, was perhaps the most notable achievement of the excursion. We say this with due caution, aware that the statement may strike some people as egotistical, and remembering also Fogg's speech at Colebrook. The ascent was made over the railroad ties, placed three feet apart, and rising one foot in three. The ties were slippery from the falling rain, and afforded a most insecure foothold on which to pass over trestle-work fifty feet in the air. The pedestrians persevered, however, surmounting every obstacle, Jacob's ladder included. They made the ascent work, and it made them work, too. But the joke of the affair was that when they arose bright and early in the morning—early, at least, if not bright—they found the monarch of mountains enveloped in a dense fog, no object being visible at a distance of fifty yards. They then became convinced that the far-famed view was not worth ascent.

Notwithstanding the physical exertion and mental perturbation caused by that little jaunt to the top of Mount Washington, and the disappointment caused by having no view in the morning, we by no means regret the labor expended in that damp climb. The effort will linger in our memory for many a day—indeed we enjoy the novel feeling of being connected to the mountain by several thousand ties of the railroad variety; and if any editorial friend contemplates an elaborate account of old Washington, we have an abundance of foot-notes on the subject that are at his service.

Brother Jenks, of Concord, proved himself the most agile climber in the company. He got on top of Mount Washington in the manner described above in the remarkably short time of two hours, and in scrambling up Table Rock he led the host. If the New Hampshire editors take a proper professional pride in these achievements, they will pick out one of the numerous unnamed mountains, and call it Jenks—"High Jenks" would be not inappropriate.

One of the most interesting characters to be encountered in the mountains is Cutting, the agent, stage-driver, guests' companion, factotum and general utility man of the Twin Mountain House. With a face that realizes Bret Harte's conception of the "child-like and bland," he possesses an intellect as keen as any Wall street operator, and overflows with a fund of humor, observation, experience and trite wisdom that would make the fortunes of half-a-dozen magazinists. Cutting is indeed a shrewd shrub of the mountains, and visitors to the Twin Mountain House should not fail to secure him as their driver and companion in whatever excursions they may make from that point. Then let them take a ride with the elder Barron, and get the old gentleman to relate Cutting's history, and if they don't have a feast of double richness, they may set us down as not knowing a good thing when we see it.

It will interest Portsmouth readers to know that the Parsons House, at Colebrook, is kept by the "double" of Mr. Mark Spinney, of this city—which his name is Remick—though we believe Mr. S. has not as yet been "undid" by him of Colebrook. Remick is a "case," a little too much up to snuff, though that is better than snuff being too much up to him.

The waiters at some of the mountain hotels constitute a notable feature of travel in that region. At the Twin Mountain House your soup will very likely be handed to you by a young gentleman of decidedly academic appearance, with, possibly, a pair of spectacles perched on a knowing nose. You may, perhaps, feel some twinges of conscience in sending such a gentlemanly appearing fellow after this or that delicacy, but in all probability he will anticipate every wish, and you get up from the table with an appetite thoroughly subdued and a feeling that waiting need not be a menial service unless those who pursue it choose to make it so. These gentlemanly waiters are students from neighboring academies, and possibly a few of them are from some not distant college. In the mountains they pass a vacation in active employment, give better satisfaction both to landlords and guests than any other class of waiters it has ever been our fortune to meet, and "put money in their purse" to help finish their education.

One of the ideas firmly implanted in our mind in early youth, was that Coos county was a bleak and barren region, dotted here and there with collections of log huts, which by courtesy, were called villages; that its fields produced a plentiful crop of rocks and very little of anything else, and that its people were a God-forsaken, poverty-stricken lot, who never had a dollar to bless themselves with, except when some adventurers ventured among them. Where or how the idea originated we cannot say, unless it arose from the fact that Coos will persist in rolling up such big Democratic majorities; it is certain, however, that a false notion was never more utterly destitute of foundation. More fertile valleys we do not wish to see; prosperity abounds on every hand, and so do the trout. The people are intelligent and hospitable—so hospitable indeed, that if you want to play a game of billiards an old man of a hundred and eight years and three weeks, steps up to count your game. We say "old," but a little intercourse reveals a vivacious old gent—able to see without glasses, to take his morning nip from a tin cup and count with impartial accuracy; and when you hear him say "haow" and "knaow," you firmly believe that you have the real father of Yankees in the body before you. A great deal was said at the Colebrook Gab in praise of the Coos people, and one of the speakers thought they were in danger of being flattered; but no fears of that kind troubled us. We can say with truth that we have seldom met a more elevated people—not merely geographically but every other way.

AN ENOCH ARDEN CASE.

About two years and a half ago an unknown peddler was drowned in the Crab Pond, at Fall River. About the same time another man, named McDonald, suddenly disappeared from the city, and, after due inquiry and search, people began to settle down into the belief that the drowned man and McDonald were one and the same. About five weeks afterward the body of the drowned man was recovered, and McDonald's wife, who was then living at Newport, came up to see it. It was very much decomposed, and the features almost or quite beyond recognition, but Mrs. McDonald thought she could recognize it as the body of her husband by a scar or mark on one of the fingers. So confident was she in her opinion that the body was given up to her and she had it buried. Mrs. McDonald was now a widow with five children, but in due course of time she married again, her second husband being a Mr. Benson, and went to housekeeping in a tenement on Eighth street. On Friday last, while the children were playing about the floor, they were astonished by the sudden appearance of their father. They recognized him at once, and immediately ran up to him and addressed him by their endearing appellation. In the meantime, husband No. 2, who was in the house, hearing the exclamations of the children, peered through the window blinds, and seeing No. 1, he left the premises without waiting either for introduction or explanation. Mr. McDonald entered the house, and on hearing how matters stood, began to upraid his wife, and demanded the custody of his children. She, apparently both ready and willing, at once packed up her effects and departed, leaving behind her to the care of McDonald the five children.

THE GOODRICH MURDERESS.

Eight letters have been found in Kate Stoddard's possession written to Goodrich, and five from him to her, all showing that she regarded herself as his lawful wife. She addresses him as "My Dear Charley," and "My dearest husband." The letters of both likewise show that they were married, or went through a ceremony which she supposed a lawful marriage, May 20, 1872, in New York, and were registered as man and wife at the Astor House. Three of his letters are dated after the alleged marriage. The second tells her "It is better for both that we should separate." The third tells her not to call herself his wife as they must separate. He offers to furnish her with apartments in New York and do everything for her, but she must not tell his family of their mutual relationship; but, as shown by her last letter, she was determined not to leave him, hence the quarrel. She seems to have carefully preserved everything connected with him which came into her possession.

The Herald publishes a communication to the effect that under the laws of that State there can be no such thing as a mock marriage between single persons. Any agreement to live together as husband and wife marries them in the eyes of the law; consequently Goodrich must (on the testimony already furnished) be regarded as Kate Stoddard's husband when killed.

BEE RAISING.

Mrs. E. S. Tupper, of Des Moines, Iowa in a letter to the Department of Agriculture, suggests some good common sense thoughts upon this subject: "Within the last four years many women have turned their attention to bee-keeping as an occupaton—pleasant, easily managed and remunerative. We are glad to know that in every instance which has come to our knowledge success the most marked has attended the undertaking. From reports that have been made to us we condense the following instances: One young lady who had been teaching for several years, and whose health had failed, undertook the care of her father's bees, twelve colonies in number, that had never been profitably managed. Under her fostering care the first year they increased to thirty colonies; and the third year after she took them in charge she sold $1200 worth of honey, and had in the fall fifty-four colonies in good hives." She says:

'The time I devoted to them I did not miss, and the pleasure afforded me by the work was so great that I would enjoy it even if no profit was derived.' A widow of scanty means invested $50 in poor colonies, and about as much more for ten good hives for her own bees. She got the money back and $36 over. The second year she received $900 for honey sold, and had thirty strong colonies in the fall. The largest apiary in all the West is managed entirely by women, who rear for market Italian queens, at a large profit, besides producing honey in a wholesale manner. Miss Kate Grimm, of Jefferson, Wis., managed one of her father's apiaries of 180 colonies, which she soon doubled in number, and sold $2033 worth of honey one year, and $1694 worth the next. She is a school teacher, and says from her experience a person can earn ten times as much by keeping bees as by teaching school.

MISSES FOLEY.

A correspondent of the Boston Times writes as follows: Not a few persons seem to think that Professor Wise's declaration, that he will attempt to cross the ocean next month, is empty gasconade; that he has no serious intention of trying it. This is a mistake. Wise has been considering the idea, and studying aeronautics to that end for twenty years. He is convinced that he will accomplish the thing, and he is certainly tremendously in earnest. The Messrs. Goodsell, of The Daily Graphic, have entire faith, too, in the success of the enterprise, and many scientific men have likewise. So many humbugs, both here and in Boston, have threatened to cross the ocean, and made extensive preparations therefor, without starting, that I am not surprised that the public should feel skeptical in regard to Wise. I have every reason to believe that he means business, and moreover, I opine that, unless he have some special ill-luck, he will reach Europe in less than a hundred hours. I have often wondered that some merchant did not accomplished the journey long ago. It is eminently fitting that an American should be the pioneer in such atmospheric Transatlantic travel, though, in a few years, I imagine that crossing the ocean in a balloon will have become quite an ordinary affair.

—An enterprising dog in Utica secured samples from the clothing of eight lightning-rod agents within half an hour after a thunder storm the other day.

—A rattlesnake coiled itself about a negro boy in North Carolina, who was at work in a field, and killed him. When discovered the reptile was still biting the lifeless body.

—There is no object in nature which approaches in glory a peacock with its tail spread so nearly as a young lady with a new phaeton and a parasol on her whip handle.

—An old lady in Lancaster, Pa., had a funeral the other day in which three hundred carriages figured.

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells just because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserves to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic-rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing these certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Prices 50 cents, large bottle $1. J. B. Rose & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers need rest.

Importance of Healthy Blood.

Every drop of blood that circulates through the veins eventually becomes a solid particle of the body. Flesh, bone and muscle are merely solidified blood, and upon the quality of the blood depends the condition of the whole physical system. Unless the liquid material by which the human substance is renewed and sustained is pure and nutritious it is impossible that the body can be healthy and strong. One of the most important properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is that of improving the condition of the vital fluid when infected or impoverished. Acting directly and powerfully upon the stomach, in which the manufacture of the blood is commenced, and upon the liver which secretes a fluid next in importance to the stream of life itself, this powerful vegetable tonic and depurent has an immense indirect influence upon the circulation. Hence the extraordinary cures wrought by the Bitters in cases of general debility, malarious fevers, rheumatism, biliousness, constipation, &c.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and evaporate to the air, changes it into corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $2, by all Druggists. 688

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for invalids recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

It was a day in mid-summer;
The boiler had burst;
Four and thirty brave fellows
Lay mangled in the dust.

Our hearts melted with sorrow;
With lightning speed we sent,
Thinking only of the glad to-morrow,
If we found the Centaur Liniment.

Well, we found it at Lindsley's store, three miles away; but it did its work, saved pain, inflammation, and suffering.

The Centaur Liniment always does its work, whether it be for scalds, bruises, rheumatism, stiff joints or lameness.

But this is no as is an old story. Why will any suffer? Come all ye halt, lame and sore, and be healed for a dollar or fifty cents, and if you haven't that, then for nothing. We know what the Centaur Liniment is, and will warrant it every time.

Cripples throw away their crutches and leap for joy. Horses neigh for it. When Centaur Liniment comes in the front gate, pain flies out at the window

If you would sleep without pain, walk without limping—straighten out that crooked knee, use those rheumatic-distorted fingers, or get rid of a horrid neuralgia, just use the Centaur Liniment. (White wrapper.)

The other kind (yellow wrapper) is just as effective upon your lame horses and mules. A wonder, says one; a miracle, says another.

The article is selling as no other article ever sold, and it only sells because it cures. See the certificate around the bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.
SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.
H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:
Dear Sir.—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking the VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly,
THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of the Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

DYSPEPSIA.
SYMPTOMS.—Want of appetite, rising of food and bad breath, sour stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine. The mouth is clammy, or has a sour or bitter taste. Coated tongue, nausea, waterbrash, palpitation of the heart headache and dizziness of the senses, as seeing double, &c. There is general debility, languor, nervousness, dullness, dejection of the spirits, disturbed sleep and frightful dreams.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:
Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking VEGETINE about the middle of last winter and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine, to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 386 Athens Street.

New Hampshire's Birth Place,—Odiorne's Point.

PORTSMOUTH, JULY 15.

Editors Chronicle:—One place to which all the faithful should make at least one pilgrimage this season, is Odiorne's Point, the birth-place of New Hampshire. A tramp, the other day, brought us to this consecrated spot. Mr. Charles Odiorne, the proprietor of the place, kindly pointed out to us its interesting features, the site of the first house in New Hampshire, "Flake Hill," where our ancestors nimbly spread their cod to dry,—the spot covered also by the old fort. An innocent looking field it is that stretches where the latter once stood, but the plow driven through the soil turns up pieces of brick and pottery to confirm the old tradition. We took away like a reverent pilgrim a few bits of brick, and an enterprising dog pawing for woodchuck had brought to the surface a piece of brick large enough for any of our ancestors to have used for an effective missile against the Indians. Mr. Odiorne told us the specimens found there were of the large pattern of English brick, brought over the seas to the province.

Then we visited the old burying ground described in Ramble No. 2 of Mr. Brewster's first volume. In the centre, is the venerable tree he referred to. All about in their "narrow beds," designated by the rough stones sinking lower and lower every year into the ground, lie the ancient sleepers of the little colony. We were touched to notice near the old tree one little grave perhaps two and a half feet long. A child's grave, we thought, and many a year have the sturdy limbs overhead bent down toward it, through many a storm howling up from the sea, and protected it. We turned away and left behind us the old grave-yard, "Flake Hill," the site of the "Manor House" and the "Fort." Before us was the sea, a ring of sapphire broken here and there by the protruding shore ledges. Looking off, it would not have required much effort of the imagination to have seen the brawny fishers of the early provincial days nearing shore in their boats, and turning round to have found the Odiorne farm-house gone and the old "Manor House" and "Fort" rising up in their roughness and quaintness.

It seems to us fitting that there should be some distinctive celebration of New Hampshire's first settlement and on the spot, at Odiorne's Point. We did remember New Hampshire's birthday on the 4th, it is true, but something more distinctive, near those old graves, down by the sea, is needed. Couldn't there be what the Essex Institute terms a grand "field day," an open air gathering in the autumn at Odiorne's Point, with a historical address by some prominent citizen? Just go down to that memorable spot, reader, and you will catch our enthusiasm, perhaps come back blazing with more. Our companion in this pilgrimage, Frank W. Hackett, Esq., made an excellent suggestion that a monument should be put up at Odiorne's Point. Plymouth has its memorial stone, and why should not those old graves so near us? New Hampshire is fortunate in being able to detect so clearly the foot-prints of its early settlers. Let us mark them indelibly. If a monument should be put up, fitting literary exercises could be connected with it, and the whole affair be made a memorable one some time at least within a year. Why will not the N. H. Historical Society help this matter along? At any rate, Messrs. Editors go to Odiorne's Point and get a piece of brick. But while the place furnishes us with mementoes, let us not be satisfied with this but turn around and give Odiorne's Point a handsome memorial stone.

Ex-Gov. Goodwin's Speech.

As a matter of record, we publish to-day Hon. Ichabod Goodwin's speech on the Fourth of July, which was unintentionally omitted last week:—

The cordial welcome that has greeted you, ladies and gentlemen, on your return, can gain nothing from any words of mine. I know not that I can find anything more pertinent to say, than to speak to you as one of the older citizens of your old home, and to renew to you in their behalf what the civic authorities, the active youth, and the citizens at large, all have shown you—a plentitude of welcome.

We greet you, our hearts kindled with the love of parents for their children, of brothers and sisters, of neighbors, playmates and school companions, and freshened and kept aglow by all the associations of our early life.

I, who address you, well remember the conflict that filled the soul, when the hour came, to leave the paternal home, to seek a new one amid strangers, and though time may have efficed the sting of parting,—the new house having grown to be an old one, yet, I can well appreciate the feelings that burn in your bosoms to-day for I know that though oceans and continents separate us from the home of our childhood; though time sever us long from it; yet throughout life, whether in prosperity or in adversity, the mind will find itself straying off to take a look at the Father-land, and that the very thought of the old home, ever will work a deep emotion in the soul. We rejoice to see so many of you, not looking in imagination to the place of your nativity, but visiting it in person.

You come back to a home of which you may be proud, and we are proud to meet you at the old homestead, though it is not a place of great wealth, yet it is one of great moral worth, and great comfort, one where neighbor loves neighbor, where fraternal feeling largely prevails. We often boast, and with much truth, that there is no community of our population where the people are better clothed, fed and housed, than in Portsmouth and we boast of sending out as many from our homes, who have distinguished themselves in all the various vocations of life, and have done honor, not only to their native town, but to our country at large, as any other portion of the state; and no State of this union can make claim to sending abroad in our country more distinguished men, than New Hampshire.

Go where we may in this, our extended country, we find Portsmouth represented, and I am happy to day from experience and observation, there is no better passport, than to be known as a native of Portsmouth; and I have ever found existing among her sons, a strong feeling of brotherhood.

It is never asked of what family you are, or who your associates were, but it is sufficient that it be known that you are from old Portsmouth, to be received at once, as a brother and a friend, when the delightful reminiscences of happy days spent at the old home, are called up, and inquiries for the prosperity and happiness of those left behind.

Twenty years ago was inaugurated this beautiful idea, the returning of our sons to their native place. That was a glorious and memorable gathering at old Strawberry Bank. While we miss many faces that cheered us on that bright occasion, we may all look forward to a grand reunion of the sons and daughters, those who were with us then and those who gather now, in that world where there shall be no more separation or sorrow of parting, but all shall be assembled as one brotherhood in the presence of our Heavenly Father. Again and again I say, welcome home. We all rejoice to see you at the old homestead. Come again, come soon.

Laconics.

The old sign of Thomas & Tappan, mentioned in these columns a few days since, has the word "Stationery" spelt with an a as when signifying fixed or immovable,—while the style now-a-days is to spell Stationer's stock with an e.

A young business man of this city recently loaned his pleasure boat to a friend, who was to start off at a very early hour next morning on a down river excursion. At about midnight the owner of the boat, then snug in bed, recollected that he had forgotten to put oars in the boat according to agreement, and leaving the partner of his joys and sorrows sleeping peacefully, he went down to the wharf and made good his promise. Returning to his home he made the agreeable discovery that there was a big hole in his pantaloons pocket, and that the key with which he had proposed to let himself in was missing. Being unable to rouse his sleeping wife he was finally obliged to shin up the spout to a balcony, and after due explanation as to who he was, and what he was doing out there at that hour of the night, he was graciously allowed to climb in through a window. While disrobing he heard something drop, and stooping picked up the missing key. He says he didn't care a plum about barking his shins on his way up the spout, but he was awful mad when he found that key.

A Tribute of Memory

To Miss Mary Lizzie Lowd, who departed this life July 6th, 1873, at the residence of her brother, Capt. W. Q. Lowd.

The garland's dead, the lamp is fled,
The hall it brightened once is dark,
No shadows flicker on the walls
Once lighted by the vital spark.
But on the battlements of heaven,
A beacon light that spark will be,
To guide the freighted barks she loves,
O'er the surging waves of life's broad sea.
Another star is added now,
To grace the beauteous firmament;
Awhile it scintillated here,
Then went to God by whom 'twas lent.
Oh! gentle spirit, where art thou?
Didst leave for the far distant home,
Where loving hearts expectant wait,
To usher through the wide open gate,
Their cherished idol young and fair,
Their maiden with the auburn hair?
Ah, no! sad hearts, she ne'er will come,
No, never, never, nevermore,
But follow thou the beacon light,
Which glimmers on God's silvery shore,
And there triumphant thou will meet
Thy loved and lost at Jesus' feet.

F. A. H., in Jackson (Mississippi) paper.

Beautiful in life, in death beloved! The shadow of bereavement darkens the home she so dearly cherished, but clustering memories of kindly acts, of affectionate farewell, soften the overwhelming grief that pervades the heart of every friend whose fortune it was to know and love her. Ever fresh will be the tender recollections which each passing day recalls, which every association of the past almost unconsciously reveals. The path she walked "to us is hallowed ground."

And though the parting word be spoken,
The spell shall not be broken;
The warm and heartfelt greeting;
The sweet communion;
The charm that rests on river, sea and shore,
The hue of sky and flower,
These in the mystic wreath that Memory twines,
Shall be the fadeless flowers;
And thoughts of these glad hours
Shall blend with visions of a happier sphere
Than that which holds us here;
A summer land that lies far away;
Where late or soon
Our paths shall join, again
Divided nevermore.

—It costs $17.60 to throw rotten eggs against the side of your neighbor's house in Springfield. Walter Warriner had a quarrel with Henry P. Taylor relative to a hog (the quarrel, not Taylor, was relative to a hog,) and did feloniously and with malice aforethought defile the house of the latter with rotten eggs, for which offence he was arrested and fined as given above.

—The Rose Standish, in passing up Weir River on Saturday, came very near running down two clam diggers. They stepped aside, and were saved. The lowest tide of the year was Monday.

—"Pretty well," remarked the doctor's daughter, who took an interest in her father's purse and profession, when some one asked her how "things were going." "Plenty of colds, some bronchitis, and a little typhus fever; but, as father said yesterday, what we want to make things lively is a nice little epidemic."

—Mrs. Marion Walden, who has resided in Buffalo more than sixty years, died there on Monday, at the age of 79 years. She was the first lady in Buffalo who owned a piano, and, being a proficient player, was quite a marvel to the Indians and rough pioneers of early days.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE NO. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, by affixing the bill of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complainant before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE NO. 100.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 3. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

A POTATO-BUG STORY.

A sad case has just come to light in Braddockfields. A man residing here, who had a small field within the Fields, found himself and his little family surrounded by potato-bugs, with stripes up and down, and some of them crosswise. He tried all kinds of remedies, but the bugs snorted at him in scorn, and made hostile demonstrations. He was advised to try the tobacco cure. He did try it. He bought a paper of fine cut and commenced to chew it. It was his first effort at chewing. He went out and got a basket full of the bugs and squirted the tobacco juice in their eyes, and they snapped their tails and pawed around as if they were awful mad. He got away with about half of the paper of fine-cut when he commenced to grow white about the gills. He laid the basket that had the bugs in it down, and put his hand up to his forehead and found a cold sweat standing upon his brow. He said to his wife: "My dear I am pained to announce that I have the cholera. Fly if you would save yourself. Leave me to my fate, and seek safety in flight." And then he got so sick he couldn't contain himself or anything. His wife rushed away down to the Fields, and in a few moments had the whole borough in a fit about the cholera. He recovered but says he don't believe in exterminating potato-bugs, by tobacco juice.

A LUCKY AUTHOR.

An Ohio paper says that, in 1867, a boy left the manuscript of a novel called "White Rocks" with a Philadelphia publisher, who agreed, after examination, to publish the book and pay the author ten cents on every copy sold. The book has been sold to the extent of 170,000 copies, and the publishers held $17,000 for the author, but it has never been called for, nor has the boy ever been seen by the firm since the day the contract was effected. We have the very best reason for knowing that the concluding part of this statement is incorrect; for we happen to know the boy, who is now all of a man, mentally, that we could desire to associate with, although somewhat physically deficient, owing to his having left his leg on the field to Antietam. He did call on the publisher and realized $18,000 from the interview. Much good may the interest of that amount do him!

—A Danbury boy was on the stoop reading a murder trial, Saturday afternoon, when his father said to him: "How does the thermometer stand, Thomas?" "Unanimous for acquittal on the ground of insanity," was the mechanical reply.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above fuel, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL.
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

BOARDING-HOUSE WONDERS.

A carving knife that is not shaky in the handle, and which, on great persuasion, can be induced to cut.

A silver fork on which the precious metal is still extant, and which has its proper complement of prongs.

A chamber-looking glass which, if not propped up with your hair brush, never turns its back upon you when you go to shave.

A bath which does not leak, and a water jug that is not very dangerous to lift.

A (very) grand piano, whereof the keys don't rattle like the bones of negro minstrelsy, and whereof you can imagine, by a powerful flight of fancy, that the notes have in their infancy been ever heard in tune.

A door mat which is not provided with a hole to trip up all your visitors when they come to call.

A table-cloth or napkin without eleven holes in it.

A window that has not at the least one sash-cord broken, and that does not vibrate noisily with the very slightest breeze.

An easy chair which gives you an ease when sitting in it, and wherein you may take your usual after dinner nap without an apprehension of a castor coming off.

A tea-pot out of which, with excessive care and patience, you can contrive to pour a cupful without dropping the lid into it.

A sitting-room wherein, to avoid smoke suffocation, you need not keep both door and window open when you light the fire.

A minute in the day unmolested by an organ-grinder.

A window shade which you can manage to pull up, even to the very top, without a wrinkle, and then not find it come down with a rattle on your head.

A waiting maid who looks as if she sometimes used a nail brush.

A ceiling and a chimney ornament which are neither of them cracked.

A sofa at all softer than a hard deal board, and which has not its springs fractured exactly in the place whereon you want to sit.

A picture or engraving, hung up by way of ornament, which with any candor you can call a work of art.

A pair of decanters which are not an odd couple, and half a score of wine glasses any two of which will match.

A door which does not let a hurricane of draught through it, and which you can actually shut without a slam.

And, finally, a bed that you may go to without trembling, and a bill that you may pay without a fear of being fleeced.

WIRT AND WEBSTER'S WIT.

Daniel Webster was once engaged in the trial of a case in one of the Virginia courts, and the opposing counsel was William Wirt, author of the "Life of Patrick Henry," which has been criticized as a brilliant romance. In the progress of the case, Mr. Webster produced a highly respectable witness, whose testimony (unless disproved or impeached) settled the case and annihilated Mr. Wirt's client. After getting through the testimony, he informed Mr. Wirt, with a significant expression, that he was at his service. Mr. Wirt rose to commence the cross examination, but seemed for a moment quite perplexed how to proceed, but quickly assumed a manner expressive of his incredulity as to the facts elicited, and coolly eyeing the witness a moment, he said:—

"Mr. K., allow me to ask you if you have ever read a work called the 'Baron Munchausen?'"

Before the witness had time to reply, Mr. Webster quickly rose to his feet, and said:—

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Wirt, for the interruption; but there was one question I forgot to ask the witness, and if you will do me that favor, I promise not to interrupt you again."

Mr. Wirt, in the blandest manner, replied, "Yes, most certainly;" when Mr. Webster, in the most deliberate and solemn manner, said:—

"Sir, have you ever read Wirt's "Patrick Henry?"

The effect was irresistible, and even the Judge could not control his rigid features. Mr. Wirt himself joined in the momentary laugh, and turning to Mr. Webster said: "Suppose we submit this case to the jury without summing up," which was assented to, and Mr. Webster's client won the suit.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 840 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at each Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. cawjl

Readables.

A son of Woodbury Gooch, of Biddeford, was drowned on the 16th. He with two others went down the river in a boat to bathe. While in the water he was seen to act queerly and one of his companions went to his assistance; the latter, however, himself got into danger, being drawn under by Goodrich, and the third boy then going to the rescue with great difficulty saved him.

The Excursive Ladies.

After speaking of mountains, lakes, rivers, hills and valleys, houses, horses and men in complimentary terms, we should be untrue to our nature and better judgment did not we say that above everything else the forty ladies of the party gave grace, beauty and charm to the excursion.

CAPTURE OF A SEA LION.

[Biddeford Times.]

Early last week some of the people of Ogunquit observed a monster on Ogunquit beach, which after some maneuvering they succeeded in capturing getting it into a box and taking it to the Island Ledge House where the landlord, Mr. Worster, purchased the animal and now has him in an old gondola. It is supposed to be a sea lion, as it bears a strong resemblance to the sea lions Barnum exhibited in Saco. His estimated weight is near two hundred pounds.

A DRUNKEN RAM.

[Pueblo People.]

Two little boys and a little girl, while playing in the vicinity of Pueblo Brewery recently they attacked by a ram that has for a long time been the pest of that part of the city and were severely, though not dangerously, bruised. The ram had found his way to the beer tubs, drank until he was disgracefully drunk, and hence this shameful conduct, which resulted in his untimely end. Marshal Braden was the executioner.

GRASSHOPPERS.

[Greeley Tribune.]

The grasshopper is a singular bird. Like the mule he continually exhibits new freaks. A boy was fishing the other day, and becoming tired, he tied his line to a plank and left it dangling in the water. When he returned he found the grasshoppers sliding down the line and baiting the hook, while a thousand others were on the plank above, watching them.

Prognostic Astronomy.

The study of Astrology is not prejudicial to religion. It is full of the most sublime religious ideas, and its principle is accepted, at least if not borrowed, by the first and greatest of all religions. Thus prophecy accepts the basis of astrological direction, where it substituted a day for a year, as 1260 days for 1260 years. All interpreters of prophecy and Astrology agree in principle. When the three Astrologers came from the east to see the young Saviour, they had his star to guide them, and it guided them aright. Whether this was natural or miraculous it matters not. The Scriptures respect the idea of the astrological direction in the particular case alluded to,

All that we affirm is that there be many severe thrusts levelled at Astrologers; there is not one that is definitely pointed at Astrology, and there is nothing whatever in Astrology that contradicts any part of the Christian religion.

329 6th Ave. N. Y. PROF. LISTER.

KATE STODDARD.

[Providence Journal.]

A young gentleman, a native of Plymouth, Mass., now residing in this city, has furnished us with some interesting facts concerning the early life of Kate Stoddard, alias Lizzie Lloyd King, the confessed murderess of Mr. Goodrich, in Brooklyn. It appears that she lived in Plymouth with her parents during her school days, and was a schoolmate and playmate of the wife of our informant, who had been acquainted with her from a child, while he had "always known her." She was known in the town, and usually known by the name of "Betty Lloyd," and it was not until he saw her middle name, "Lloyd," given in our despatches of a day or two ago, that he recognized in the murderess an old acquaintance, a schoolmate of his wife, the sister of a former school-teacher in Plymouth, and the daughter of a respectable family then and now living there. Of her grade in school he does not recollect, as he graduated at the high school about the time she was admitted. He speaks of her at that time as being a quiet, modest, lady-like girl of fifteen or sixteen years, kind to all, but somewhat eccentric in manner, or as her schoolmates, and, in fact, the people of the town expressed, it "odd," "queer," "funny," and it was a common expression among the women, that "Betty Lloyd must be crazy," or "Betty Lloyd is crazy—I know she is," etc. She seemed to have a faculty and a love for making dresses for dolls, and all the young girls in the neighborhood found in her ready assistance in their little dressmaking troubles, which also elicited many remarks concerning her eccentricity, or rather sanity. When at the high school, she spent most of her time in corresponding in answer to advertisements, mostly with soldiers in the army, for which she seemed to have a perfect mania, she evidently being of a decidedly romantic turn of mind.

When she was about seventeen years old, seven or eight years ago, she ran away from home, the reason for which was at that time said to be a disappointment in love, which affected her mind. She was pursued and in a short time found, adjudged to be insane, and taken to an insane asylum, our informant thinks at Taunton. How long she remained there he does not know, nor does he know anything about her subsequent life, as he left Plymouth about that time. She learned to sew straw at Middleborough, where she had some relatives. Her father and mother are still living at Plymouth, the father's name being Isaac King. He is a mason by trade, and a hard-working, respectable man, and a regular attendant at the Advent Church there. Her mother is in ill-health, and it is doubtful if she survives the disgrace that has fallen upon her daughter. She has an elder sister, who, as stated above, was formerly a school teacher in Plymouth, and finally married a respectable young man in Boston, where she is still living, as far as our informant knows. She also has a younger sister, and the three of them were regarded at home as quiet, lady-like young women.

[Cor. Boston Advertiser.]

Lizzie Lloyd King came to Middleborough about six years ago, to work at Alden's straw works. She had been in an insane asylum a short time before, and it was on account of this that it was considered best for her to go to new work and new scenes. Nothing was known against her.

THE UTES.

[Denver Colorado Times.]

The Laramie Sentinel has arrived at the causes leading to the massacre of Utes at Rawlins, and the circumstances attending the same. At some races a few days previous the Indians won the white men's stock, and the latter organized a band to go and recapture it. This they did with the sheriff at their head, to make it legal, and they did it by shooting down in cold blood all the Indians in camp who did not save themselves by flight. They then returned to Rawlins telling big stories of an attack made upon them by the Indians.

We have no doubt but the Sentinel's report of the massacre is in the main true, and if so, the way to settle the matter is to turn the white men who committed the deed —the sheriff at their head—over to the Indians for punishment. When Indians who are at peace with us, kill whites, we insist upon the culprits being delivered to us; and as the Utes are entitled to no little consideration for their general good behavior, we would be in favor of doing exact and impartial justice by presenting them with the living bodies of the cowardly wretches who shot down their brethren.

THE LAST OF THE MODOCS.

Miller's Charley and Captain Jack's father-in-law surrendered on the 3d. Long Jim and his father have been captured by Charles Riddle. A brother of Schonchin has also been taken.

THE ENGLISH IDEA OF AMERICANS.

(Galaxy for June.)

The old-fashioned English observer has passed away, and has been succeeded in the inheritance by the modern English critic, a very different person, whom, it is difficult to describe, though we know him when we see him. He knows more than his progenitor, both about the world at large and himself, and he has been taught from his cradle up that the old fashioned system of English observation was wrong. He has learned that his progenitor and his progenitor's friend in Parliament made terrible mistakes during the rebellion in thinking they understood the American question; he finds it admitted on all hands that this is a great country with a great future before it. He finds a general disposition among his own countrymen to be as civil as circumstances will permit towards America, and he has learned from Carlyle to be earnest, and from Ruskin to be faithful in his work, and from Matthew Arnold that criticism must be full of sweetness and light. He is filled with an earnest desire to do right and to find out what he can about the United States from the best sources. Accordingly he consults our own press and studies the sayings and speeches of our great men, and the result is that he has reduced himself to a state of bewilderment that baffles description. He is given to understand for example, that this country which is so corrupt that Senators at Washington are able to rise in their places and announce that the way is paved for a Tiberius or a Napoleon, is at the same time so pure, that owners of newspapers decline to receive large amounts of money honestly due them for public advertising, and awarded them by a legal board, because they consider the way in which the board was constituted was—not illegal, but inexpedient on grounds of public policy; that it is a country in which the late Mr. Greeley was a literary light and a political guide, and at the same time it is a country in which his career was looked upon and talked of as a joke; that it is a country which, to a man, regards its late Vice President as a perjurer, and one Oakes Ames, a member of Congress, a corrupt scoundrel, and at the same time a country in which the same Vice President is honored as a Christian statesman, and the same Oakes Ames received an ovation in public celebration of his honesty; that it is a country without any taste or art of any kind, and at the same time a country with a national school of sculpture, a literature rich in poetry and prose of every kind, a stage on which the grandest Shakespearian acting takes place; and as for painting and music it can buy all it wants. We found the other day, in a leading English newspaper of no very philo-American tendencies, a statement that the Americans "are rapidly taking their place among the most luxurious and most cultivated people in the world." It possesses too the "American Gentleman," who, according to one account is simply a perfect type of a man, besides being a perfect man of the world, and having a wonderful faculty of acquiring foreign languages, but who, according to another account, is a simple boor with no education, morals or manners, and very mal vu in good society abroad. It has a press, too, which is, according to its own account, venal, unreliable and indecent, and which at the same time is the mainstay of society. Then there is the American girl and the American wife, and American family life—but on these subjects, we confess we are bewildered ourselves.

A NOISY DOGGY.

Hon. Caleb Cushing has entered a suit against Thomas Kelly, who resides on Fifteenth street, Washington. The following is a copy of the declaration filed in the case:—

The plaintiff complains of defendant for that, whereas, said defendant heretofore, to wit, residing in said city of Washington, D. C., at No. 825 Fifteenth street, did wrongfully and injuriously keep a certain dog, the said defendant well knowing that said dog was used and accustomed to bark continually by day and night, and that on Saturday, the 12th inst., the said defendant did then and there allow said dog to bark incessantly from early in the day through the whole day and night following, and did thereby hinder and prevent plaintiff from transacting his lawful affairs and business by day and deprived him of his sleep during the night, so as injuriously to affect his health and peaceful enjoyment of his property, and to the damage of the plaintiff to the amount of $1000.

The second count charges that the defendant keeps a certain dog, which is of a malicious and dangerous nature, which said fact was well-known to the defendant, and which constantly barks at passers-by on the street and rushes at them from the yard of said Kelley, and continually barks, not only on the street, but also in the yard both day and night, to the great disturbance and injury of the plaintiff, depriving him of his sleep by night, as well as interfering with his conversation, study and business in the day-time, thereby injuring the plaintiff in health and in the peaceful enjoyment of his property and damaging him to the amount of $3000; the plaintiff claims $4000 damages besides costs.

It appears that the dog in question belongs to Hon. Fernando Wood, and that all the agency Kelley has in the matter is occupying the residence of Mr. Wood during the recess.

THE RICE CURE.

Dr. Hall says that it ought to be generally known that ordinary boiled rice, eaten with boiled milk, is one of the best remedies known for any form of loose bowels. Its efficacy is increased if it is browned like coffee, and then boiled and eaten at intervals of four hours, taking no other food or liquid whatever; its curative virtue is increased if no milk is taken with it, and the patient will keep still in a warm bed; then it becomes an almost infallible remedy.

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells just because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserves to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing these certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Prices 50 cents, large bottle $1. J. B. Rose & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Importance of Healthy Blood.

Every drop of blood that circulates through the veins eventually becomes a solid particle of the body. Flesh, bone and muscle are merely solidified blood, and upon the quality of the blood depends the condition of the whole physical system. Unless the liquid material by which the human substance is renewed and sustained is pure and nutritious it is impossible that the body can be healthy and strong. One of the most important properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is that of improving the condition of the vital fluid when infected or impoverished. Acting directly and powerfully upon the stomach, in which the manufacture of the blood is commenced, and upon the liver which secretes a fluid next in importance to the stream of life itself, this powerful vegetable tonic and deputent has an immense indirect influence upon the circulation. Hence the extraordinary cures wrought by the Bitters in cases of general debility, malarious fevers, rheumatism, biliousness, constipation, &c.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $2, by all Druggists. 688

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and all persons interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE No. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substances, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as aforesaid, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complainant before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE No. 100.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 5. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

jy2 FRANK W. MILLER.

It was a day in mid-summer;
The boiler had burst;
Four-and-thirty brave fellows
Lay mangled in the dust.

Our hearts melted with sorrow;
With lightning speed we sent,
Thinking only of the glad to-morrow,
If we found the Centaur Liniment.

Well, we found it at Lindsley's store, three miles away; but it did its work, saved pain, inflammation, and suffering.

The Centaur Liniment always does its work, whether it be for scalds, bruises, rheumatism, stiff joints or lameness.

But this to us is an old story. Why will any suffer? Come all ye halt, lame and sore, and be healed for a dollar or fifty cents, and if you haven't that, then for nothing. We know what the Centaur Liniment is, and will warrant it every time.

Cripples throw away their crutches and leap for joy. Horses neigh for it. When Centaur Liniment comes in the front gate, pain flies out at the window

If you would sleep without pain, walk without limping—straighten out that crooked knee, use those rheumatic-distorted fingers, or get rid of a horrid neuralgia, just use the Centaur Liniment. (White wrapper.)

The other kind (yellow wrapper) is just as effective upon your lame horses and mules. A wonder, says one; a miracle, says another.

The article is selling as no other article ever sold, and it only sells because it cures. See the certificate around the bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir.—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking the VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly,

THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of the Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPTOMS.—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of fullness in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine. The medicine, which has a tonic or bitter taste. Other frequent symptoms are waterbrash, palpitation of the heart, headache and disorders of the senses, as seeing double, &c. There is general debility, languor, and aversion to motion; depression of the spirits, disturbed sleep and frightful dreams.

FEEL MYSELF A NEW MAN.

NATICK, MASS., June 1, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—Through the advice and earnest persuasion of Rev. E. S. Best, of this place, I have been taking VEGETINE for Dyspepsia, of which I have suffered for years. I have used only two bottles, and already feel myself a new man. Respectfully yours,

DR. J. W. CARTER.

What I Know About Vegetine.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 9, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking VEGETINE about the middle of last winter and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine, to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 336 Athens Street.

Drawing for Medals.

Messrs. Editors:—I noticed one thing in the exhibition of the Girls' High School, that to me was an unpleasant feature. I refer to the drawing, by lot, of the Haven prizes. Now if three or four, as is the case in these classes, are justly entitled to the prize, then it is an injustice for one to receive a medal, and the two or three others only honorable mention and blanks. Now it is an injustice, as it destroys or greatly impairs the object sought by the donor,—to create an emulation for good scholarship and deportment, for after all the reward depends upon lot. Now I do not blame the school committee or any one else for this matter, for the committee follow directions, and present a medal to the deserving one in each class specified. It seems to me that some way should be devised whereby, when a case like the present arises, that each one of the deserving ones should receive a like medal. It is not the intrinsic value of the medal the pupils look at, but something they can point to in after time and say "I won that." Let the medals be made at less cost, or the city make an appropriation, or by subscription, so that all deserving ones may receive a medal. DOT.

Manhattan Square.

A very pretty compliment has been paid the New Yorkers in the changing of the barbarous name of "Haymarket Square" to "Manhattan Square," a compliment which the New Yorkers well deserve for their efforts in making the celebration of the Fourth a grand success. Presuming that the articles in your paper have emanated from some petite minds from my own city, Boston, I wish to apologize for the publicity with which they expressed their own views and to assure our Portsmouth and New York friends that Bostonians have no other feeling in this matter, than one of inexpressible pleasure in knowing that our brothers and sisters in New York have left behind them pleasant memories, and that the honor conferred on them in naming that beautiful square "Manhattan," is only an evidence that the glorious associations of the reunion of 1873 will be made historical in the name of "Manhattan Square."

BOSTONIAN.

Portsmouth Thrilled.

["Dot," in Keene Sentinel.]

This Re-union has been a grand success, and old Portsmouth thrills all through with it. It is a grand idea; would that other towns and cities would go and do likewise. Portsmouth has reason to be proud of the body of men that were represented by her "Sons." I doubt whether another city in the Union can in proportion to her size show her equal in this respect. Said a business man to me, "If the money and business tact that had appeared in the New York delegation alone was put back into our city it would double its business in two years."

P. D. o M. P.

[Portsmouth Times.]

It is said that a petition is to be circulated which will undoubtedly be numerously signed, asking the Board of Mayor and Aldermen to change the name of Puddle Dock to Manhattan Pool.

Laconics.

The annual exhibition of the Kittery High School will take place this (Friday) evening at 7 1-2 o'clock, in the M. E. church in that town. The exercises will consist of music, reading of compositions, declamations, songs, award of diplomas, addresses, etc. The Kittery people look for a fine exhibition, Mr. Dustin (the principal of the school) being an excellent teacher, and the scholars showing marked improvement under his tuition.

A case of small pox has been discovered on South Mill street. Mrs. Chas. F. Adams being the victim. The family have been removed to Island hospital.

The noon train between Boston and Bangor on the Eastern Railroad will commence running on Monday, July 21. There will also be a new train run over this road, leaving Portland for Boston each day at five minutes past one o'clock. At Portland all trains are to run directly into the Eastern depot, both from the Maine Central and Eastern Railroads. The officers of the Eastern road are being reappointed to similar positions on the new line, and improvements are in progress everywhere.

A young son of Mr. J. Sullivan Rand was run over by a team on Thursday.

There are only five railroad companies north of Virginia and east of Ohio that operate a larger number of miles of railroad than the Eastern. The five are the Erie, and New York Central of New York; the Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia and Reading, of Pennsylvania; and the Baltimore and Ohio of Maryland. The Eastern Railroad company operates 596 miles of road between Boston and Bangor, of which 408 are in the State of Maine.

Mayor Marvin has been chosen President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, we are glad to say. And we should be much more pleased were the Mayor to be chosen President of the Board of Trustees having charge of the Public Library.

In our report of the Exhibition of the Girls' High School on Wednesday morning we unintentionally omitted that portion of it relating to the Valedictory. The subject was an original composition, entitled "Our Mission of Life," and the author, Miss E. J. V. Magraw, is entitled to high praise for the fine manner in which she delivered it as well as for the literary merit of the production. In fact we may claim for Miss Magraw an evidence of ability second to none in her class. In connection with this instance of omission we wish to take occasion to compliment the teacher of the Girls' High School in the matter of exhibitions, and assure him that no better evidence is wanted of faithful labor and assiduous painstaking than that developed at the Exhibition above alluded to. Of course, it was not free from minor faults, yet above them all it was plainly apparent that there had been much toil and care bestowed upon the minds of the sixteen fair damsels who formed the graduating class. REP.

THE MOON.

The astronomer knows that the surface of the moon is exposed during the long lunar day, lasting a fortnight of our terrestrial time, to the rays of a sun as powerful as that which gives us our daily heat. Without an atmosphere to temper the sun's heat as ours does,—not, indeed, by impeding the passage of the solar rays, but by bearing aloft the cloud-veil which the sun raises from our oceans,—the moon's surface must become intensely hot long before the middle of the lunar day. Undoubtedly the want of an atmosphere caused the moon's heat to be rapidly radiated away into space. It is our atmosphere which causes a steady heat to prevail on our earth. And at the summits of lofty mountains, where the atmosphere is rare, although the midday heat is intense, yet so rapidly does the heat pass away that snow crowns forever the mountain heights. Yet although the moon's heat must pass away even more rapidly, this does not prevent the heating of the moon's actual surface any more than the rarity of the air prevents the Alpine traveller from feeling the action of the sun's direct heat even when the air in shadow is icily cold. Accordingly, Sir John Herschel long since pointed out that the moon's surface must be heated at lunar midday—or rather, at the time of lunar mid-heat, corresponding to about two o'clock in our afternoon—to a degree probably surpassing the heat of boiling water.

Such, in point of fact, has now been proved to be the case. The Earl of Rosse has shown, by experiment which need not here be described, that the moon not only reflects heat to the earth (which of course must be the case), but that she gives out heat by which she has been herself warmed. The distinction may not perhaps appear clear at first to every reader, but it may easily be explained and illustrated. If, on a bright summer's day, we take a piece of smooth, but not too well polished metal, and by means of it reflect the sun's light upon the face, a sensation of heat will be experienced; this is reflected sun-heat; but if we wait while so holding the metal until the plate has become quite hot under the solar rays, we shall recognize a sensation of heat from the mere proximity of the plate to the face, even when the plate is so held as not to reflect sun-heat.

We can in succession try,—first, reflected heat alone, before the metal has grown hot; next, the heat which the metal gives out of itself when warmed by the sun's rays; and lastly, the two kinds of heat together, when the metal is caused to reflect sun-heat, and also (being held near the face) to give out a sensible quantity of its own warmth. What Lord Rosse has done has been to show that the full moon sends earthwards both kinds of heat; she reflects solar heat just as she reflects solar light, and she always gives out the heat by which her own surface has been warmed.

But after all, the most interesting results flowing from the recent researches are those which relate to the moon herself. We cannot but speculate on the condition of a world so strangely circumstanced that a cold more bitter than that of our Arctic nights alternates with a heat exceeding that of boiling water. It is strange to think that the calm looking moon is exposed to such extraordinary vicissitudes. There can scarcely be life in any part of the moon—unless it be underground life, like that of the Modoc Indians (we commend this idea especially to the more ardent advocates of the Brewsterian idea respecting other worlds than ours.) And yet there must be a singularly active mechanical process at work in yonder orb. The moon's substance must expand and contract marvellously as the alternate waves of heat and cold pass over it. The material of that crater-covered surface must be positively crumbled away under the effects of these expansions and contractions. The most plastic terrestrial substances could not long endure such processes, and it seems altogether unlikely that any part of the moon's crust is at all plastic. Can we wonder if from time to time astronomers tell us of apparent changes in the moon—a wall sinking here, or a crater vanishing elsewhere? The wonder rather is that the steep and lofty lunar mountains have not been shaken long since to their very foundations.

WHITEFIELD'S
NEW VIEWS OF PORTSMOUTH.

THESE views have been taken within the last six weeks, are highly finished in India ink, and show Portsmouth as she is in 1873. One view is taken from the North Pond and the other from the South.

Every son of Portsmouth should carry back with him copies of these beautiful pictures, which can be obtained at Foster's bookstore and Burleigh's picture store on Congress street, also at Montgomery's, 23 Market Street.

Only a limited number have been issued.

They are of two different sizes.

Should the large copies be selected, they will be sent, carefully packed, to any part of the United States free of expense.

EARLY PEACHES AND VEGETABLES.

It has often been observed among human beings that whenever either the mental or bodily systems mature early, the individual is seldom so healthy as those which mature in the average, or, as we may say, regular way. It seems to be the same with vegetation. The front of a tree which has its bark injured, or is in any way diseased, will generally ripen a little earlier than the same kind of fruit on a tree which is in perfect health. This is well known to intelligent fruit-growers, and the knowledge is taken advantage of sometimes to produce extra early fruit. A ring of bark is taken off below where the fruit is to ripen, and in this way the maturity of the fruit is hastened. Many persons astonish their friends by extra early fruit which was ripened in this way.

It is the same principle in many early varieties of fruit and vegetables, although not generally recognized; and thus many persons are led to deceive themselves and then the public. A tomato plant, perhaps, ripens its fruit in advance of other plants close by, and the owner thinks he has a prize. But in reality the plant was diseased, and because of the disease it was precocious. He saves the seed and sows the plants alongside of some others, and the progeny, carrying the hereditary taint, will fruit earlier; and thus he is, he feels, warranted in pushing his extra kind. But even disease wears out in time. Nature has a horror of perpetuating diseased races. Some either die out altogether, or they regain their original health. In this way the "early" kind of fruit or vegetable soon dies out, and the way is thus open for a continual succession of new kinds.

This is the explanation of what otherwise would be a very curious circumstance. There have been every few years, during the past generation or two, scores of new fruit or vegetables introduced which were said to be days, or it might be weeks, earlier than anything which went before; and to-day our earliest vegetables and fruits are little if any earlier than the kinds famous in the days of our grandparents.

People are beginning to recognize this fact in fruit culture now, more than they did years ago. The Hale's early peach has had much to do with this knowledge. It was found some years ago to be ten days earlier than any other. But after it got into general culture it was found to be more liable to rot than any other kind. But more than this, it was found that it was not always ten days earlier. There came to be much difference in the reported times of ripening from different locations. In some it was very little earlier than the Early Tillotson. But on further observations it was found that its tendency to rot was in proportion to the earliness with which the fruit ripened.

These facts are all now so conclusively proven that we hardly look for extra hardiness, healthiness, or performance in extra early varieties. They serve a useful purpose for a few years, like any other prodigy, but soon die out.

IF WE HAD BUT A THOUSAND.

The Atlanta Herald advises a man who has $1,000 to establish a hennery near that city, and depicts his glorious prospect, thus affording a most remarkable instance of counting one's chickens before the eggs are even laid: "With $300 he can purchase 1,000 good hens; an additional $50 will buy him 100 cocks. Let him then rent a good piece of grassy land near the city, and expend $40 in fixing up chicken coops, nests and fencings. If he can with the balance of his money purchase a cheap horse and a second-hand wagon, he is ready for business. His hens will furnish him at a low estimate an average of 600 eggs a day the year round, though, for certain purposes, let us say, fifty dozen per day. He can secure steady sale for them at an average of 17 cents per dozen, or $8.50 per day, or, in round figures, $3,000 a year. The food of these fowls may be liberally put at $250 per annum, and, with the little garden patch, which should be cultivated, the bee hives, which should fringe the house, the cow that should be carefully attended to, the man and his family could easily live on $1,000 a year. Putting his rent at $200 cash per annum, one would have profits of $1,500—quite a handsome thing. "The man with a thousand dollars,' is really affluent, if he only knows it."

TO STOP THE RAVAGES OF MOTHS.

Camphor will not stop the ravages of moths in carpets after they commence eating. Then they pay no heed to the presence of camphor, cedar or tobacco. A good way to conquer them is to take a coarse crash towel and wring it out of clean water. Spread it smoothly on the carpet, then iron it dry with a good hot iron, repeating the operation on suspected places, and on those least used. It does not injure the color or the pile of the carpet in the least, as it is not necessary to press hard, heat and steam being the agents, and they do the work effectually on worms and eggs. Then the camphor will doubtless prevent the future depredations of the miller.

SUN PRINTING ON FRUIT.

Boys and girls, if you wish to astonish any members of the family, or any coming guests by some day allowing them to discover their initials neatly printed on a pear, peach or apple, as it hangs on its branch, this is the way to carry out your plan. Just before the fruit ripens, cut the desired letters from a sheet of thin tough paper; then paste them on the side of the fruit most exposed to the sun; and when in course of time you remove the paper from the ripe surface you will find the letters distinctly marked upon it.

—Raspberries are said to give a rich red color to the blood of those who eat them. It first manifests itself in the nose, and several confirmed berry eaters have been expelled from Good Templar lodges owing to ignorance and superstition.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Families and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LAYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cope the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier,

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

ARGUMENTUM AD HOMINEM.

[Harper's Magazine for August.]

The style of persuasion that obtains in the outlying settlements of our beloved country may be inferred from the following scene that occurred recently at the Union Railway ticket office at Denver. A rough looking man purchased through mistake a ticket for New York via the Kansas Pacific line when he wanted to go over the Union Pacific. He did not discover the mistake until after the ticket had been paid for, and on asking the agent to change it the latter refused to do so.

"You won't change this ticket, then, won't you?"

"No," replied the agent; "you have your ticket, and I have the money for it, and if you want a ticket over the other route you will have to buy it."

Very quietly the stranger twisted his ticket into a small roll, very serenely drew from under his coat tail a six-shooter, coolly stuck the twisted ticket into the muzzle thereof, and sticking the pleasant-looking thing through the little square window of the ticket-office almost in the agent's face, and speaking in a tone that left no doubt of his determination, said, "Stranger, that's that ticket; take it yourself and change it, or by the great horn spoon I'll blow it clean through you." It was changed with cheerful alacrity, and the traveller per Union Pacific walked away, saying, "I jest thought I could induce him to change his mind a little."

—A New York sawdust swindler who calls himself Koontz takes a new tack in his "confidential circular" and goes so far as to say, "Should you betray me I will find means to be avenged in a way perhaps you would not dream of."

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 840 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Pa., Boston, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the work.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. ow jl

Readables.

The judgment of the court of inquiry at Halifax on the loss of the steamship City of Washington, has rendered judgment suspending Captain Phillips' certificate.

The culminating event of regatta week, the university race, took place yesterday on the Connecticut River at Springfield. Through some unexplained blunder, Harvard was announced as the winner and the trophies were awarded accordingly, but soon afterward it appeared that Yale was victorious, with the Wesleyan crew second and Harvard third. The freshman race was also won by Yale, Amherst being second and Harvard last. The foot-race for the Bennett cup was handsomely won by D. E. Bowie of McGill University, Canada. In the base-ball match between the Harvard and Brown freshmen, the former won by a score of 31 to 30.

The people of Omaha are much incensed at the gamblers of that vicinity, some of whom made a murderous assault on a brakeman who exposed their rascalities on a railroad train. A citizen's committee has been appointed, and it is plainly announced that unless proper protection is afforded against the blacklegs' resort will be had to summary measures.

Hon. Reuben A. Chapman, Chief Justice of Massachusetts, died in Switzerland on the 28th of June, at the age of 72 years.

The Boston & Maine Railroad has served a formal demand on the Maine Central for a connection at Portland before the 27th of July.

Men who are always "roughing it."—File makers.

The Springfield Union thinks that one of the most amusing sights is that of a pretty and elegantly dressed young lady, standing in a mudpuddle in the rear of a street-car, from which she has just alighted, and calling frantically to her pet poodle to "come back, you awful thing, and let that horrid yellow dog alone," and in the next breath beseeching the driver to wait till she can get her "darling dog."

State News.

As Mr. Jacob Young was unloading hay in the barn of Mr. William Wiggin at Littleworth, he accidentally slipped and fell from the top of the load down to the barn floor, fracturing the bone of one thigh. It was a bad break and difficult to get at, but the bone was set, and in a couple of months or so, Mr. Young will probably be able to be about again.

Ex-Mayor Bond of Dover, one of the originators of "Bond's Boston crackers," is seriously ill, and it is feared that he may not recover.

Charles Elliott of Chichester disappeared from his home about two weeks ago, and all efforts to discern any traces of him have been unsuccessful. There are various theories as to the cause of his absence.

John Lane, who died recently at Tilton, had fiddled for nearly 60 consecutive years in the Congregational choir.

In Exeter on Wednesday morning, as the wife of T. B. Hoyt, the proprietor of Hoyt's Hotel in that town, was driving in a carriage, on turning a corner she was thrown to the ground, and in falling broke her leg near the ankle in two places.

The lightning was particularly attentive to Mr. Samuel F. Cummings, of Brookfield, a few days ago. It began by striking his potato patch, where it destroyed an eigth of an acre, after which it struck the house, some of the fluid passing through the arms of Mrs. Cummings. At the same time it struck Mr. Cummings in the stomach, causing him to drop a tin dipper out of his hand, and paralyzed two of the fingers of his right hand, so that he did not get over the effects of the shock for two days.

A farmer in Pelham, was greatly interested in a conflict on his premises, a few days ago, between a hen which had charge of a brood of chickens and a large striped snake. The snake evidently had a desire for a tender chicken, and had invaded the brood for this purpose, and created great excitement. The mother hen made a loud outcry, and at the approach of the reptile flew at it with ruffled feathers and threatening beak, which its adversary evaded as best it could, but finally after repeated efforts to secure a chicken and as many rebuffs by biddy, it crawled off into a wall, and the frightened and enraged bird clucked a retreat and got away without loss of a single member of her family. But the snake was spared for execution at the hands of the farmer, who not fancying such a disturber of the peace in his vicinity, hunted it in the wall, and the result was it will seek no more spring chickens.

Two partners in a large retail grocery store in Newport have "fallen out." The senior advertises the junior as having left his employ, and forbids all persons trusting him on his account. The other retorts by another advertisement denying the above, and inviting his friends to call on him at his store, and creditors to bring in their bills. Night comes, and a locksmith is summoned by number one to change the lock with a view to dispossessing number two. The latter objects, and so emphatically as to necessitate the summoning of two policemen to eject him, and the lock is successfully changed. Number two in the morning procures the arrest of number one and the policemen above named, for damages, and there the matter rests at present.

THE GOODRICH MURDER.

Lucette Myers states that Roscoe had more than once threatened to kill Goodrich. She stated, also, that part of Kate Stoddard's confession is false, especially where Kate says that she killed Goodrich Thursday morning when Goodrich actually was with her [Lucette] all Thursday afternoon and did not leave her until nine o'clock Thursday evening. Mary Hanley, the female detective, has left town in search of Roscoe.

THE RISKS OF THE ROWING-MEN.

["Blaikie," in Harper's Magazine, for August.]

The researches of Dr. John E. Morgan, physician of the Manchester Royal Infirmary, as described in his recent and very exhaustive work, University Oars, are most valuable connection. In 1869 he wrote to the 255 men then living who had rowed in any of the English inter-university races, getting replies from 251, and through the friends of most of the thirty-nine who had died he had also word, what he asked being, in substance, "Whether the training and exertion demanded of those who take part in the university boat-race are of so trying a character that in numerous instances the constitution is liable to be permanently injured?" He found that seventeen either described themselves, or were spoken of by their relatives and friends, as having suffered to something like the following extent: Of six of those now dead—five from consumption and one from heart disease—there is, at least, grave doubt whether their over exertion in boat-racing was the predisposing cause. Of five cases of supposed injury, one who rowed too young found a pain soon after in the apex of his heart, though he says he can now walk ten or twelve miles without any trouble, and has preached two sermons almost every Sunday for twenty years; still his heart is weak, though he has no organic disease. Three others did suffer, and seriously, from overrowing, the heart of one and the lungs of another becoming very much injured in a way almost directly traceable to it. Three more rowed when, from some ailment, they were not in fit condition to do so, and seem never to have been rid of the ill effects of their imprudence. Of the remaining three, all appeared to fare well during their rowing years; but the inactivity of a sedentary life since has brought the disorder of stomach in two, and of heart and liver in one, which they might have naturally expected from such a complete change in their mode of life, though vigorous exercise has since set one of them all right again. Dr. Morgan finds, too, that the longevity of the earlier Varsity oars compares quite favorably with that of less athletic men otherwise similarly circumstanced. Being first sure that the rower has no constitutional defect, waiting till he is at least twenty, training him carefully and thoroughly, and considerably abbreviating the ordinary racecourses, would go far, he thinks, toward avoiding the dangers mentioned. But which of these would have saved Renforth, or would help us to discover why he died when he did, and not earlier, for instance?

Again, while rowing allows and even invites a man to strip and let the sun in at his body—no trifling benefit, by the way—and while it tends to not only generally harden him, but often to make him almost amphibious, it is doubtful if it begins to be as beneficial as many another forms of exercise. There seems to be an idea prevalent among persons not familiar with it that it expands the chest, but they are quite mistaken. A man may row for a life-time, and find his chest not one inch larger for so doing. When oarsmen have broad chests, they will we think, be found to have gotten them by some other means than rowing. Broad backs they can get, and probably will, until they soon look and are too broad for their chests—we mean not really their chests, but what is ordinarily called so, the front of the chest.

Nor does the average Briton seem to run as great risks from rowing as the average American, though neither begins to seize upon the facilities he might have for either fitting himself for it, or knowing its rightful place in his physical education. The former early accustoms himself to the downright hard work of foot-ball, and hare and hounds, wrestling and running, and by the time he is fifteen he is not only well grown, but also well developed, and often shows himself up to hard racing while yet at school, and before he is old enough for the university at all, while in the next few years he broadens and ripens into the well-set, sturdy representative of his country, so well-known all the world over.

But the American boy starts in with tops and marbles, plays base-ball some, skates a little, and generally, at least if city bred, finds himself at fifteen slender, or at least thin, very likely studying too much, and anything but fit for vigorous and sustained bodily effort. If he goes to college, he finds, on arriving there, one set of fellows working with all their might to get ready for the coming season on the ball field, and another for the river. If inclined to outdoor sports, he falls in with one or the other and, as the end they work for is near and plain, works well, and in parts where he will need strength on his parade day soon has it. But when a year or a few years older, what good has this temporary and partial development brought him? He is very likely to find, with the leaving off his work, that his muscles are weakening and growing smaller, and, especially, if he has over-rowed or rowed hard when out of condition, that his heart is also somewhat out of order, and that his chest, which was never really strong, is not so now. At the gymnasium he attended while at college, or before reaching there, he found for an instructor some man likely enough a graceful gymnast or good boxer, but who had very crude notions of what each of his pupils needed to keep down effort with the parts already strong, encourage it with those that were weak, and round and harden each one into a symmetrical and well-knit man, good for almost any sort of physical test he might ever be called on to stand.

THE EMPEROR WILLIAM'S HEALTH.

[Berlin Letter.]

The most, as well as the worst, that can be said about the Emperor's health is that he is reaching an age at which his friends must be prepared for an event. As I telegraphed you two days ago, the rumors about his dangerous illness were unfounded. He is living quietly at Potsdam, and performing with great punctuality his accustomed work; and he hopes early in July to go to Ems. It is not generally known, but it is true, that he fainted in his apartments at Babelsburg some two weeks since, and though he is fully recovered in body, his mind seems to have suffered a shock, of which traces now and then appear. He is less patient with his friends. He is keenly irritated at slight disappointments, especially in public affairs, and he shows in other ways the growing nervousness peculiar to old age. This is, I believe, the substance of what may be said about the case. A regency is hardly yet a political possibility. The mention of such a scheme would not be tolerated by the Emperor, and might accelerate a crisis in his condition. But the most significant proof that Prince Bismark does not mean to be taken by surprise, is the fact, now beyond dispute, that he has made his peace with the Crown Prince. The overtures came from the chancellor himself. The appointment of Count Minister, a personal friend of the Crown Prince, as ambassador to England, was interpreted at the time as a concession to the necessities of the situation; and it is possible that, with a view to flattering his future master, the Prince may have suggested, in his suave manner, that in certain contingencies it might be expedient to appoint a regent, etc. That the rumor about a regency never had any more substantial basis, I am convinced.

HEROISM IN THE HARTZ MOUNTAINS.

An accident has recently occurred in the Hartz Mountains which tends to prove that heroism is not a lost quality. The hero was an American, Mr. Tatham, one of a party of student excursionists from the Prussian school of mines, who had gone up to visit the spot well known as the ball-room of the Weirds, the same that Goethe introduces with such effect in his drama. It was nearly dark when they looked down into the pit, and one of the party, a German named Krawel, somehow lost his footing and was precipitated down the precipire at the edge of which his companions were standing, into the depth below, where all sight of him was lost. His comrades dispersed to find help, but it proved too late in the day, and their dismay was intensified when they missed Mr. Tatham, who was supposed to have perished in a vain attempt to rescue Krawel. At dawn the other students were on the spot with plenty of aid, and to their surprise saw the gleam of a small fire far below in the pit into which their comrade had fallen. It turned out Mr. Tatham had managed to scramble down after the fallen man by the aid of bushes and rocks, and finding him, though terribly bruised, still alive and partly sensible, had tended him through the night, covering him with his own clothes and keeping up a fire of sticks both against the cold and as a signal for aid from above. Although the height down which Herr Krawel fell, or more properly rolled, is reported to be over two hundred feet, he had broken no limb and was making a good recovery at last accounts.

HUMORS OF THE TELEGRAPH.

[Harper's Magazine for August.]

Not long since a countryman came into a telegraph office in Bangor, Maine, with a message, and asked that it be sent immediately. The operator took the message as usual, put his instrument in communication with its destination, ticked off the signals upon the key, and then according to the rule of the office, hung the message-paper on the hook with others that had been previously sent, that at night they might all be filed for preservation. The man lounged around some time, evidently unsatisfied.

"At last," says the narrator of the incident, "his patience was exhausted, and he belched out, 'Ain't you going to send that dispatch?' The operator politely informed him that he had sent it. 'No, yer ain't,' replied the indignant man; 'there it is now on the hook.'"

So far as the exact use of language was concerned, the man was right. Still more ludicrous mistakes sometimes occur. Thus the German papers reported that at Carlsruhe, toward the close of the late war, an aged mother came to the telegraph office, carrying a dish full of sauerkraut, which she desired to have telgraphed to Rastadt. Her son must receive the kraut by Sunday. The operator could not convince her that the telegraph was not capable of such a performance. "How could so many soldiers have been sent to France by telegraph?" she asked, and finally departed grumbling.

Almost every operator meets with equally amusing instances. One recently related the following incident: "A gentleman came to my office to send a message, and after writing it, waited, as people often do at small offices, to see it sent. I called 'Office,' and the operator at the other end of the line came to the key, and said, 'Busy—wait a minute.' So I leaned back in my chair to wait, when the gentleman said, 'Have you sent it?' I said, 'No; they say they are busy—to wait a minute;' whereupon he said, looking surprised, 'Why I didn't hear them;' and then added, brightening up, as if he had thought of the reason, 'but I'm a little deaf in one ear!' I think I managed to keep a straight face till he left, but it was hard work."

ASTONISHING MONSTROSITY.

[Boston Transcript.]

Among the many curiosities presented to the physician by nature and disease, few reach the notice of the general public, while objections of the family often prevent the physician in attendance from acquainting even the profession with subjects valuable to the student and to medical science. It is our present purpose to call attention to the case of a colored child in South Lancaster, Mass., two years of age, whose head has been gradually enlarging since its birth, until it now measures twenty-two inches from ear to ear over the top of the head, some twenty-eight inches around the head at the forehead, and weighs, it is believed, twenty pounds. In its present condition the body is wasted to the merest skeleton, much deformed, and partially paralyzed; but the features of the face are well preserved and not uncomely. To those interested in medical science this case presents food for investigation which should be immediately availed of, as its life cannot last long. Death has been daily expected for the year past.

—The Hartford Times says: By our report of Connecticut patents, this week, it seems that our solemnly-funny fellow-citizen: "Mark Twain," has actually secured a patent from the patent office—and for what? It is for a new idea in scrap-books! Well—he is entitled to his patent; for we never found a new idea in "one o' them things," yet!

—The law prohibiting the inter-marriage of blacks and whites still exists and is still enforced in Nebraska.

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells just because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserves to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures including frozen limbs, chronic-rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing these certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Prices 50 cents, large bottle $1. J. B. Rose & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sheep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Importance of Healthy Blood.

Every drop of blood that circulates through the veins eventually becomes a solid particle of the body. Flesh, bone and muscle are merely solidified blood, and upon the quality of the blood depends the condition of the whole physical system. Unless the liquid material by which the human substance is renewed and sustained is pure and nutritious it is impossible that the body can be healthy and strong. One of the most important properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is that of improving the condition of the vital fluid when infected or impoverished. Acting directly and powerfully upon the stomach, in which the manufacture of the blood is commenced, and upon the liver which secretes a fluid next in importance to the stream of life itself, this powerful vegetable tonic and depurent has an immense indirect influence upon the circulation. Hence the extraordinary cures wrought by the Bitters in cases of general debility, malarious fevers, rheumatism, biliousness, constipation, &c.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $2, by all Druggists. 688

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 686

It was a day in mid-summer;
The boiler had burst;
Four and-thirty brave fellows
Lay mangled in the dust.

Our hearts melted with sorrow;
With lightning speed we sent,
Thinking only of the glad to-morrow,
If we found the Centaur Liniment.

Well, we found it at Lindsley's store, three miles away; but it did its work, saved pain, inflammation, and suffering.

The Centaur Liniment always does its work, whether it be for scalds, bruises, rheumatism, stiff joints or lameness.

But this to us is an old story. Why will any suffer? Come all ye halt, lame and sore, and be healed for a dollar or fifty cents, and if you haven't that, then for nothing. We know what the Centaur Liniment is, and will warrant it every time.

Cripples throw away their crutches and leap for joy. Horses neigh for it. When Centaur Liniment comes in the front gate, pain flies out at the window

If you would sleep without pain, walk without limping—straighten out that crooked knee, use those rheumatic-distorted fingers, or get rid of a horrid neuralgia, just use the Centaur Liniment. (White wrapper.)

The other kind (yellow wrapper) is just as effective upon your lame horses and mules. A wonder, says one; a miracle, says another.

The article is selling as no other article ever sold, and it only sells because it cures. See the certificate around the bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken fifteen dollars' worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking the VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly,

THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of the Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPTOMS.—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine. The mouth is clammy, or has a sour or bitter taste. Other frequent symptoms are waterbrash, palpitation of the heart, headache and disorders of the senses, as seeing double, &c. There is general debility, languor, and aversion to motion; weakness of the spirits, disturbed sleep and frightful dreams.

FEEL MYSELF A NEW MAN.

NATICK, MASS., June 1, 1872.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—Through the advice and earnest persuasion of Mr. E. S. Bennett, of this place, I have been taking VEGETINE for Dyspepsia, of which I have suffered for years. I have used only two bottles, and already feel myself a new man. Respectfully yours,

DR. J. W. CARTER.

A Source of Great Anxiety

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all of her friends. A few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. Respectfully yours, N. H. TILDEN

What I Know About Vegetine.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 9, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking VEGETINE about the middle of last winter and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will among my pleasantest to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine, to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 386 Athens Street.

City Council.

The Board of Mayor and Aldermen accepted the resignation of Dr. S. C. Whittier as City Physician and Chairman of the Board of Health, at the regular meeting, Thursday evening.

A petition of J. F. Shores and others for a reconsideration of the vote changing the name of Haymarket Square to Manhattan Park was accepted and laid on the table for one week.

A notice was received from the clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court that the petition of John H. Broughton and others for widening Fleet Street would be heard at the October term.

The City Solicitor was directed to use all honorable means to defeat the widening, and a committee of two Aldermen were appointed to co-operate with the City Solicitor; yeas, Aldermen Wilson, Spinney, Lefavour and Trefethen—nays, Aldermen Garrett and Sise.

Alderman Sise and Spinney were appointed a committee to consider the subject of widening Congress Street at the Mechanics Association property.

Sulphur Baths.

The following letter from a well-known gentleman in this city, gives evidence of the medical virtues of the sulphur baths:

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 8.

Dr. Strong:—My gratitude fails to express itself in words for the apparently great and lasting benefits which I have received since commencing the use of your Sulphur Baths. For twelve years I have been under the advice and treatment of as many physicians for the removal from my system of the effects of poison by ivy, sometimes called mercury, rheumatic difficulties and other of the ills which flesh is heir to, but without any apparent benefits. Nearly discouraged with this constant trying of the many and dissimilar courses each suggested I resorted to your sulphur baths, and after taking about ten I now gladly realize how highly beneficial in many ways they have proved. Health, "that chiefest good, yet seldom understood," has, I believe, become mine again, so to all who are similarly afflicted I would earnestly advise a fair trial of your baths, for as an eradicator of all impurities and a corrector of irregularities to which every system is subject more or less, and as an invigorator even to a sense of newness of life, I can from personal knowledge and tests cordially recommend the sulphur treatment as personally administered by you. Yours in gratitude,

L. V. NEWELL.

We learn that Dr. Strong will remain here but a short time, and those who are afflicted with humors should not miss so rare an opportunity to be cured.

Our Park.

The fathers of the City have given us a Park, I am glad of it. All large cities have parks, except Boston. We have got ahead of Boston. We ought to have a park, we need it for a playground for children, for a training field for our brave citizen soldiery, and for a promenade for all lovers. We ought to have a frog pond in it, we have no frog pond, but we have a reservoir, perhaps a reservoir is better, the water does not evaporate so fast. But we have a mall on the park, it begins on the southeast corner, runs to the centre, then turns at a right angle and comes out on the west side, it is picturesque, shady after sunset and makes a very interesting, retired and quiet promenade for young people. There is a grass-plot too on the reservoir, it is a good place for picnics. While I am proud of the park, I am prouder of the name given it. It is an imported name, and therefore a good one. There is nothing local and vulgar about it. It is an advantage to a place to have a park with a good name. Now let us have a horse railroad from the park to the Cutts Avenue, and Portsmouth will take a front rank among American cities. A.

Laconics.

The Auditing Committee held a final meeting on Friday evening for the approval of bills incurred for the reception of the Sons. All but two committees (on Salutes and Press) made their reports, from which it appears that the expenditures authorized by the committee of citizens will not exceed $7700.

For islands which are in the main uninhabited, the Isles of Shoals have a prodigious amount of history, and that too of a very interesting character. Mr. J. Scribner Jenness's sketch wins praise everywhere for its freshness and good sense. The traveller who has the good fortune to visit the Islands this summer may leave his fan at home, but if he values his peace of mind, let him put Mr. Jenness' book in his bag and Mrs. Thaxter's Poems in his vest-pocket.

Cherries are abundant this season. So also are all kinds of berries except the mosquito, and we are at a loss to know why this incorrigible little bummer is making himself so scarce this year. Perhaps no one has remarked it but is it not true that the mosquito has not visited this watering-place as yet? We are not anxious to see him however, not because we are afraid that he will present his bill, but because of his disagreeable way of doing it. He is almost as bad as a collector of taxes.

The season for picnics and excursions of all kinds has fairly set in. Covered Job Teams take parties to the woods every day and the pastures and islands everywhere in the vicinity of Portsmouth ring with the merry shouts of boys and girls indulging in pleasant recreation.

Mr. J H. Montgomery, teacher of penmanship, advertises to give private instruction in the art of writing. We can honestly commend him to the favorable attention of any one wishing to learn how to wield a pen.

The fine rain of Thursday and Friday already gives a different aspect to vegetation, all kinds of which were suffering severely for the lack of moisture. Farmers also had an opportunity of resting their limbs that became wearied by the demands of the season of haying, which in a farmer's life is the hardest part of the year's toil. The recent showers will also afford those hardy sons of Adam a fine opportunity to relax their wearied appendages by shaking out the hay when the sun makes its appearance.

The hay crop around Portsmouth is nearly as good as that of last year, while elsewhere throughout the State and even in almost every portion of New England, not more than half—and in some instances—not a quarter of a crop will be realized.

Mr. Joshua W. Lewis was killed on Thursday afternoon, in Boston, by the fall of a derrick at the bridge of the Old Colony Railroad, between Dover street and the Broadway extension. Mr. Lewis was a resident of Kittery, an industrious man and good citizen, and was about forty-six years old; he leaves a wife and a married daughter. Cyrus Carver of East Boston was also injured by the fall of the derrick, but will probably recover.

P. & D. R. R.

[Foster's Democrat, July 16th.]

Not many men are at work on the P. & D. Railroad grading to-day. And for several days past the work appears to have slackened somewhat at this end of the road. The stone contractor on the bridge over the Cocheco near High School House, is busy with his work. The large stone abutments at each end of the structure are nearly completed, and the stone piers are going up as rapidly as possible. Carpenters are employed on the wooden framework of the bridge, which will require a large amount of timber. We should say that the summer and a considerable portion of the autumn will be used up before this job on our river will be completed. The excavations through the "deep rive" between the river and the southerly side of the jail lot are nowhere near completed. Going southerly, Silver street is not yet fairly crossed. A great amount of labor has yet to be done at that point. Stone are being drawn for the bridge abutments on Silver street, but none of them have yet been laid. The embankments there are very steep, and look as though a smart rain might dump them into the cut and cause less superficial area of upper earth in the near vicinity of the dwelling houses there. Yesterday was pay-day on the road, and this probably may account for the non-appearance of some of the laborers to-day. Some of them have the strange habit of lying round loose and getting into the limbos of the law when a little "flush."

TO EUROPE BY BALLOON.

[Scientific American.]

Many particulars are published of the construction of the great Graphic balloon, wherewith Professors Wise and Donaldson intend to attempt the passage of the Atlantic, starting from New York about the 20th of August next. The only chance for a successful issue of this hazardous voyage, almost the only chance, indeed, for life which the daring aeronauts will possess, depend upon the flotant endurance of the ærial ship. To fortify the apparatus in this respect will be the paramount consideration of the navigators. Doubtless they would be glad to elongate the balloon, provide propellers and steam power, and so continue the experiments in ærial navigation ably begun by De Lome and others. But the necessities of the present occasion forbid. The ordinary rotund form of balloon, although unsuited for mechanical propulsion, is best adapted for strength as a gas holder, and this kind has been chosen. Professor Henry, writing to the Graphic, also to Professor Wise, fully indorses the views of the latter in respect to the existence of constant easterly currents above the earth, and expresses the belief that, if the balloon can be kept afloat long enough, she may be wafted over the ocean to Europe. But he does not recommend the attempt, and, if it must be undertaken, wishes that some other person, in whom he had less personal regard than Professor Wise, were about to make the trial. He thinks that, as preliminary to this ocean voyage, Professor Wise ought to make an overland flight from the Pacific to the Atlantic, a distance nearly equal to the width of the Atlantic ocean. To this Professor Wise replies that the easterly currents will be found steadier and safer over the ocean than above the land; and he prefers to take the risks of dropping into the sea rather than the chances of bumping against the cliffs of the Rocky Mountains. In view of the professor's experiences on his great voyage from Missouri to New York, in 1859, described in our last number, we think his conclusion is correct. He expects to be able to keep afloat in the air for at least ten days, while only three days will be actually required for the great "waft." To us the probabilities of his success appear to be little better than those of an individual who, in an open boat, without sail or oars, should attempt to float across the Atlantic upon the surface of the Gulf Stream.

—In a paper on "Tea considered as a Cause of National Demoralization," Matthew Browne invites the attention of pathologists, psychologists, reformers and legislators to this great question; "While we have been turning our eyes," he says, "upon the more obvious and vulgar evils attendant upon the free use of alcohol, we have been overlooking the insidious action of a bland and peaceful liquid which has been sapping the foundations of manhood and honesty. Alcohol sends a few to the jail or to the mad-house. But tea acts through the nervous system, upon the conscience, and turns us into a nation of sneaks."

—A farmer wrote to the editor of the Rutland Herald for advice about an unmanageable bull, and he was told if the bull was a wild bull he had better leave it alone, put a few things in a valise and go West.

ALL persons are hereby forbidden harboring or trusting ELLEN L. MILTON on my account, as I shall pay no bills of her contracting after this date.
ROBERT B. MILTON.
Portsmouth, July 10, 1873.

—The Belfast Age is responsible for the following cat story: "Mr. J. Marinet of this city has handed us a slip cut from some paper containing a singular account of the instinct or sagacity of a cat, and adds that he knows the account is true from personal knowledge. A family living in an adjoining State had a young cat which had some very peculiar marks. They soon after got a young dog, and he worried her so badly that she disappeared. They soon after removed into this State, some sixty miles from their former place, and, at the time, disposed of the dog. Puss in the mean time nearly passed out of mind. After becoming settled in their new home, to their surprise the lost animal appeared, one day, and finding her enemy gone, she exhibited her gladness in her cat-like manner. The family afterwards ascertained that she really travelled the whole distance between the two places, and by some means found out their place of residence."

—The Lawrence American tells of a merchant who is always happy when trade is dull, because he says when trade is dull, you may always be sure it will soon take an active start. The same gentleman is always miserable when trade is brisk, because it is sure to be followed by a dull spell.

—Miss Linda Gilbert has just received six cents damages in an action of libel brought against the Chicago Post.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 160, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE NO. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them, or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expenses of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or fother thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed, and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE NO. 160.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 4. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by suit of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above Coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no pains will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Carload or at retail from our wharf.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, or the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 940 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. oawjl

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known in Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FIRMLY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

LOST OCCUPATIONS.

Half a century ago bellows making was a thriving trade. Every house had its pair of bellows, and in every well furnished mansion there was a pair hung by the side of every fireplace. Ipswich, in Massachusetts, acquired quite a notoriety all over New England for the elegant and substantial articles of the kind it produced. But as stoves and grates took the place of open fireplaces, and as coal was substituted for wood, the demand for bellows diminished, until the business as a separate trade quite died out.

The same is true of flint-cutting. Flints were once necessary, not only for fire-arms, but for tinder boxes, and tinder boxes were as necessary for every house as a gridiron or a skillet. Every one who looks back to childhood of forty odd years ago, must remember the cold winter mornings when the persistent crack, crack of the flint against steel sent up from the kitchen an odor of igniting tinder and sulphur which pervaded the house. I have no more idea what became of the flint producers than of the old man of sorrowful memories who, three or four times a week, called at our door with brimstone matches for sale at a cent the half-dozen bunches. Both have as completely vanished from England and New England as have the red Indians and the Druids.

Then, again, are gone the pin makers, who, though they have been in their graves this quarter of a century, still figure in lectures and essays to illustrate the advantages of division of labor. Instead of a pin taking a dozen men or more to cut, grind, point, head, polish, and what not, as it used to do, pins are made by a neat little machine at the rate of three hundred a minute, of which machines a little child attends to half a dozen.

Nail making at the forge is another lost industry. Time was, and that in this nineteenth century; when every nail was made on the anvil. Now, from one hundred to one thousand nails per minute are made by machines. The nailer who works at the forge has but a bad chance in competing with such antagonists, and he would have no chance at all, were it not that his nails are tenfold tougher than the former. As it is, the poor men follow an all but hopeless vocation, and are compelled to live in continual handgrips with poverty.

In the days of Presidents Madison and Monroe, and even later, straw bonnet making was practised in every middle-class house where there were growing families, and straw plaiting formed the staple of domestic leisure work. At my grandfather's around the huge kitchen fire-place, Cæsar, born a slave, who sat on an oak bench directly under the gaping chimney, and we boys who crowded upon the settee, used to pass winter evenings splitting straws while the lasses were plaiting them. Then, bonnets were bonnets, covering the head with a margin or two to spare, and presenting a sort of conical, shell-shaped recess, in which dimpling smiles and witching curls nestled in comfort. The work has vanished, and will never reappear, unless the whirligig of fashion should glide again into the forsaken track.

Another Farce Concluded.

A New England "enquiry" into the cause of a railroad accident or steam-boiler explosion, or Boss Tweed's trial of jury in New York, is little more of a farce than either of the official "investigations" into the causes of steamboat wrecks with which our neighbors in the British Provinces have recently been amusing themselves. The "Atlantic" horror was the first to be "investigated," and for the wholesale murder of strong men and helpless women and children the captain's certificates was "suspended" for two years and the mate's for three months—a judicious severity which may reasonably be expected to make reckless and incompetent shipmasters careful and efficient, for who would wish to slaughter five hundred human beings when so doing might result in one certificate being suspended for five hundred days—a day for a life?

Immediately on the heels of the "Atlantic" murder came another excitement. Another ocean steamer, with enough human life on board to make a wreck interesting and with her compasses disarranged by local attraction, comes driving along through a week's thick fog, with her leadlines nicely stowed away to keep dry. As a natural consequence of such seamanship and wise caution, the steamer goes smash on the rocks,—the whole business is "investigated" by a tribunal which calls only the officers of the ship as witnesses, and the captain is sternly sentenced to — a suspension of his certificate for a year! Yet the evidence of even the interested witnesses examined proved that the captain and his officers knew of the presence on board of a large amount of steel and that the compasses were varying very widely in consequence, that nothing was done to correct the variation or guard against resulting disaster, and that even the most simple and ordinary (yet most effective) of all precautions adopted by seamen when making the land—that of sounding — was entirely neglected, not even a pretence of heaving the lead being made. The evidence of his own partizans was damaging enough to the captain to have demanded that he should be forever disqualified from commanding another vessel.

To be sure, his punishment is half that of the Atlantic's captain, and the latter killed five hundred people while the former did not happen to kill any,—but that was by his good fortune and not his good management. The Atlantic's skipper blundered along ignorantly and recklessly, and happened to run his vessel against a rock twenty miles out of his course; the City of Washington skipper blundered along ignorantly and recklessly, and happened to run his vessel on a shoal a hundred miles out of his course; the former wreck was a wholesale human sacrifice to incompetency and stupid carelessness, and that the latter was not was the merest chance.

Probably the court was influenced by the touching manner in which the officers of the ship hung together; the captain testified that he was an entirely competent as well as temperate and careful man, and that his mate and each of his officers, down to the steward, were ditto; and the mate and inferior officers each testified that himself, the captain and everybody else connected with the ship were skillful, brave, and cautious seamen, and never got drunk. How a ship so splendidly officered could get so far out of her way, and run into a continent before any one suspected land was near, is a puzzle, and perhaps the court was too much puzzled trying to solve it to know what was what when a decision was rendered. But it is comforting to know that the two skippers will have no legal right to murder ocean travellers in British ships for a year to come, at any rate.

The Late John Prentiss.

The Editorial Association at a recent meeting passed the following resolutions—

Whereas, Death has removed from our ranks the venerable JOHN PRENTISS of Keene, who though not one among us was yet one of us through that tireless pen and vigorous mind which served the cause of intelligence in New Hampshire for half a century, and who still served it for a quarter of a century more as a model citizen and interested craftsman. In view of the loss we have thus sustained, we desire to put on record this testimonial to his life and virtues, of which the edition was large, the impression superior, and the circulation bounded only by the limits of the wise and good of all time,

Resolved, That a memorial page in the records of this association, be devoted to the memory of JOHN PRENTISS, the Model Printer, Citizen and Christian.

SAVED HIM.

A correspondent of the Boston Transcript, writing from the summit of Mount Washington, relates the following: "Among the boarders we found many young ladies from Boston, three of whom have been spending nearly a week at the Tip Top House. We found their experience very serviceable, and their company highly agreeable in the various scrambles about the mountain. They were sensibly attired, having religiously bound each other to wear but one polonaise each, and they had torn off a few lifts from the heels of their boots. Two of them, during the passage around a very dangerous precipice which we came upon in the course of our rambles, by their heroic daring saved the life of one of the gentlemen of the party, rescuing him from a position of certain death, if dependent upon his own exertions. One of the young ladies, lying flat upon the ground, slid out over the bank from which the gentleman had slipped, clinging meanwhile to the feet of the second lady, who in turn clung fast to a sharp rock above. The gentleman was drawn up slowly and with great effort, having with pardonable indelicacy grasped his preserver about the ankles."

He is at present undecided whether the comet is coming this way or not. It has hung around the spot where it was discovered pretty closely, that is, in four degrees and 47 minutes of south declination—about half an hour's walk from the vernal equinox—but it may wake up and travel shortly.

It doesn't seem just right that a sober and respectable minister of the gospel should fall through a bridge and kill himself on the rocks, forty feet below, while returning from an innocent village festival, but the friends of the late Rev. RESOLUTIONS IN RHYME.

The following unique resolutions were adopted by the invited guests of the New Hampshire Press Association, at a meeting held on board the cars, July 11, 1873, Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr., of Maine, presiding:

WHEREAS, We find again that we Owe the N. H. P. E. & P.,
Another very heavy debt,
(Though the old score's not paid up yet.)

THEREFORE RESOLVED, it gives no pain
(From Massachusetts and from Maine)
To feel the obligation grow
Against our power of saying so.

RESOLVED, That words can not express
One half the burden we confess,
And 'twould the deepest sense reveal
Could we but tell the thanks we feel.

RESOLVED, we wish no kindlier fate
Than be guests in Granite State,
Whose journalists we always see,
Are an incarnate courtesy.

RESOLVED, That our New Hampshire hosts
Even excel our proudest boasts;
Their noble State's a rarest gem;
They're worthy it—it's worthy them.
Their kindness we can ne'er forget,
And when we can we'll pay the debt.

RESOLVED, That as we leave these hills,
These rocks, these lakes, these woods and rills,
And as to her warm hearts and true
We must too early bid adieu—

On all, we each and everyone,
Invoke Heaven's kindest benison.
We like such scenes, we like such men,
And when they ask we'll come again.

ANOTHER NEW DEPARTURE.

The Indianapolis Journal has discovered that a quiet movement is going on in Democratic circles with a view to bringing out Gen. Jeff. C. Davis, of Modoc fame, as a candidate for the Presidency. The Journal says: "The movement has already gained considerable head, and is particularly pleasing to those Democrats who are in favor of a complete new departure, and throwing themselves on the mercy of the people. By the way, Gov. Hendricks is strongly in favor of the party turning its back on the past, but we are not informed whether he favors the candidacy of Davis or not. It is barely possible the Governor thinks there is one man in the country of superior claims, whose name modesty would forbid him to mention."

STOKES' $11,000 DOG.

[Springfield Republican.]

There is an eleven thousand dollar dog in this city. This is a bare statement of fact. The way of it is this: The now uncomfortably famous Mr. Stokes of the New York Tombs owned a setter reputed the best hunting dog in the city. Mr. Harker, the owner of the noted stables whose chief glories are now at Hampden Park awaiting the fall meeting, wanted the setter and tried to purchase him. But Stokes had just refused six hundred for him, and didn't want to sell the dog. Finally, however, he told Harker that as perhaps his hunting days were over, although he would not sell he would make him (Harker) a present of the dog. The generous Harker would not, however, accept the friendly offer without a reciprocal one, and as he had offered one thousand, engaged to give him the profit within a specified time, on one thousand shares of railroad stock. A rapid turn in the market brought the aforesaid stock to an advance of $11 a share, and that he offered promptly to make over to Stokes for the setter. The speculative young man, however said, "Let it wait a while; perhaps I shall make more yet." Instead of more he made less; the stock fell as swiftly as it had risen, and dropped flat on the market. So for a little while the setter Mr. Harker prizes so highly, and that can be seen by the curious in Hampden Park, was worth eleven thousand dollars. What a halo of glory encompasses that remarkable dog!

HAWAIIAN WOMEN.

[Harper's Magazine for August.]

In the girls' schools you will see an occasional pretty faces but fewer than I expected to see; and to my notion the Hawaiian girl is rarely very attractive. Among the middle aged women, however, you often meet with fine heads and large expressive features. The women have not unfrequently a majesty of carriage and a tragic public cloak of features and expression which are quite remarkable. Their loose dress gives grace as well as dignity to their movements; and whoever invented it for them deserves more credit than he has received. It is a little startling at first to see women walking about in what, to our perverted tastes, look like calico or black stuff night-gowns; but the dress grows on you as you become accustomed to it; it lends itself readily to bright ornamentation: it is eminently fit for the climate; and a stately Hawaiian dame, marching through the street, in black holaku—as the dress is called—with a long necklace, or le, of bright scarlet or brilliant yellow flowers, bare and untrammeled feet, and flowing hair, compares very favorably with a high-heeled, wasp-waisted, absurdly bonneted, fashionable white lady.

TRAGIC END OF AN ELOPEMENT.

The story of John Elliott and Margaret Rollinston, who were carried over Niagara Falls recently in a small boat, has about it many of the elements of a romance. He was 19 years of age and his true name was John Emerson. The name of Elliott he assumed to avoid pursuit. His father lives about six miles east of Cleveland. Miss Rollinston's parents about a year since moved from Canada to the same neighborhood and were employed upon a farm. The young couple soon fell mutually in love, but his friends opposed the match. The young man thereupon stole $500 from his father's trunk, and the twain eloped to Buffalo. Either there or in Canada they procured a marriage license. Before getting married they went to visit an aunt of Miss Rollinstone, living near Niagara Falls. They had been there two days when, together with a young brother of hers who was also staying there, they went upon the river for a pleasure ride. Although warned to keep near the shore, they carelessly allowed their boat to drift into the current and did not discover their their danger until too late.

THE SKIN.

[Harper's Magazine for August.]

Experiments have been tried by Socoloff, as to the effect of suppressing the excretions of the skin, by shaving rabbits and painting the skin over with some material impervious to the passage of vapor. It was found that this always, sooner or later, produced fatal results, the animals a few hours before death exhibiting intermittent cramps and convulsions, while the temperature in the rectum fell to a considerable extent. Even wrapping the animal in cotton failed to produce any material increase of the temperature of the intestines or to delay death. The inhalation of oxygen was equally powerless in preserving life. Ulcers, arising from deep-seated extravasations, were found in the stomach. Albumen made its appearance in the urine shortly after the animal had been varnished. Whatever the substance used for coating the animal, whether simply a gelatine, gum, or regular varnish, inflammation of the kidneys was the result, sometimes accompanied by enlargement of the cell elements, and sometimes by their fatty degeneration.

—This is from Arthur Help's new work: "In tropical climates an overladen mule falls down upon the sandy plain never to rise again. Forthwith in the dim distance a black speck is seen to arise. It is the vulture which is coming for a feast. There are the same phenomena to be observed with boys as with vultures. I met with a cab accident the other day. The axle broke, the wheels came in on both sides of the cab, and we were at once a pitiable wreck. Thereupon twenty or thirty boys, appearing to rise out of the ground, surrounded us. It is my firm belief that misfortune breeds boys."

—Surely the most practical man of our day has been discovered. A young man down East, writing to his sweetheart the other day, said: "I wish, my darling, that you would not write me such long letters. If you were to bring an action for breach of promise against me, the lawyers would copy the correspondence between us, and charge ten cents for every folio of seventy-two words. The shorter the letters the more we save from the lawyers." Strange to say, the young man never received a reply!

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, sciatica, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts, scalds, burns, salt rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells just because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserves to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing these certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this notice is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Prices 50 cents, large bottle $1. J. B. Rose & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS. 969

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Importance of Healthy Blood.

Every drop of blood that circulates through the veins eventually becomes a solid particle of the body. Flesh, bone and muscle are merely solidified blood, and upon the quality of the blood depends the condition of the whole physical system. Unless the liquid material by which the human substance is renewed and sustained be pure and nutritious it is impossible that the body can be healthy and strong. One of the most important properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is that of improving the condition of the vital fluid when infected or impoverished. Acting directly and powerfully upon the stomach, in which the manufacture of the blood is commenced, and upon the liver which secretes a fluid next in importance to the stream of life itself, this powerful vegetable tonic and depurent has an immense indirect influence upon the circulation. Hence the extraordinary cures wrought by the Bitters in cases of general debility, malarious fevers, rheumatism, biliousness, constipation, &c.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and expelled it as the change is light or corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $2, by all Druggists. 688

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth would call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE No. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection or nuisance, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed, and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or command any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complaint before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE No. 100.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 3. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding section, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMOR

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so constituted as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It imparts Vitality to every part of the Human Organism. The Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Vitalizing Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a vitiated or thin blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an iron foundation.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial. See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

History of the Grand RE-UNION OF '73.

THE subscriber will soon issue a pamphlet containing a detailed account of the recent 4th of July Celebration, the High School Meeting on the 5th, the Praise Meeting on the 6th, &c., making a complete record of one of the greatest occasions ever held in Portsmouth. Subscription lists are open at the stores of Wm. R. Preston and Joseph H. Foster, and the counting rooms of the Chronicle and Journal. CHARLES W. GARDNER.

Local Matters.

Rockingham County.

During the late session of the Legislature, the Rockingham delegation held three meetings. A. R. Hatch was Chairman, J. H. Kent Secretary, though why a Republican convention should choose a copperhead chairman, is not clear to outsiders.

The County Auditors, Chas. Robinson of Portsmouth and C. H. Smith of Newmarket, reported the accounts of the County Commissioner and Treasurer correct and properly vouched, and complimented the Treasurer, Mr. W. N. Dow of Epping, on his fidelity as a public officer.

A committee consisting of C. H. Bell of Exeter, A. R. Hatch of Portsmouth and C. H. Smith of New Market, was appointed to prescribe a suitable place for revising, renewing and keeping the index of deeds in the Register's Office in Exeter, and the Register was authorized to commence the removal thereof under the direction of this committee, and the sum of five hundred dollars was appropriated for the purpose for the present year; $250 was also appropriated to pay for the recording of the early papers upon the files in the Probate Court, which are yet unrecorded—both of these sums to be expended under the direction of this committee—though it was claimed at the time the County Farm was purchased, that the law required all money to be expended under the directions of the Commissioners, and that no committee's order is good on the Treasurer.

The sum of $70,000 was appropriated for the use of the County for the coming year, to be expended as follows.

State Pay Roll	$5,500 00
Jury Pay Roll	4,500 00
County Farm Expenses	11,000 00
Paupers Off Farm	8,000 00
Jail Expenses and Repairs	4,000 00
N. H. Asylum	1,000 00
N. H. Reform School	200 00
Bonds and Interest due in 1873	13,500 00
Carriage Shed, Granary and Repairs at Farm	21,000 00
Printing and Stationery	1,000 00
Sheriff, Deputies, and Court Messengers	2,100 00
Co. Commissioners, Solicitor and Treasurer	3,000 00
Miscellaneous Bills	1,000 00
County Notes	11,950 00
Total,	$59,250 00

The amount appropriated is $7000 more than asked for by the Commissioners. The County debt was reduced $15,000 last year, and it is hoped can be brought below $100,000 the present year.

Superintendent Pollard, of the County farm at Brentwood, is spoken of in the highest terms by all who visit the institution or have business with him.

Vive La Lamprey.

[Portsmouth Journal.]

"Various, that the mind
Of desultory man, studious of change
And pleased with novelty, may be indulged."

So we thought as we looked upon the fairy scene presented at the annual exhibition, on Monday evening at Congress Hall, of Mr. Samuel Lamprey's dancing class of lads and lassies. Regardless of the oppressive heat, we took no note of time but from its loss, as the exquisitively dressed young folks were called to the floor to engage in the fascinating yet harmless accomplishment of tripping the "light fantastic," and seldom have we witnessed so pleasing a spectacle of what Byron calls "the poetry of motion,"—where too, there was more to bewitch than when art is too precise in every part. Certainly, Milton's Eve, when gazing on the lake, could not have seen anything more beautiful to admire. The representatives present from New York, Baltimore, Boston and other cities, who know the metropolitan way of doing things, were surprised at the thoroughly easy and graceful manner in which the pupils of Mr. Lamprey's school went through the intricacies of the German—all of which is flattering to the faithful teacher, and creditable to the pupils.

Laconics.

Unexpected difficulties are troubling the contractors who are building a bridge over the Piscataqua at Dover Point, for the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad. Piles driven at one point strike a ledge of rock, and it is thought that a truss of about 150 feet must be made to span that part of the river.

A committee from Essex S. F. E. Co. No. 4, of Lawrence, Mass., were in this city on Thursday to invite Sagamore S. F. E. Co. No. 2, the Mayor, the City Councils, Chief and Board of Engineers, to visit their city on Wednesday next.

OUR TELEGRAPH SYSTEM.

[Harper's Magazine for August.]

When we look at a railroad map of the United States, with its intricate net-work of black lines, and in imagination fill it out with its double tracks, its junctions and busy stations, its depots and engine-houses, and then people and vivifying the picture with its swarming and hurrying life and its gliding trains, ever making up, traversing the field, breaking and forming new combinations, incessantly succeeding, passing, and crossing each other; and when we add the bands of pioneers, surveyors, engineers, laborers, and construction trains which form the fringe of this net-work, constantly extending its meshes in every direction, and adding new intricacies to its more crowded parts—the mind is almost bewildered with the thought of such an immense labyrinth, such complex organization.

If we could rise above the surface of the earth, and take in the whole country at a bird's eye view, with visual power to discern all the details, the net-work of the telegraph would be still more curious to look upon. We should see a web spun of two hundred thousand miles of wire spread over the face of the country like a cob-web on the grass, its threads connecting every important centre of population, festooning every great post-road, and marking as with a silver lining the black track of every railroad. We should observe men, like spiders, busily spinning out these lines in every direction, at the rate of five miles an hour for every working hour in the year. If we should trace these threads back from the circumference, we should find them converging from every direction to certain central knots, like Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Washington, and many others of equal importance, and thence running in great strands, doubling and multiplying in number as they approach the centre, but so arranged as to bind every city and town to all its neighbors, near and far. If the eye, seeking to analyze this labyrinth, should pursue the converging lines, it would at last follow a great band of more than two hundred and fifty wires, from every point of the compass, running into one great centre in the city of New York, in the main office of the Western Union Telegraph Company. Other minor centres would appear, but this one would immediately be recognized as the great core or heart of the system.

If, now, such an observer could be gifted with a magic power of vision, which man has not yet dreamed of attaining, so as to be enabled to see that unseen and silent force we call electricity, and discern its instantaneous actions and reactions from point to point over this bewildering maze, the net-work of the telegraph would present a spectacle far more amazing than that of the railroad system.

As the morning sun sends the hour of nine across the continent, the offices are filled with operators, an army of nearly ten thousand persons, engaged in the various functions involved in the service. The batteries, which we may imagine to have been mostly slumbering during the night, all awake to their work, and the quiverings and scintillations of electric action along the wires would show the whole net-work to be now alive. On the great trunk lines the last of the night work is finished, the morning orders are circulated, and around the circuit flash the humorous salutations which the operators exchange with their unseen fellows, who seem to be concealed at their elbow, but who are in reality hundreds or thousands of miles away. Ten o'clock finds the offices full of business. Outward bound messages pour in to be dispatched, and messages received are ticked off by the talking armature, to be noted out and sent off for delivery. By eleven o'clock the press news begins to crowd upon the operators, and then for two or three hours the excitement is at its height. Every one must be at his post, every faculty alert, and attention incessant. The zinc in the batteries burns fiercely under the corroding acid, the mysterious "current," which becomes more wonderful the more conscious we become of human ignorance respecting it, leaps to its work. Every available circuit on the great lines is pressed to its utmost. The operator's keys dance their tattoos, to which the distant receiving instruments instantly respond, reproducing the slightest, most transient motion. The whole net-work of wires, and the sub-marine cables which connect it with other equally active systems on the other side of the globe, are all quivering from end to end with signals of human intelligence.

After two o'clock signs of relaxation appear. The press messages diminish; messages that have been waiting to take their turn are cleared off. At four the heavy business of the day in many offices is about over. The great lines are still crowded, and their works runs on into the evening. At last the business of night work begins, and the press messages from Washington, and the business and social messages that are taken at half price, in consideration of their being allowed to be sent at leisure, to be delivered next morning, are transmitted between the great cities, north, south, east and west.

Every phase of the mental activity of the country is more or less represented in this great system. The fluctuations in the markets; the price of stocks; the premium on gold; the starting of railroad trains; the sailing of ships; the arrival of passengers; orders for merchandise and manufacturers of every kind; bargains offered and bargains closed; sermons, lectures, and political speeches; fires, sickness, and death; weather reports; the approach of the grass-hopper and the weevil; the transmission of money; the congratulations of friends—everything, from the announcement of a new planet down to an inquiry for a lost carpet-bag, has its turn in passing the wires.

—The Denver News alludes to "a beautiful little story" it has heard from "down on the Kansas Pacific," where a party of hunters recently stampeded a herd of buffaloes to the brink of a precipice 75 feet high. The News thus graphically concludes its "beautiful little story:" "For thirty seconds it rained buffaloes, and the white sand at the foot of that bluff was incarnadine with the life blood of wild meat, and not until the tails of 50 or 75 of that herd had waved adieu to this wicked world did the movement cease." It is a nice little story for a Sunday school book.

—A Danbury man whose strawberry patch has been afflicted by robins, loaded and primed a shot gun, in the interests of agriculture, Wednesday, and taking aim at a robin which was on the fence trying to decipher an auction bill, let drive. The robin immediately got out of there, but the charge was not lost. It was subsequently dug out of Gould Bailey's face, who is a resident of the next street.

Farmers' Associations.

[Editor's Easy Chair, in Harper's Mag. for August.]

Thomas Wright calls the working-men "our new masters," meaning, for the most part, mechanics and their helpers. It is folly to despise or disparage the working-men in this limited sense, and no wise or good man can fail to wish them all substantial emancipation and welfare. But the largest and most important class of workers are the farming class and their associates. The land is our great heritage, and the true use of it is our most essential need. Our people ought to be trained for this more thoroughly, and there are signs all over the world of the awakening of the farming interest to its rights and its duties. The mechanics have made more mark upon public opinion, perhaps, because they hang together more closely, and live in towns and cities, where they readily combine with money and fellow-feeling, and have access to the press and public agitation. The mechanics have done a great work for modern liberty, and their guilds have been for ages mighty powers in the struggle against the old feudalism. Some of the associations formed by them still alarm the organs of despotism, and the ultramontane papers speak with anxiety of the warfare of the trowel against the cross, and some sober moralists share their solicitude. They that use the plow and the pruning-hook can not tend to any such warfare; and so far as we have read the proceedings of the granges of husbandry that are rising by thousands among our farmers, they promise well for the future of the tillers of the ground and for the nation at large. It is well for them to guard themselves against the grasping policy of the middle-men, who come between them and the markets, and take more than their share of the farmer's profits, and exact more than their due for the manufacturer's products. It is well that they seek to take their crops more readily and cheaply to the market, or to bring the market nearer to their crops. What, perhaps, is the most remarkable feature in their present movement is their eagerness for more fellowship, more connection with each other and with the press, and all the helps and incentives of society, art, and literature. It is a great thing for those who own and till the soil to bring true soul to their work, and even in the symbols and costumes of their associations to show their respect for themselves and for their calling. It is well that women as well as men join in this movement, and out of all this ceremonial of the crook and pruning-hook, the sash and pouch, some substantial gain for agriculture in ideal dignity and social refinement will be won. Who knows how much the Ceres, Flora, and Pomona of the grange may do to give a woman a style of dress that is good for something besides mere show, and which may join use with beauty in the future of the sex? The farm surely has all the elements of the beautiful if they are only sought out, and orchards, groves, lawns, flowers, brooks, rocks, hills, lakes, offer charms that need only good taste and social sympathy to exalt them into agencies of culture and festivals of joy. How wise it is to give the farmers the dressing of the church once a year, as is sometimes done, and what harvest-homes our America would show next November if every farming village would do its best to adorn its temple with the fruits that crown the year! But this is a great matter, and we have only a passing word for it now.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over thirty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the print name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 640 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. eowjl

NEVER

NEGLECT A COUGH. Nothing is more certain to lay the foundation for future evil consequences.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS

are a sure cure for all diseases of the Respiratory Organs, Sore Throat, Colds, Croup, Diphtherit, Asthma, Dryness of the Throat, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Windpipe, or Bronchial Tubes, and all Diseases of the Lungs.

In all cases of sudden cold, however taken, these TABLETS should be promptly and freely used. They equalize the circulation of the blood, mitigate the severity of the attack, and will, in a very short time, restore healthy action to the affected organs.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS are put up only in BLUE BOXES. Take no substitutes. If they can't be found at your druggist's, SEND AT ONCE TO THE AGENTS IN NEW YORK, who will forward them by return mail.

DON'T BE DECEIVED BY IMITATIONS.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the excretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions, the Uterine and Urinary Organs become inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IF SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

"THE GERMAN."

[Halle Letter to the Baltimore American.]

There was quite a fine hop in the saloon over the bathing-hall, which was attended by nearly all the visitors here, consisting mainly of Germans, with some Russians, Hungarians and French, and our party of six Americans. The reading and coffee-rooms were also filled by those who did not take part in the dance, showing a larger number of guests than we supposed to be here. The German was danced as only Germans can dance it, and is much more intricate and tortuous than is attempted on our side of the Atlantic. The ladies and gentlemen who took part in it, to the number of nearly one hundred, seemed at times to be wound up into an inextricable knot, but all unraveled in the most easy and graceful manner.

The American ladies who participated in the dance returned to their seats almost exhausted by the intricate and rapid lessons in the "poetry of motion" which they had taken. The etiquette of the ball-room at the German springs is somewhat peculiar. A gentleman does not wait for an introduction to ask a lady to dance with him, but merely steps up and asks the pleasure of her hand. He is forbidden by etiquette to enter into any conversation with the lady while dancing, unless she invites it. At the conclusion of the dance he conducts her to a seat, and politely bows and leaves her. Acquaintances thus made and with the ball, unless invited ond encouraged by the lady. Thus much of the difficulty in making up cotillions and quadrilles and the furnishing of partners is avoided.

THE LIQUOR INTEREST.

[Dr. Holland in August Scribner.]

Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching: how many of them? Sixty thousand! Sixty full regiments, every man of which will, before twelve months shall have completed their course, lie down in the grave of a drunkard! Every year during the past decade has witnessed the same sacrifice; and sixty regiments stand behind this army ready to take its place. It is to be recruited from our children and our children's children. "Tramp, tramp, tramp"—the sounds come to us in the echoes of the footsteps of the army just expired; tramp, tramp, tramp—the earth shakes with the tread of the host now passing; tramp, tramp, tramp, comes to us from the camp of the recruits. A great tide of life flows resistlessly to its death. What in God's name are they fighting for? The privilege of pleasing an appetite, of conforming to a social usage, of filling sixty thousand homes with shame and sorrow, of loading the public with the burden of pauperism, of crowding our prisons-houses with felons, of detracting from the productive industries of the country, of ruining fortunes and breaking hopes, of breeding disease and wretchedness, of destroying both body and soul in hell before their time.

The prosperity of the liquor interest, covering every department of it, depends entirely on the maintenance of this army. It cannot live without it. It never did live without it. So long as the liquor interest maintains its present prosperous condition, it will cost America the sacrifice of sixty thousand men every year. The effect is inseparable from the cause. The cost to the country of the liquor traffic is a sum so stupendous that any figures which we should dare to give would convict us of trifling. The amount of life absolutely destroyed, the amount of industry sacrificed, the amount of bread transformed into poison, the shame, the unavailing sorrow, the crime, the poverty, the pauperism, the brutality, the wild waste of vital and financial resources, make an aggregate so vast—so incalculably vast, that the only wonder is that the American people do not rise as one man and declare that this great curse shall exist no longer. Dilettante conventions are held on the subject of peace, by men and women who find it necessary to fiddle to keep themselves awake. A hue-and-cry is raised about woman-suffrage, as if any wrong which may be involved in woman's lack of the suffrage could be compared to the wrongs attached to the liquor interest!

Does any sane woman doubt that women are suffering a thousand times more from rum than from any political disability?

The truth is that there is no question before the American people to-day that begins to match in importance the temperance question. The question of American slavery was never anything but a baby by the side of this; and we prophesy that within ten years, if not within five, the whole country will be awake to it, divided upon it. The organizations of the liquor interest, the vast funds at its command, the universal feeling among those whose business is pitted against the national prosperity and the public morals—these are enough to show that, upon one side of this matter, at least, the present condition of things and the social and political questions that lie in the immediate future are apprehended. The liquor interest knows there is to be a great struggle, and is preparing to meet it. People both in this country and in Great Britain are beginning to see the enormity of this business—are beginning to realize that Christian civilization is actually poisoned at its fountain, and that there can be no purification of it until the source of the poison is dried up.

The country is to be sincerely congratulated on the fact that the wine interest of the United States does not promise much. Little native wine, after all our painstaking, finds its way to a gentleman's table. The California wines are a disappointment and a failure, and the western wines are the same. Neither the dry nor the sparkling Catawba takes the place of anything imported. They are not popular wines, and we congratulate the country that they never can be. The lager beer interest is endeavoring in convention to separate itself from the whisky inrerest, claiming to be holier and more respectable than that. They are all opposed to sobriety, and, in the end, we shall find them all fighting side by side for existence against the determined indignation of a long-suffering people.

A respectable English magazine reports, as a fact of encouraging moment, that of the fifty thousand clergymen of the Church of England as many as four thousand actually abstain from the use of spirits! So, eleven-twelfths of the clergymen of the English Church consent to be dumb dogs on the temperance question! How large the proportion of wine-drinking clergymen may be in this country we do not know, but we do know that a wine-glass stops the mouth on the subject of temperance, whoever may hold it. A wine-drinking clergyman is a soldier disarmed. He is not only not worth a straw in the fight; he is a part of the impediments of the temperance army. We have a good many such to carry, who ought to be ashamed of themselves, and who very soon will be. Temperance laws are being passed by the various legislatures, which they must sustain, or go over, soul and body, to the liquor interest and influence. Steps are being taken on behalf of the public health, morals and prosperity, which they must approve by voice and act, or they must consent to be left behind and left out. There can be no concession and no compromise on the part of temperance men, and no quarter to the foe. The great curse of our country and our race must be destroyed.

Meantime, the tramp, tramp, tramp sounds on,—the tramp of sixty thousand yearly victims. Some are besotted and stupid, some are wild with hilarity and dance along the dusty way, some reel along in pitiful weakness, some wreck their mad and murderous impulses on one another, or on the helpless women and children whose destinies are united to theirs, some stop in wayside debaucheries and infamies for a moment, some go bound in chains from which they seek in vain to wrench their bleeding wrists, and all are poisoned in body and soul, and all are doomed to death. Where they move, crime, poverty, shame, wretchedness and despair hover in awful shadows. There is no bright side to the picture. We forget: there is, just one. The men who make this army get rich. Their children are robed in purple and fine linen, and live upon dainties. Some of them are regarded as respectable members of society, and they hold conventions to protect their interests! Still the tramp, tramp, tramp goes on, and before this article can see the light, five thousand more of our poisoned army will have hidden their shame and disgrace in the grave.

KILLED BY NOISE.

The Wilmington Commercial says:

On West Third street, a baby a few weeks old died, recently, from the shock caused by the noise of powder explosions on the Fourth. It had been ill previous to that time, but was recovering. The dreadful noises, continuing throughout Friday, almost threw it into spasms, and so injured its condition that it died as stated.

THE FINALE.

[Portland Press, 21st.]

It will be remembered that in our Friday's issue we gave an account of the suicide at Cumberland Mills, of a young girl named Ella Bachelder, who quarrelled with her lover, Walter Howe, and soon after threw herself into the Presumpscot. Since that melancholy event it is said that Howe has been much depressed in spirits, and has indulged himself in the continual use of liquor. The circumstances attending the death of the girl and the blame attached to him by many of his neighbors as being the cause of the suicide, undoubtedly preyed upon his mind and unsettled it. Last evening about six o'clock, the affair ended after the poetically-just manner. Walter Howe, while standing in front of his boarding-house, drew a pistol from his pocket and shot himself through the heart. Death of course soon followed. The two suicides, one following so close upon the other, and the circumstances which connected them, have caused intense excitement in the usually quiet village of Cumberland Mills.

Readables.

Philadelphia proposes to have its trans-Atlantic balloon and cross the ocean above the clouds as well as Professor Wise. At a recent meeting in that city, it was voted enthusiastically to form an aeronautic society, and $2000 were subscribed towards a fund of $10,000 for the object of testing scientifically the air-current theory. They propose to make their balloon out of silk, while that of New York is of heavy muslin, greatly diminishing its chance of a successful voyage. The Graphic enterprise is still progressing, and it has been determined not to take up any outside passengers. The balloon will contain the two aeronauts, Messrs. Wise and Donaldson, a skilled mariner, and a Graphic correspondent. With these two schemes, there is a chance for interesting discoveries, if not of a flight to Europe.

A brute named Emory F. Bond is arrested in Boston for the crime of incest with his daughter, a bright miss of ten years.

French newspapers announce that the United States government has granted to the "Nebraska Indians," the right to travel gratuitously in every railway train on which they are able to jump while it is moving at full speed. "The United States government is sure the whole tribe will be extinct in six months."

—A farmer called with his wife at a Detroit photograph gallery to order some photographs of her, and while the operator was getting ready the husband gave the wife a little advice as to how she must act; "Fasten your mind on something," he said, "or else you will laugh and spile the job. Think about early days, how your father got in jail, and your mother was an old scolder, and what you'd have been if I hadn't pitied you! Jest fasten your mind on to that!" She didn't have any photograph taken. Neither will he for some time.

The Shah of Persia is prohibited by etiquette from ever walking up stairs, and he is therefore reduced to the necessity of sleeping perpetually on the ground floor, unless there should happen to be an elevator handy.

The latest defalcation is that of E. S. Mills, president of the Brooklyn Trust company. The amount involved is several hundred thousand dollars. Mills was drowned at Coney Island last week, and it is surmised that his embarrassment drove him to suicide. The company has suspended in consequence of its losses.

New York Custom House officers have seized about ten thousand dollars' worth of foreign watch movements, made in imitation of American and higher priced goods.

The early morning newspaper train for the conveyance of the New York dailies to Philadelphia has been discontinued.

Erie is still the great speculating stock. Last Saturday the stock was cornered by Jay Gould and some German bankers, and advanced about six per cent.

The cholera still continues in Southern Indiana, and is creating some alarm. In Vienna, the mortality caused by the scourge is very great and will probably result in diminishing the attendance on the Exposition.

State News.

The amount of the premiums which the New Hampshire Agricultural Association offers for the display of stock and articles at the State fair in Manchester, which is to open the 69th of September, is upwards of $8000. The premiums for trotting amount to over $2000. Among the other attractions of the fair will be a baby show. For the handsomest baby, under one year old, an elegant silver service will be given. The exhibition will take place at Smyth's Hall on the evening of the third day of the fair. The judges are Governor Straw, ex-Governors Weston, Stearns, Harriman, Smyth and Goodwin, and Judges Daniel Clark and J. E. Sargent.

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, sarcobe, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. Its selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells just because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserves to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic-rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing these certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Prices 50 cents, large bottle $1. J. B. Rose & Co., 33 Broadway, New York.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Importance of Healthy Blood.

Every drop of blood that circulates through the veins eventually becomes a solid particle of the human body, and if impurities are merely solidified blood, and upon the quality of the blood depends the condition of the whole physical system. Unless the liquid material by which the human substance is renewed and sustained is pure and nutritious it is impossible that the body can be healthy and strong. One of the most important properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is that of improving the condition of the vital fluid when infected or impoverished. Acting directly and powerfully upon the stomach, in which the manufacture of the blood is commenced, and upon the liver which secretes a fluid next in importance to the stream of life itself, this powerful vegetable tonic and alterative has an immense indirect influence upon the circulation. Hence the extraordinary cures wrought by the Bitters in cases of general debility, malarious fevers, rheumatism, biliousness, constipation, &c.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is contaminated and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the disease commenced and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $2, by all Druggists. 6S8

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 1s6

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir.—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine without obtaining any relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking the VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly,

THOMAS E. MOORE,

Overseer of the Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPTOMS.—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine; The mouth is clammy, or has a sour or bitter taste. Other frequent symptoms are waterbrash, palpitation of the heart, headache and disorders of the senses, as seeing double, &c. There is general debility, languor, and aversion to motion; phantom of the spirits, disturbed sleep and frightful dreams.

FEEL MYSELF A NEW MAN.

What I Know About Vegetine.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 9, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking VEGETINE about the middle of last winter and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will affect me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine, to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 336 Athens Street.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, BADNESS, DEBILITY AND HUMOR.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an alkaline, easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 10, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE NO. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury the same below the ebb tide, or River below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers for order or notice for same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complainant before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE NO. 10.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 3. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Kittery High School Examination.

The annual examination of the Kittery High School took place Friday forenoon, and was very satisfactory to the school committee and the parents and friends of the pupils. Mr. Mirandus R. Dustin, a graduate of Dartmouth college, has been principal for the last two years, and under his care the school has advanced greatly in usefulness as a place where the pupils learn to exercise not only their memories but their minds. On this occasion the High School for the first time sent forth a graduating class—Misses Susie E. Paul, Nellie Perry and Dora Rodgers. The examination was searching, and not only gave the parents and visitors present a good idea as to how much the pupil had profited by their teaching, but of the methods employed, as well.

In the evening there was an Exhibition in the M. E. church, which was filled to overflowing with the parents and friends of the pupils at an early hour. Rev. S. A. Hutchinson of Kittery opened the meeting with prayer, which was followed by a song of greeting, by the school. The order of exercises were as follows:—

Salutatory,	Susie Paul.
Composition, "Beneath the Sea,"	Mary Steele.
Recitation, "Children Speculation,"	Hattie Green.
Declamation, "The Ship of State,"	John Foote.
Duet, Annie Leavitt and Flora Hayes.
Recitation, "The Pauper's Death-bed,"	Sadie Neal.
Declamation, "The American Flag,"	Horace Junkins.
Composition, "Inspiration,"	Ada Fernald.
Composition, "The Age of Small Beginnings,"	Annie T. Leavitt.
Song, "Beautiful Summer," School.
Composition, "Our Class,"	Nellie Perry.
Recitation, "The Dying Soldier,"	Etta Dinsmore.
Declamation, "The Sepinole's Reply,"	D. E. Parker.
Recitation, "Nick Van Stam,"	Myra McFarland.
Song, "Beggar Girl," Flora Hayes.
Declamation, "The Deacon's Message,"	Andrew Wentworth.
Composition, "Gleaners,"	Edith Warren.
Recitation, "The Creed of the Bells,"	Estelle Mason.
Composition, "The Immortality of Literature,"	Susie E. Paul.
Declamation, "The Execution of Monrose,"	Edward Getchell.
Composition, "Satisfactory Success in Life,"	Dora Hayes.
Music by School.

At the close of the exercises the diplomas were presented by Dr. D. W. Jones, in a very interesting and forcible speech, giving the class earnest advice as to what their future study and reading should be and condemning story papers of the New York Weekly and Ledger class. Rev. A. C. Hardy followed, and was listened to with deep attention as he spoke of practical education and the lack of our schools generally in this respect; though the hour was late, his hearers regretted when he finished speaking. After Mr. Hardy came Judge Locke of Florida, a former teacher in this district, with a few brief remarks. The whole affair was pleasing, and the graduating class in particular reflected credit upon the faithfulness and ability of the teacher and their own capabilities for learning. ***

The Savings Institutions of Portsmouth.

The old Portsmouth Savings Bank, incorporated in 1823, with a perpetual charter, has completed its half century of successful business the present year. It has deposits and surplus to the amount of $2,124,745. It pays 5 per cent. interest, in half yearly payments, with an extra dividend of surplus once in five years. The last extra, amounting to about four per cent., was paid in 1868; and another is now being made up from the business of the past five years, which is expected to result about the same. The number of deposits in this staunch old institution is 7090, having increased 408 the past year. Total amount of loans in this State $266,651; out of the State $285,401. Yearly expenses about $6600. Amount of State tax last year $17,219. The number of depositors of over $500, is 1249. Number of single loans of $1000 or less to parties in the State, 76. Wm. Simes is President, James F. Shores Treasurer.

The Rockingham Ten Cents Savings Bank was incorporated in 1867, with a 20 years' charter, which of course can then be renewed. This new institution appears from the Bank Commissioners' report, to have been exceedingly well managed; and it has been of much public service, through business men and mechanics in the city, in the way of small loan accommodations at home—while not a dollar has been lost.

The amount of deposits and surplus of this new and popular institution, is $456-101, at the close of its fifth year. Number of depositors 3096; increase last year 221. It pays the legally limited rate of five per cent. interest, in semi-annual payments; and will make the first extra dividend in 1874, which it is expected will foot up handsomely. The amount of loans in the State is $119,855, out of the State (less) $111,278. Yearly expenses about $3500. Number of single loans of $1000 or less in the State, 55. Aaron H. Hill has been President from the organization of the Bank, and to him in large measure is due the credit of its establishment and successful management. John Christie is Treasurer.

The new Portsmouth Trust and Guarantee Company incorporated, with a perpetual charter in 1871, has capital stock of $100,000, with deposits and surplus of $250,520. Number of depositors 468; increase the past year 338. Amount of loans in the State $98,952; out of the State $181,799. Yearly expenses $2500, besides taxes. Number of single loans in the State of $1000 or less, 51. Depositors are guaranteed from 4 to 7 per cent., according to the time their deposits remain. Geo. L. Treadwell, President, Chas. H. Rollins, Treasurer.

The Live New Yorkers.

Mayor Marvin has received the following communication addressed to the Mayor and City Councils, from Messrs. E. R. Goodrich and Samuel J. Nowell, conference committee of the New York Sons:—

Gentlemen; The Executive Committee of the "Society of the Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth, resident in New York and Brooklyn," desire to express to yourselves, to the General Committee of the Reunion Festival, and to all of their kin and friends at the old home, their sincere, heartfelt gratitude for the warm, generous hospitalities extended to them during the ever-to-be remembered 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th of July, 1873. For the cordial, wide, and unrestricted invitation; for the pleasures of anticipation upon your promises of welcome; and, for the glad, joyous welcome itself, we have a thankfulness that shall echo all our lives through.

The Society does most keenly appreciate the graceful acknowledgement of their efforts to contribute to the joys of the occasion, in your naming Manhattan Square, the beautiful spot formerly known as Haymarket Square; and they now most respectfully submit for your consideration the following proposition:—

To erect upon the square, at any point selected by yourselves, a handsome Flagstaff, and to present it, together with a large American Ensign and Pennant, to the city.—This slight recognition of your courtesy, is the wish of all our members, the contributions to its cost to be of equal amount, and to be made by the Sons and Daughters alike.

Coming Back for Repairs.

Rear Admiral Gustavus H. Scott has recommended to the Secretary of the Navy that the U. S. S. Wyoming, now lying in Hampton Roads, be sent to the Portsmouth Navy Yard, to be there fitted with new boilers, the old ones being in a very bad condition, so bad in fact that it is dangerous to get up steam in them. She left Portsmouth, October, 1871, and since then has seen more service than any other vessel on the North Atlantic station. Besides receiving new boilers she will undergo other necessary repairs before again proceeding to her station. Her officers are as follows:—Commander, W. B. Cushing, Commanding; Lieut. Commander, W. L. Johnson, Executive Officer; Lieutenants, C. T. Hutchins, C. H. West, A. R. Bowden; Ensign, Robert G. Peck; Surgeon, Thomas Hiland; Assistant Surgeon, J. W. Buell; Paymaster, J. Linsley, Jr.; Chief Engineer, G. Emmons; 2d Asst. Engineer, R. W. Milligan; Midshipmen, G. W. Mentz, C. G. Calkins; Pay Clerk, F. W. Varrell; Captain's Clerk, Charles Forbes; Gunner, J. W. McDonald; Boatswain, William Nelson.

Life Saving.

Captain John Faunce and Captain J. H. Merryman of the Navy, with Captain S. L. Kimball of Washington, have been here to select a site for a life-saving station. They finally decided to establish a station at the north end of Rye Beach in the cove next to Straw's Point. The buildings are to be erected on the land belonging to Governor Straw. The life-saving apparatus consists of life-boats, rockets, mortars, signals, and various other appliances useful in rescuing shipwrecked mariners who may be driven upon the coast. The station will be in charge of a keeper, who will be assisted by six experienced boatmen. A system of signals consisting of guns and flags by day, and guns, rockets and lights by night, will be used to put the station in communication with the Isles of Shoals and the several light-houses on the coast. The storm signal service—"Old Probabilities" will be connected with the station by telegraph. The cost of the establishment of the station will be about $5,000 and the annual expense of maintaining it about $1,500. The new buildings will soon be erected.

D. A. D.

The friends of Mr. Daniel A. Drown are informed that he has removed to the residence of Mr. Jerome Jenness, near Chesley's Corner, on Rye South Road. His post office address now is, North Hampton, Chesley's store. Those who have not purchased a copy of Mr. Drown's new volume of Poems, should do so—not more for his sake, than their own. It is a work of interest and merit, aside from all ideas of benefit to the suffering author. And the three new illustrations of Portsmouth scenes, will be found pleasing. Mr. Shillaber's arduous labor of love, in editing and examining the whole matter through the press, was neatly referred to in the speech of Rev. Dr. Peabody at the Reunion. None can appreciate it, who have not done something like it. Mr. Drown's book may be had at Foster's Bookstore, where subscribers can procure their copies.

Smutty-Nose.

The Maine papers are citing the desertion of Smutty-Nose island by the fishermen who formerly lived there, as a case of superstition. Only one house on the island was occupied, and that by the Hontvet family, two of whom were foully murdered. It isn't to be supposed that the survivors would enjoy living in that house any more.

Worse Still.

[Concord Patriot.]

By a vote of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, of Portsmouth, the name of Haymarket Square in that city is changed to Manchester Park.

Laconics.

Newington built a new Town Hall last year; Rye is now fitting up one; but Portsmouth has never felt able to afford a City Hall. It is to be hoped she may, one of these years.

The sea was exceedingly rough on Saturday, and two lumbermen han their deck loads swept off, one lot landing on Plum Island and the other on Salisbury beach. One wrecker secured 2,500,000 shingles in the scramble.

H. F. Wendell, Auctioneer, sells the valuable Real Estate on Court street, this P. M., at 6 1-2 o'clock. See Auction notice.

We agree with our neighbor, the Times, that however excellent a superintendent of the county farm Mr. Pollard may be, he should not hold that position while serving out an unexpired term as County Commissioner.

Mrs. Mary Cutts, widow of the late William Cutts, of Cutts' Island, Kittery, was severely and it is feared fatally injured on Monday by the running away of a horse, by which she was thrown out of a wagon and against a stone wall, her skull being fractured and her thigh broken. She has several children.

On Monday a teamster on the navy yard was surprised into a momentary belief that the bottom was falling out of the concern, by the sudden slumping of his heavily-loaded cart to the axles. He regained his equanimity on finding that he had merely driven upon the rotten covering of a drain.

The steward of the steamer Major took an over-dose of aconite, by mistake, Monday, and a stomach pump left him deplorably weak.

Mary Donnelley, residing on Bridge street, had a leg broken in two places on Sunday while riding with friends on York Beach, a wheel of the carriage having come off and thrown them out.

The fishing schooner Laura Alone, which went ashore at the Shoals last week, was taken off by the United States steamer Mayflower last Friday, and was towed to Kittery and placed on the ways. Her captain thinks that three or four hundred dollars will put her in good order.

The funeral of Mr. John H. Morrill was largely attended by the Odd Fellows with the Marine Band and the Fire Department with the drum corps, Sunday afternoon. Services were held at the Methodist church, which was filled to repletion.

Notice the changes in time of running trains on the Eastern Railroad.

Steamer Hoffman, Capt. Arey, will make her first trip to the Marshall House, to-day, touching at Kittery Point. She leaves Pier wharf daily at 11 o'clock. See advertisement.

The ladies and gentlemen of the citizens committee for the reception of the Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth, are requested to meet at the Council room, this (Tuesday) evening at eight o'clock.

HINTS TO YACHTSMEN.

See that your rudder is made of h-ebu; and it will be well to have a ploughman on board; as, in the event of losing your wheel, you may use him as a tiller.

It is not well to have your new oars carred, as they may become feathered as well, which will be unpleasant.

In cruising off the Isle of Wight, do not go too near the Needles, as you may run on the points; tack often, and set every stitch of canvass.

If your boat's crew will sing as they pull, then the seats may be described as merry thwarts.

If your vessel springs a leak, and you wish to examine the bottom, do not expect to find a gridiron because you are off the chops of the channel.

In a duck-hunt if the boats happen to come into a collision, then of course it is a fowl hunt; the cockswain may make this little joke.

In a man-of-war, the fowls are not kept in the cock-pit.

Cats-paws are generally found off the Mouse (lightship.)

Do not hail a friend's yacht as ship-a-hoy, unless you wish to insult him, as he may not like his vessel taken for a coaster.

There is no necessity to have a light on the cabin stairs at night, as you will always have a companion to guide you down.

Wine is not kept in the binnacle; but keep it on the larboard side of the ship, especially the port wine.

When your ship rides at her anchor it is not always with a horse, sir (hawser;) neither is the gig attached to one either.

OF

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, Boston." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a Journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evil of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 699 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract be awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. ow jl

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and renover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is in a sluggish circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is recommended by Medical Examiners, Physicians, Rolls, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly adapted to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, invigorate the LIFE-GIVING FOUNTAINS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

To SHORTEN DISEASE, TAKE, as JURUBEBA is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

HOW SHE SAWS WOOD.

[Danbury News.]

Did you ever see a woman undertake to saw wood? It is always a little while before dinner, when the pies won't bake, and the potatoes absolutely refuse to come to the boiling point, and the only stick of wood is exactly three inches too long. After vain attempts to prove the elasticity of matter by putting a two-foot three inch stick into a two foot stove, she goes out to a saw horse, puts her knee on the refractory stick in the way she has seen men do. But the edges of the wood are sharp and she takes it down again with an ejaculation, and with a growing disregard for appearances, puts her foot on it instead. Her hair never fails to come down at this juncture, and she has to stop and twist it into a tight knot behind before beginning to saw. Here the saw commences a frantic jumping and skipping on its own account, and the whole feminine mind being concentrated upon keeping up the foot that is up, and down the foot that should be down, until, in an unlucky moment, the centre of gravity is lost, the stick flies up and launches a blow at her nose just as somebody is going by. She stops and pretends to be looking for something, while dark thoughts of divorce and separation flash through her mind, and she vows in her innocent soul that she will never attempt to saw wood again if there never is any dinner. But her pride and her dinner are at stake, and all her native obstinacy comes to the surface; she will conquer that stick or die. Fired by a new fury, she succeeds in sawing two-thirds of the way through, and breaking off the rest of it—it is a rotten rail—she goes into the house to find the potatoes boiled dry, and the pie in a state of sodden uncertainty. The children come home from school, and the husband from his shop, and find a kind of hushed solemnity in the air, and no pie for dinner. The meridianal meal is eaten in silence and bitterness of heart, and then the wife of his bosom inquires if she is expected to take care of the stable and feed the pigs, as well as saw wood. The man says, "Hang it all, I forgot," and the woman drops her sarcasm and breaks down in the declaration that she n-e-v-e-r w-i-l-l d-o l-t a-g-a-i-n, n-e-v-e-r. But she will; she will do it tomorrow, and the next day and the day after, for one of the things that women never will learn is that she cannot saw wood.

BOOTS AT A SARATOGA HOTEL.

[John Paul's Letter to N. Y. Tribune.]

In Congress Hall, however, I remark no changes; the furniture is about as it was. I thought, indeed, that I detected a new spittoon or two, and a boot-jack that was not there last year. But one can never be certain about spittoons—sometimes you think it a new one, and 'tis only the old one washed; and the boot-jack I have since learned belongs to a guest, and was left lying around inadvertently. It may be that he set it out to catch a pair of boots that he had lost, for a good deal of leather gets adrift over there. Five years ago, the first year the house was opened, I rashly set out a pair of shoes in the hall to be cleaned. In the morning they were gone. Next night I set out a pair of boots, and in the morning the shoes were there and the boots were gone. As I had rather lose the shoes than the boots, I next night set out the shoes, and, as a delicate intimation of my readiness for trade, also set out a pair of old slippers. Next morning both slippers and shoes were gone. I had nothing left for bait, and the proprietor said he was only responsible for things deposited in the safe at the office. I always put on my oldest leathers now when I go across the way, apprehensive that the same boot and shoe fiend may be about.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 23, 1873.

Love and Murder.

"Love and Matrimony" used to be the formula, but like many other excellent things of former days it is out of date now. "Love and Murder," with enough suicide to give a pleasing variety thrown in, being the modern combination. Possibly the article now in the market under the name of "love" has become deteriorated from what it was formerly, like most every article of commerce; possibly it may be adulterated with so much avarice or selfish passion as to be no longer wholesome; possibly some totally different article of manufacture has been substituted for the genuine Garden of-Eden variety, which was of so self-sacrificing a kind that Adam and Eve were each desirous of giving all the credit of gathering the choice apples to the other. Whatever the cause, the effect of indulgence in what is called love is such as to make it perilous for man or woman to have anything to do with it in these days.

One of its effects, and the least harmful one, is to cause the partakers to kill themselves when they find out that their blissful delusions are not to become realities. As a sample, Miss Abbie Rollins, a young woman of irreproachable character and only twenty-one years of age, residing in Manchester, in this State, drowned herself in the canal on Thursday, because something calling itself a man, after winning her affections, had deserted her for another woman. And Ella Batchelder, of Portland, Me., drowned herself last week because of a quarrel with her lover, Walter Howe; and he followed suit in this sinful game by fatally shooting himself with a pistol on Sunday afternoon. Bad business all around, and very foolish, too, but not so injurious and criminal as if they had killed each other.

But modern "love" more generally runs to murder than to suicide—murder either of the object of adoration or of some real or supposed rival The love entertained by the drunken brute MacFarland for his wife was not sufficient to make him live respectably or treat her decently, but was strong enough to impel him to murder the man to whom she had transferred her affections, and who had already forgiven the worthless drunkard one attempt at assassination. Jim Fisk stole railroads and "mints o' money," owned opera houses and steamboat lines, drove magnificent teams and dictated to judges what decisions they should give; Stokes was blessed with the friendship of the noble Fisk; and yet they were not happy, for their mutual "love" for a shameless harlot created a disturbance, made Fisk pursue Stokes to his utter ruin and finally made Stokes kill Fisk. Sackett was so much in love with Jennie Bates that he had to kill her other lover and attempt to kill her, for which he was put to death. Kate Stoddard (if her own story is to be believed) murdered her paramour—or husband— all for love. At Hudson, in this State, a young man murdered a girl whose only offence was that she possessed too much good sense to accept him for a husband, and then successfully blew out the cavity where his brains should have been. And Joseph Fitzgerald, of Central Falls, R. I., on Thursday attempted to kill his brother's widow because she refused to marry him. Verily, the course of true love is much like Market street, and evidently the only safe line of conduct to pursue, in view of the usually fatally results of falling in love, is for men and women to keep clear of it altogether. Amuse yourself by smoking in a powder magazine, by pounding a can of nitro-glycerine with a sledge hammer, or by trying to get on the cars after they are under good headway; but keep clear of modern "love," if you desire that your days may be long in the land.

It is asserted that Gen. Butler will be a candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, even if he fails to receive the Republican nomination. The average Democrat of the Bay State, it is declared, will vote for him.

The Providence Journal sums up its comments on the pother about the regatta with the following suggestive inquiry: "Of what use are our colleges if they cannot teach students to draw a straight line across a clear river."

In the French Assembly, Monday, Jules Favre attacked the Government's home policy and denounced the alliance between the monarchists and Bonapartists. Disorder followed, but a vote of confidence in the government was passed, 400 to 270.

A dispatch from Louisiana, in Northern Missouri, says that eight deaths from cholera occurred there between eight and twelve o'clock, Sunday night, and great excitement prevails. Hundreds of citizens are preparing to leave. The disease is also said to prevail at Troy, Hannibal and other places in that part of the State.

Isaac Logan was stabbed and killed with a pitchfork by Michael Keaven, at Linden, Union county, New Jersey. Logan was in a field, loading a wagon with hay, when Keaven, who had been on a spree, came up and took a pitchfork from him and stabbed him three times in the lower part of the body, inflicting wounds from which he died.

The Hussey will case, which has excited considerable interest in York County, having been tried three times since 1871, the appellates claiming that undue influence was exerted over him when making the will, has been finally settled by the heirs at law making an equitable distribution of the estate and the case has been stricken from the records.

Boston has now raised money enough for at least five free excursions for the children of the poor, and the good work will, therefore be resumed. It is hoped to be able to give eight during the season, that all the poor children in the city may have a part in them, without unpleasant crowding.

The (Chicago) Tribune prophesies that when Prof. Wise sets out on his trans-Atlantic balloon trip,his air-ship will probably move upon its eastward way, till it gets over Windham county, Conn., when it will drop into an apple orchard. The proprietor will appear with his hired men, pitchforks, clubs, etc., and demand incredible sums for their trespassing upon his premises with their "darned old basket," and, broken in spirits and pocket, the aeronauts will seek the Graphic office to drop a silent tear.

The Portland Press proposes lynching for a man in that city who ties up his eight year old child by the thumbs and leaves it so for several hours and otherwise abuses the poor creature.

A boy eight years old, named Cummings, fell from a hay-loft on Sunday at Biddeford, striking on a horse-rake, which pierced his heart. He died in five minutes.

The "hard labor" to which Frank Walworth is condemned at Sing Sing, is practically that of a clerk in a boot and shoe factory, with the necessity of living near the shop. Many a young man has been subjected to this dull career without having killed his father.

A CURIOUS DREAM.

[Baltimore American.]

About 9 o'clock on Saturday morning a colored girl, on Park avenue, near Hoffman street, dreamed that her sister's child, a little boy, had fallen into the sink attached to the dwelling. On awakening she immediately gave the alarm, and in a few moments Sergeant Handy, Officers Tighe and Carey were on the ground and tore up the floor, and went to work earnestly to recover the child's body. The vault was over 35 feet deep, and in consequence the officers could not do much from the top, as they had no grappling irons. A colored man named Zachariah Taylor, finally offered to go down into the vault and try to find the body with the aid of a long pole. Officer Carey fastened a rope around the man's body and he was lowered into the vault, several citizens and the three officers holding the rope. After lowering the man about 18 feet he was stopped to make a search for the body. During the progress of the search a colored woman in one of the houses near by cried out that the child had been found asleep under a bed in her house. This news so astonished the officers and others that they let go the rope that held the man, and down he went some four or five feet, when Officer Carey managed to catch the rope and hold it until others came to his assistance and the man was drawn out more dead than alive. But for the prompt manner in which he caught and held the rope the man would have been suffocated. While the search was being made, and before the child was discovered in a neighboring house, a crowd of nearly 1,000 people had collected, and for a time great excitement prevailed in the vicinity.

THE OPPOSITION OF SATURN.

The planet Saturn is now an interesting object in the southeastern sky. He will reach his opposition with the sun on the 22d inst., when a line drawn from the sun will pass through the centre of the earth and reach the centre of Saturn.

The earth will then be directly between the sun and planet, and at her nearest approach to her mighty brother, for the distance between them will be only about 600,000 miles, while, when in conjunction with the sun on the opposite side of his orbit, his distance is 590,000,000 miles. It is not strictly true that Saturn will be at his least distance at the coming opposition, for it is only when his opposition occurs in winter, as he is in perihelion or nearest approach to the sun at the same time, that he is at his nearest point to us. He then takes on his most brilliant appearance, although at an ordinary opposition his increased size and brightness are plainly discernible.

Saturn is easily recognized now in the southeast, about an hour after sunset, in the constellation Capricornus, passing in retrograde motion through the small stars of the cluster. He will rise at sunset on the 22d, and set at sunrise the next morning, after which he will become an evening star. The appearance of Saturn to the naked eye is the most uninteresting of any of the visible planets. He shines with a dull, muddy color, and to this circumstance is probably due the baleful influence ascribed to his ascendency by ancient astrologers. They attributed every evil under the sun except war to his pernicious power, and unlucky was the horoscope when his dismal beams lighted the natal hour.

But the telescope has brought a change; and Saturn with his ring system, his satellites, and the exquisite coloring which marks the belts upon his disc, is to terrestrial observers the most marvellously beautiful creation of Almighty Power, not even excepting the great sun himself.

SPANISH TURBULENCE.

The crews of the Spanish men-of-war Almanza, Vittoria, Mendez, Nunez, and Fernando I. Catolico having revolted, the government has issued a proclamation declaring them pirates and authorizing their capture and treatment as such by any foreign power on the high seas.

The majority in the Cortes propose to move a vote of censure on the government for declaring the insurgent crews pirates.

It is reported that Price, a member of the International Society of England, is in command of one of the revolted men-of-war.

An attempt was made to assassinate Marshal Serrano while walking in the grounds of his villa, at Biarritz, on Sunday. The assassin has been arrested.

The Carlists have sacked and burned the town of Igualada.

POOR MUG.

"Muggins is dead. His young life went out suddenly at about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, taking with it $15 cash. 'Muggins,' said his owner, 'was no ordinary dog; if he had a fault it was too much firmness, and when he got hold of one of those young ones in Trask's block, as he did almost every day, nothing short of nitro glycerine would shake him off.' On that fatal afternoon Muggins sauntered down the railroad, looking for a boy. One stood in a doorway—a plump-legged, mature babe—and Muggins resolved to wait for him. As we have said before, Muggins was set in his way; he lay down on the track with one eye on that boy. Presently the down train hove in sight. Muggins was not going to get up—let the train turn out if it wanted to. Nearer thundered and glittered the engine; the boy came out a step; Muggins got up; the boy went back again. Muggins lay down again—and in an instant his poor mangled body was hurled into the ditch by the track side. The boy who had innocently caused the slaughter ran up to the dying dog and reached down to him; slowly the iron jaw shut on the plump hand; a look of unutterable satisfaction lighted up his glazing eyes, and Muggins was dead."

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. Where the parts are not gone, its effects are marvelous. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, ear-ache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells just because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling deserves to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing these certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Prices 50 cents, large bottle $1. J. B. Rose & Co., 53 Broadway, New York.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS. 6t8

Midsummer Malaria.

At this season the heat of the sun liberates from the soil, the water and the filth of cities immense quantities of unwholesome gases which the strongest can scarcely inhale with impunity, and which develope the most distressing diseases in the weak and feeble. It is, therefore, of paramount importance to invigorate the body in hot weather. Vitalize and strengthen the stomach and the nervous system with at least two doses per day of Hostetter's stomach Bitters, and you will be sure to escape the fits of indigestion, attacks of bilious colic, sick headaches, diarrhoea and dysenteries which are so common at this season. Be prudent. A little care and forecast exercised now, may prevent your being prostrated by remittent and intermittent fever, or by chronic bowel or liver complaint throughout the fall. When vigor is oozing out of every pore under the rays of an almost vertical sun, this genial vegetable tonic supplies to the nervous system an ailment which enables it to withstand the drain.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $2, by all Druggists. 6t8

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

The PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL for August is on our table with an excellent variety of seasonable reading. The main topics discussed in a lively, entertaining, and always instructive style, are:—The late Joseph Howe, Lieut-Gov. of Nova Scotia; Prophecy, Ancient and Modern; Dr. Horace Wells and the Discovery of Anæsthesia; How to Use Phrenology; The late Oakes Ames, M. C.; Living to Work vs. Working to Live; Power of Application; Compulsory Attendance; Study of the Natural Science; Turning Points in Life; The Reason Why; Agricultural Hints; Progress in Virginia; The Eagle Owl; Handsome Faces and Bad Dispositions, etc. $3 a year, with a Chromo premium. Address S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York.

Bret Harte begins in the August number of SCRIBNER'S his new story "An Episode of Fiddletown," promised last fall. This story, for which the publisher paid Mr. Harte $1,000, probably the highest price ever paid for any of its length, will run through three numbers of the magazine, ending in October. It is in Mr. Harte's best vein, and has been graphically illustrated by Sheppard. The second chapter contains a prose description of the Heathen Chinee, with a picture by Sheppard, both of which are quite unsurpassed. One of the best articles in the August number is "Fred Trover's Little Iron Clad."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE No. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complainant before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE No. 100.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 3. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for such refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

"Down River."

It is not granted to the lot of every mortal to go down our river, catch fish enough for a chowder and then go ashore and make and devour it. Many thousands have done so, however, and sung over and over again the praises of such a delightful excursion. But we believe that it has been reserved for us (one of the least among the attaches of the CHRONICLE) to experience a trip of the character alluded to, which fairly "lays over" anything of the kind that ever took place in the history of our brief career. There was no remarkable incident connected with it, however, neither was it attended by any brilliant circumstance that would cause it to stick out in memory's calendar like a big gas-bill or a half-yearly water rate (when you have depended on your most remote neighbors for water for nearly the whole six months.) But it was the general details of the affair that constituted it such a pre-eminent success, just as the minor touches make the fine and perfect picture.

We don't propose to weary the general reader with a detailed account of our day's experience. Because what does the aforesaid reader care whether we went down river or staid at home. We know too much about human nature,—in other words we know how it is ourselves—too well to undertake to consume the time and trespass upon the patience of the patrons of this paper in a prosy account of sailing, fishing and dining. We only write this for the purpose of laying down a proposition for our friends to demonstrate, if they care to, viz: When you go down river, go with a good company—and that always may be defined as, those of your kind. Having this much secured toward your prospective happiness look out for every detail of the expedition, such as a good boat, lines, bait, ice, pots and pans—and lots of other culinary apparatus of which you can learn from any good down river caterer—plenty of good water, and little "fixins" that our space will not permit us to enumerate; secure a good place to fish, a good place in which to land, make your chowder, fry your cunners and eat your dinner, and you are all right.

Now we do not claim to have imparted any new information respecting the subject of which we are writing, our only object being to tell how we enjoyed our trip and to enjoin upon those about to spend a day similarly, to pay particular attention to the little things that if forgotten will cause a pang of regret and mar the enjoyment of what might have been a happy occasion.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Monday evening, (special meeting) Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett appeared and formally laid before the Board the matter of improving Richards avenue under the will and bequest of the late Mrs. Mary Cutts, and submitted a plan of the proposed improvements, drawn by Mr. Johnson, the civil engineer of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad.

A communication was received from the Sons of Portsmouth resident in New York, respecting "Manhattan Square" and a flagstaff and flags for the same.

On motion of Ald. Sise, the vote renaming Haymarket square and calling it Manhattan Park was reconsidered, and the word "Square" was substituted for that of "Park," so that the name now stands "Manhattan Square."

The question of the widening of Fleet street was brought up by the presentation of a petition from many citizens that the street be widened, on the east side, so that it shall be 38 feet, 5 inches wide. On motion of Ald. Wilson it was voted to grant the petitioners a hearing on Wednesday evening, August 6th.

On motion, Ald. Wilson, Davis, and the committee on streets, were appointed a committee to confer with Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett regarding the Richards avenue improvements.

It was voted to accept the offer of the New York Sons regarding a flag-staff on Manhattan Square, and the Mayor was authorized to notify them thereof; and the Mayor and committee on streets were appointed a committee to locate the flagstaff.

Ald. Sise and the committee on printing were appointed a special committee to consider the question of arranging and printing the City Ordinances, to report at the next meeting.

Laconics.

Cholera bullets are a cent apiece in Portsmouth.

It will be remembered that at the High School reunion on the 5th, James T. Fields, Esq., referred to Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, President of the Association, as the person who loaned him the copy of Virgil which Mr. Fields studied. Mr. Hackett has hunted up the well-worn volume and on Tuesday presented it to Mr. Fields, in remembrance of "auld lang syne."

The many friends of Dr. William H. Smart, Jr., of Concord, formerly of Newcastle, will be pleased to learn that he has so far recovered from the painful accident of two months ago as to be out again. While splitting wood on the 16th of May, a knot struck the right eye. He has been under the care of Dr. Williams, of Boston, and the eye has healed perfectly, though the sight is gone.

Gold mining has taken a new start in Lisbon. Portsmouth parties have an interest in it.

The ladies connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church are to have a tea meeting in their chapel on Daniel Street, this (Wednesday) afternoon and evening. Supper from half-past five to eight o'clock. Ice cream, lemonade, &c., will be served. A good time is expected. Everybody is invited.

The residence of Mr. John Stokell on Court street, was purchased at auction, Tuesday, by Mr. Augustus K. Brown for $3225.

At a special meeting of Sagamore S. F. E. Co., No. 2, Monday evening, it was voted to accept the invitation extended to them by Essex S. F. E. Co., No. 4, of Lawrence, to visit their city Thursday and Friday, July 24th and 25th. They will be accompanied by the Dover Cornet Band.

The auditing committee will meet this evening at seven.

State News.

A young woman named Dickey, jumped into the lower canal in the Amoskeag yard, at Manchester, with the intention of committing suicide, but was rescued by parties who saw her, before drowning. Her boarding mistress says that she has acted strangely for two or three weeks past.

Arthur St. Clair, son of Adjutant-General Haines of Concord, who was recently run over by the cars, has died of his injuries.

Hon. John P. Hale and wife, who have been spending a few months with their daughter at West Point, have returned to Dover. Mr. Hale is much improved in health.

The Selectmen of Rochester offer a reward of $50 for information of the person who sold Lawrence Murphy liquor on the 11th inst. There is "enforcement of the law" for you. Murphy was killed on that day, while wandering on the railroad intoxicated. He leaves a dependent wife and three small children. He obtained his liquor in Great Falls.

The police of Dover are beginning to enforce the liquor law. Several important seizures have been made.

The citizens of Rochester have held a meeting and appointed a committee to back up the selectmen in a vigilant and vigorous enforcement of the liquor law.

AN ATTACK ON TEA.

A writer in St. Paul's Magazine boldly arrays himself against the opinion of all the old ladies in the land, and declares that tea is not only injurious to health, but is "a cause of national demoralization." The following gives an idea of his argument:

"The judicious use of alcohol often leads to acts of violence, but it does not stimulate the instincts of craft. It makes people sing 'Auld Lang Syne,' or 'He's a Jolly Good Fellow;' it makes them laugh, or cry, or jump about, or fall down flat, or embrace each other, or swear eternal friendship or eternal enmity, or give each other black eyes; it even makes men beat their wives. It never makes men sly. A man far gone in drink never forges a check. I do not believe there is a drunken detective in the police force. But watch the effect of tea. You never find people sing 'Auld Lang Syne' over their tea, nor do they fight over it. All is calm and peaceful on the surface. But underneath! I never drink tea without feeling as if I should like to overreach somebody directly. I feel as if it would do me good to go in for a competitive examination on the spot. I invent wooden nutmegs and dummy ship-bolts. I think of abstruse conundrums. I long to start bubble companies and forge trademarks. In a short time I experience a general relaxation of fibre. I find I have no physical courage, no patriotism, no love of man as man, no motto but caveate mptor, or, the devil take the hindmost. I am convinced that there is more short weight given by tea-drinking shopkeepers than by tipsy ones. All this seems to agree with the alleged effect of tea upon the animal economy in arresting waste. As it makes you want to keep all you get, it is natural that it is natural that it should make you want to get all you can.

I invite the attention of pathologists, pyschologists, reformers and legislators to this great question. While we have been turning our eyes upon the more obvious and vulgar evils attendant upon the free use of alcohol, we have been overlooking the insidious action of a bland and peaceful liquid which has been sapping the foundations of manhood and honesty. Alcohol sends a few to jail or to the mad-house. But tea acts through the nervous system on the conscience and turns us into a nation of snakes. Let us, then, take instant action. It would be difficult, at present, to prohibit entirely the sale of tea, but pray do what you can! You do not hesitate to pick my pocket in order to educate somebody else's child. Why should you hesitate to rob me of either money or pleasure in order to prevent the relaxation of other people's moral fibre by the use of tea?

I say, let the whole tea trade be placed under instant legislative checks. Set up visitors to go from door to door, as your School Board Inquisitors do, and let them inquire into the quantity of tea drunk in every household, whether black or mixed, and the strength of the infusion. Let every tea-dealer keep a register of his customers, and if upon a monthly or quarterly average it is found that his sales go beyond a quarter of a pound a year for each adult, fine him, or nail his ear to the door, or something of that sort. Perhaps the recent reaction in favor of severity would support you in applying to eat in such cases. All the favor I ask is that as soon as ever any Parliamentary rival of Sir Wilfred Lawson has made up his mind to bring in a bill to carry out these objects, he will oblige me with a private intimation, so that I may take care of myself (I am fond of tea) by laying in a stock that will last out my natural life, or (since tea deteriorates by keeping) that I may have time to import and cultivate the tea plant itself. If such conduct as this on the part of the introducer of such a bill seem a little at variance with principle, it will at least be admitted that it is in harmony with that spirit of enlightened compromise which distinguishes our age."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

A YOUNG HEROINE.

[Wisconsin River Pilot.]

Thomas Velfe and wife, with a family of small children, settled in this county something more than a year ago, and, being poor, they, after many hardships, erected a small dwelling and cleared a few acres of land; but they were in the wilderness, ten miles from neighbors. A few weeks ago the father and mother left their family—consisting of a girl aged twelve years, one aged nine years, and two other children, aged respectively three years and thirteen months—on a trip to the settlement to get a cow and bring in some potatoes to plant. After the parents had been gone a few hours, the house took fire, and the oldest girl immediately rushed to the roof with water, but not being able to remove the shingles, she could do nothing to stay the flames, which gained rapidly, spreading on the inside of the roof until, bursting through, they drove her from her work.

The heroic girl now turned her attention to saving her brothers and sisters. Coming to the door of the building, she found that the child next to her own age had got out of the house, bringing the baby with her, but the little three-year-old had crouched under a shaving-horse in the further corner of the room. There being no chamber floor, the fire was dropping from the burning roof between the child and the door, and when asked to come out it refused to do so, saying, "I am safe here; the fire don't drop here." Our little heroine hesitated only a moment, but rushing through the falling embers brought the little one to a safe place, both having their clothes somewhat burnt. But now comes the hardest part of the task before her. Scantily clothed and with no food, she took the babe in her arms and with the other children started upon the trail for the settlement.

After going a few miles, she encountered a rapid stream, swollen by the spring rains so that in fording it the water came up to her arm-pits. She first carried the babe across, and then the little three-year-old, and lastly half led and half carried her older sister through the water to the other bank. Three times during the remainder of the day she struggled across the swollen streams in her way until night set in, the deep forest surrounding her. Cold, wet and hungry, she sought a place to camp, and by good fortune found an old camp left by the Indians, upon which about one-half of the roof still remained. Under this she placed her little flock, and then collected pine boughs and made a rude bed.

Placing the little one in the middle, the heroic girl stripped off her dress and spread it over the children, then covered them with boughs to keep them from the chilly night air, and sat down beside them, to watch through that long, cold night, comforting the little one when it cried, and speaking words of cheer to the older one. The long, dreary hours of night dragged slowly by, and at the first peep of day she resumed her toilsome march, and had nearly reached the first settler when she met her parents returning. An older and a wiser head might have found an easier way out of the dilemma, but we feel certain that no one could have acted braver, or have endured more than the little daughter of Thomas Velfe.

A REMARKABLE DREAM.

At the third distribution of prizes for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, the ticket numbered 20,893 drew the capital prize, $100,000. This was held by Henry Baass, a German, the proprietor of a small wholesale and retail liquor store in Louisville, his share being three-fourths, and the remaining quarter being jointly held by Mr. F. J. Betchart, a saloon keeper, and Mr. Christopher Spies, a blacksmith. These three, being very particular friends, were seated in Mr Betchart's saloon some months ago, discussing their beer, when Mr. Baass proposed that they club together and purchase a ticket. The project was agreed to. Mr. Baass then said that two nights before he had dreamed that a certain number would draw the $100,000 prize, and taking a piece of chalk wrote the number upon the table. They determined to purchase it, Mr. Baass taking three-fourths and the others the remainder. The following morning Mr. Baass bought the ticket, took it home and laid it away. During the time which followed, the matter slipped from their minds and nothing more was thought of the ticket, none of the holders attending even the concert. On Thursday last, however, as Mrs. Baass was rummaging in a bureau drawer, she found the ticket and thoughtlessly glanced at it. On seeing the number she was struck with its resemblance to the prize number, and, taking it out, made a comparison with the published list and found to her utter astonishment that it was the lucky ticket. Mr. Baass being out of the city, she waited until his return, and then showed him the ticket. He immediately repaired to his friends, and together they were quietly jubilant over the result. They endeavored to keep the matter as quiet as possible, but it soon found its way out into the street, and they are now the lions of the town. Mr. Baass anticipates enlarging his business with the amount, thus, playing it where the greatest benefit will result to him. Mr. Betchart says that he will send $5000 to his aged parents in Switzerland, and with the remainder, after a reasonable allowance to be invested in a "good time," will enlarge his saloon, while Mr. Spies will, after munificently rewarding some of his employees, have a good bank account. At present all three of them are laying plans to visit the scene of their childhood and the homes of their aged parents across the sea.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to neutralize the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind colic and produce natural sleep. It contains no other minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KIDDY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 840 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. oawjl

BURGLARS.

[Danbury News.]

There is a peculiar saddening effect in awakening in the night and hearing burglars at work in your house. This was the case with Mr. Henry on South street, Friday night. As soon as he detected the noise, which appeared to be down stairs, he softly crept out of bed, and commenced to prowl around for a match. His wife was soon awakened by the same noise, and believing that something was the matter with the children who slept in the next room, she carefully withdrew from bed, so as not to disturb her husband, and started for the door. An instant later they collided. What he thought was evident enough. All the hard earnings of an arduous life were at stake. Before him stood one or more robbers. With an exclamation of condensed eloquence he clenched her. What she thought is not so evident, but it was doubtless of her husband and children, and being plucky withal, she at once twined her fingers in his hair, and gave him a wrench that made him think of death. Then both of them went down to the floor together, she having the advantage in the fall and getting on top, with her hands still in his hair; she shook his head against the floor with an energy and courage that would have undoubtedly filled him to overflowing with admiration, had he known who it was, or had he known anything at all. Every time she rapped him she shrieked for help, and in a brief space of time the children, and Mrs. Eben Davis, who lives down stairs, were on the scene. Mrs. Davis was not dressed for company, but in the excitement she didn't mind adornment. She had a candle in one hand, and a long carving fork in the other, and was about to drive the latter into the legs of the villain, when recognition ensued. Then Mrs. Davis laid down her candle in one direction and the fork in another, and immediately returned to her own apartments, her yellow flannel night-cap, as it shot down the stairs, being the first thing Mr. Henry saw on springing to his feet. The children were returned to their room, and put to bed, but the parents did not resume their couch. It was so pleasant that Mrs. Henry concluded to remain up the rest of the night and enjoy the scenery, and Mr. Henry thought it best to stay up, too, to change the cloths on his head as often as possible.

Readables.

The Buffalo Express says that the result of Boston's economical style of celebrating Independence Day was that the boys woke up on Saturday morning with a "full hand" of fingers and with the usual number of eyes apiece, but they consider the Boston city government the very meanest concern that ever existed.

In a Kansas town recently, a fine looking young woman, Miss Alice Johnson, opened a barber's shop and gave her personal attention to the shaving. The effect was exceedingly peculiar. Moved by a common impulse, all the wives of the town were animated by a desire to present to their husband some small tokens of affection, and these singular to relate, took the form of razors and brushes and beautiful shaving mugs, while not a few were converted to the mustache movement, and declared full beards to be the only wear.

The noisy celebration of the Fourth of July is chargeable with many sad results. One of these is related as follows:—Colonel James Garvin was lying sick in Cincinnati of brain fever. On the morning of the 4th, he was much better and the physician pronounced him out of danger. But then commenced the cannonading and shooting and hurrahing. He became excited, fancied himself in the heat of battle, all day long continued wildly shouting commands and urging his men to fight, and after a day of violent paroxysms, sank into sleep and soon died.

A "civil damage" case was brought to trial recently at Ogdensburg, a woman having sued a liquor dealer for selling to her husband. The defendant paid damages and costs amounting to forty dollars, saying that he had given his bar-tender instructions not to sell liquor to certain persons, among whom was the plaintiff's husband.

The Boston Post of Saturday says: "A great many persons were made incoherent yesterday by the warm weather, coupled with the fact that the bars were closed, and nothing could be obtained to counteract its effects."

The Ohio State Journal asserts that as the Democratic party in that State is dead, it would be altogether appropriate to nominate Vallandigham for Governor. He hasn't been dead very long—not longer than the party itself.

A Democratic organ in Alabama, called the Limestone News, feels compelled to say "that if it can do any better, it fights no more under the Democratic flag." It further adds: "There is not a scrap of the old Democratic banner left big enough to darn a hole in the seat of a pair of breeches;" and furthermore, "One had as well sing hymns to a dead mule as to undertake to reconcile the animosities engendered by last year's folly."

The Springfield Republican ridicules the idea of nominating Colonel Charles G. Greene, editor of the Boston Post, against General Butler, for Governor of Massachusetts. Colonel Greene is a straight-out, or rather a Conservative Democrat, and the Republican says: "The man who does the serious running against Butler this year will be a man who voted for Ulysses S. Grant last fall. That is fact number one. The bulk of the old Democratic vote in this State is going to Benjamin F. Butler in this canvass, if he gives it a chance." The Boston Traveler, which is accredited with being the organ of General Butler, thinks that "the loud whistling" of his opponents is only a cover to great restlessness and alarm. It is confident that he will be nominated and elected.

The disastrous collision of the United States war-ship Oneida with the British ship Bombay in the harbor of Yokohama, nearly three years ago, is recalled by the announcement that a monument to the victims has been erected at Yokohama. It was made at Hong Kong, of two massive pieces of granite, one weighing nine and the other thirteen tons, and contains the names of the twenty officers who went down. It was a singular coincidence that, while the monument was being loaded on board the United States ship Yantic at Hong Kong, the Bombay was lying at anchor less than two hundred yards away.

A Detroit carpenter laid down his hand axe for a moment, and a boy named Thomas picked it up and went to chopping a board. A blow severed his right big toe at the second joint and the next one near the end, and then the boy laid the hand axe softly down, and went out of the chopping business.

Long John Wentworth owns seven thousand acres of land within twelve miles of the Chicago Court House.

An inventive youth, residing in Detroit, Mich., has made a huge kite in the shape of a six-pointed star, and a few evenings ago he attached red and white lights to four of the points and sent it up into the air. The result the Post tells us thus: "It was extremely dark at the time, and nothing was visible but the lights, which, from the position of the kite, took the shape of a cross. Being the only lights visible in the heavens, the phenomena, as many regarded it, attracted considerable attention, and got a few were at a loss as to its nature. Ignorant servant girls, in particular, were much alarmed, believing it a fiery cross in the heavens betokening the destruction of the world. Nor could their fears be allayed by telling them the nature of the concern." One gentleman, who resides on Park street, near Charlotte avenue, found his two domestics in the back yard upon their knees praying vehemently, and the cook of a neighbor commenced packing her trunk in hot haste."

State News.

A switchman at Dover neglected to arrange a switch properly, Saturday evening, and the up-express train from Portland ran off the track between Franklin and Charles streets, smashing the underworks of the tender and burying the locomotive wheels in the earth.

Hon. John P. Hale fell and broke his hip at Dover on Tuesday.

A little son of Mr. G. G. Lowell, in Dover, had his finger sawed off, Saturday, while playing with a circular saw.

A little boy playing with powder at Sawyer's Mills, near Dover, Sunday, got some of it in his shoes, when it exploded, blowing him up a short distance, badly burning his feet and legs, but doing no other serious harm.

The Providence Journal remarks that "it is significant of the tendency of the times that an announcement is made that the New England Agricultural Society, which holds its next annual fair at the Mystic Park racing grounds, will almost entirely abandon the offering of premiums for fruits and flowers, and will discontinue several other classes of premiums, to enable the Agricultural Society to "offer more than usual inducements for the display of specimens of equine beauty and strength." Thus rapidly do our agricultural fairs "degenerate towards the grade of the once disreputable and illegal horse race."

THE RAILROAD WAR.

[Portland Press.]

Yesterday the officers of the Eastern and Maine Central Railroad Companies were in consultation in parlor No. 7, of the Falmouth. Among those present were President Lothrop of the Eastern, President Morrill of the Maine Central, and Messrs. Pierce and Drummond. The only matter considered was a reply to the demand of the Boston & Maine for a connection with the Maine Central. On this subject there was no discussion, as no officer of the Eastern or Maine Central entertains any idea of acceding to the demand. Several replies were made by various gentlemen to the demand of President White, but that of President Morrill was taken, which we are permitted to copy from the original, which is in the hand writing of that gentleman, and throughout abounds in his vigorous and characteristic expressions.

It is very evident that the Eastern and Maine Central do not propose to be caught napping. Positive orders have been given to Mr. Bachelder, agent of the Eastern and Maine Central at this place to keep a strict watch to prevent the cutting of the rails of the Maine Central by the Boston & Maine to make a connection. If such an attempt is made, he has the most emphatic orders to resist it with force, even to the summoning of the entire force of the road to the threatened point. Indeed, if we got a clear idea of the emphatic words of the Maine Central President to Mr. Bachelder, he is to run all the engines of the road on any part of the line threatened by hostile force. Of course that decided official did not say it; but he looked as though he meant to transform each of those engines into an Assyrian war chariot, which rushing to and fro along the threatened line, with their terrible scythes mow down the luckless partizans of the Boston & Maine that came in the way, and even if this would not suffice to daunt the invaders, equip the engines with batteries of the murderous French mitrailleuse.

The Maine Central officials fear that if the Boston & Maine should by any means effect a junction, not only would their trains go over that line, but taken into the courts, it might be decided by them to let the connection continue. Therefore, if in any event, the Boston & Maine should effect a junction, Mr. Bachelder has positive orders to destroy it at any hazard. In short, the Eastern and Maine Central mean to resist—to meet force with force—if necessary. The following is the letter of President Morrill:

AUGUSTA, July 21st.

Hon. N. G. White, President of the Boston & Maine Railway,

SIR:—A copy of a communication without date, over your signature, has been put into my hands, making certain demands on the Maine Central Railroad Company and promising us certain legal and illegal or forcible action, unless your request was granted. I very cheerfully comply with your request for an answer, though I had not the honor to receive that extraordinary paper until it had been given to the daily press, for which it had evidently been written.

Your first allegation and principal complaint are, that we are "now maintaining at Portland an actual connection of rails with the Portland, Saco & Portsmouth Railroad," and exchanging with said Company, passengers and freight cars and doing a connecting business generally, "on terms unknown to you." It is true that we are doing and have been doing for quite a long time a connecting business with the P. S. & P. and Eastern railways, making a through line between Bangor and Boston, and giving such accommodations, facilities and despatch to the public as are not excelled by any railway line in New England, and we have good reason to believe that, our success in forming such a line, after years of laborious effort, is being appreciated by the traveling and business community.

Time and again your Company refused to do our through business on the same favorable terms which we at length negotiated with the roads of which you complain, and yet, you would have the public infer that you have been kept in entire ignorance of the terms upon which the connection was entered into.

You "demand" that we allow you to connect your rails with ours at Portland and that we exchange and transport your cars over our road; granting to said cars facilities equal to those granted by us to any cars to or from other roads and that we exchange freight bills, tickets, etc. Now you are aware that all the connecting railways to which you refer, have become such by mutual agreement, and that efforts were made by us to have the Boston & Maine Railroad enter into such arrangement, which you persistently refused to do unless you were paid a large per centage more for the through traffic taken over your road than was demanded by the roads with which we have connected; and to this hour, to our knowledge, you have not receded from your demand. Are you, then, in a position to force a connection and thrust your your cars upon our line while you deny us the facilities and inducements other roads have granted us?

In answer to your declaration that you are ready and will pay all legal and proper charges upon said cars, freight and baggage, I beg to remind you that you are withholding from our road and that with which we are connected, more than $100,000 of money earned on our road or through business collected by you.

Finally, you demand of us to designate prior to the 23d inst. a suitable place and manner for said connection to your acceptance; in default of which, you propose, per force, to cut our rails and make the coveted connection! You certainly cannot expect that we will in the few days allowed us by your demand make the necessary arrangements to become connecting roads to the extent you propose, when years of negotiation, on account of your severe terms, failed to make such a consummation.

We trust you will not attempt to carry into execution the rash measures you threaten, of taking forcible possession of our road. A few months only have elapsed since you asked the Legislature of Maine to give you authority to do what you now threaten to perpetrate, and which, after a full hearing, was denied you by that body. Surely you will not compel us to "resist" an attempt to cut our rails in the face of that recent admonition.

For years, heretofore, you did a large share of the through business brought to Portland over the Maine Central and its connecting branches, for which you demanded and have received exorbitant prices. Our appeals to you for concession and reduction of rates, in the infancy of our road, were unheeded and unanswered. You compelled us in our extremest poverty to contribute unreasonably to increase the large dividends paid your stockholders and materially advance the value of your stocks annually. Meantime your Maine tributaries struggled vainly to meet current expenses and pay interest on bonded debt. None of these things moved your compassion or lessened your extortion. Fortunately, we have been able to secure, by the occurrence of events of which you are familiar, terms for our through business, which promise most favorable results to the people and railroad interests of our State. Your present bold demands and threats of violent occupation of our property are evidently inspired by a desperate determination to break up our present favorable arrangements and force us back to the former state of things when your exactions were measured by the amount of revenue that could be collected of us without absolutely stopping the locomotives that brought a vast business to your door.

We hope successfully to resist an effort fraught with such manifest injustice and danger; beyond that we seek no controversy with the Boston and Maine Railroad. Our position is and will be defensive, from which we shall not be moved by the threats of violent action or legal prosecution with which you have announced to the public through the press you are about to visit us.

Very respectfully yours,

ANSON P. MORRILL,

President of Maine Central Railroad Co.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS. 088

Midsummer Malaria.

At this season the heat of the sun liberates from the soil, the water and the filth of cities immense quantities of unwholesome gases which the strongest can scarcely inhale with impunity, and which develope the most distressing diseases in the weak and feeble. It is, therefore, of paramount importance to invigorate the body in hot weather. Vitalize and strengthen the stomach and the nervous system with at least two doses per day of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and you will be sure to escape the fits of indigestion, attacks of bilious colic, sick headaches, diarrhœas and dysenteries which are so common at this season. Be prudent. A little care and forecast exercised now, may prevent your being prostrated by remittent and intermittent fever, or by chronic bowel or liver complaint throughout the fall. When vigor is oozing out of every pore under the rays of an almost vertical sun, this genial vegetable tonic supplies to the nervous system an aliment which enables it to withstand the drain.

Pints and quarts of filthy Catarrhal discharges. Where does it come from? The mucous membrane lining the chambers of the nose, and its little glands, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and exposure to the air changes it into corruption. This life liquid was to build up the system, but it is extracted and the system is weakened by the loss. To cure, gain strength by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which also acts directly upon these glands, correcting them, and apply Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, the only method of reaching the upper cavities, where the discharge accumulates and comes from. The instrument and two medicines sold for $5, by all Druggists. 088

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 1s6

VEGETINE.—By it use you will prevent many of the diseases prevailing in the Spring and Summer season.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE NO. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complainant before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE NO. 100.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 3. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

C. R. S. P.

At a meeting of the citizens' general committee which had charge of the reception of the Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth at the recent reunion, held Tuesday evening, it was unanimously voted to allow the City Guards the sum of $500 in accordance with the recommendation of the City Councils.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the recent Reunion of the Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth deserves fitting commemoration, carrying with it so many happy recollections which will become dearer as years roll on;

Resolved, That this Committee when it adjourns will do so to meet regularly on the 4th day of July in each succeeding year, at eleven o'clock, A. M.;

Resolved, That it is the desire of this Committee that it shall be considered as definitely settled that the third Reunion of the Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth shall take place in 1883;

Resolved, That we express our heartfelt thanks to the Boston and New York organization of Sons and Daughters of Portsmouth and to all participants in the festivities from abroad, for their earnest co-operation with us in making the Reunion of 1873 a glorious success;

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to the New York organization for their kindness in ornamenting Manhattan Square and for the feast of music furnished on the evening of July 3, 1873;

Resolved, That our thanks are due to Albert Laighton for his exquisitely written Ode of Welcome; to James T. Fields, Esq.; B. P. Shillaber, Esq.; and Henry C. Barnacee, Esq., for their efforts to crown our Reunion with success;

Resolved, That we view with great satisfaction the fact that in our deliberations and plannings, we have had the wise counsels and cheerful companionship of our beloved President of this committee, Hon. Ichabod Goodwin, who though years whiten his head, is as young as any of us. We sincerely trust he will be with us to share the rejoicings of the next Reunion. Under such a leader there is no such word as fail;

Resolved, That to our energetic and efficient Secretary our thanks are especially due and hereby expressed;

Resolved, That to the ladies of this committee and those about the city who so willingly responded to the call for aid, are due our warmest acknowledgments and our heartiest congratulations here tendered;

Resolved, That this Committee express their thanks to Chief Marshal Sise and his efficient Chief of Staff for their successful management of the reception of the Sons and Daughters on the 3d and 4th of July, 1873.

The Rambles.

If any of our readers wish to own a copy of that valuable and interesting history of Portsmouth, the "Rambles about Portsmouth," they should at once order them of Mr. Lewis W. Brewster. The two volumes are worthy all the praise that has been bestowed upon them. The following notice from the Boston Traveller we insert here because we think our readers will peruse it with interest:

This old town, which has just had a notable celebration of its 250th anniversary, has a history which but few places in this country can equal in many points of interest. The promise of its magnificent river and harbor very early drew the attention of the settlers of the new country; its situation afterwards made it the point of all connection between the province of New Hampshire and the home government, and consequently it became the seat of the aristocracy, wealth and refinement of that province. At old Fort William and Mary, in its harbor, was made almost, if not quite the first aggression upon British tyranny, by the Sons of Liberty.

The history of Portsmouth touches the names of many of the most prominent men of our country in the past two centuries; and some of its present buildings have yet unefaced marks of the pregnant events which occurred in the time of our nation's early struggles.

Like many of our older towns it has also its historian, the late Charles W. Brewster, in whose "Rambles about Portsmouth," the pleasingly told stories of "persons, localities and incidents of two centuries," are the rich results of patient research in the fields of tradition and old records. The mosaic of information thus gathered is set beautifully together with a remarkable faculty, that delights the hasty and the critical reader alike; and thus while many cherish it as a pleasant companion of reading hours, many also will place it upon their shelves as a standard historical book of reference. Rev. Dr. Peabody, President Jared Sparks, (the late biographer,) and others, have bestowed upon it high encomiums.

S. P. C. A.

The duties of the Secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals are so arduous and unpleasant, that, although the salary is quite liberal, it is difficult to retain in office those chosen. Dr. A. P. Stevens and George E. Hodgdon, Esq., have held the position and ably fulfilled its duties, but following the irresistible logic of events have stepped aside for other workers in the vineyard of the just Mr. Floron Barri is at present performing the duties. Long may he continue in the good work.

Laconics.

There is a mechanic in this city who has not been able to do a day's work for eleven years, on account of a friend crushing his hand in shaking it. And the friend never knew he harmed him, either. A little boy now of thirteen years, also, for seven years has been utterly helpless and immovable from spinal injuries received by merely falling from a stationary carriage upon Rye Beach sand, and a seat falling on him.

The conductors on the Eastern Railroad summarily eject gamblers who visit the smoking-cars to play for money.

The Dover Democrat says it is understood that if Messrs. Wiggin and Stevens do not decide to rebuild their glue and sand paper mill, other parties in Portsmouth, Dover and South Berwick will, and $30,000 to $50,000 is ready to put into the business. There is but one manufactory of the kind in the United States, and that is at Philadelphia.

Hon. Isaiah Hanscom, Chief of the Bureau of Yards & Docks, is in town.

The late rain storm was the coldest in July for fifteen years.

NAVAL DISGRACE.

From China we learn that the whole fleet was at Shanghai. Courts-martial are the order of the day, and it is stated that several others besides those mentioned in the following are to undergo a trial. Lieutenant Imfrey, of the Ashuelot, has been tried by court-martial, charged with conduct unbecoming a gentleman and officer. He has been found guilty and was sentenced to two years' suspension. He was ordered to go home in the Colorado, but, on second consideration, this order was revoked and he is to remain with his vessel until his debts in Shanghai are paid. Commander Byron Wilson of the Yantic, is to be tried on the charges of "drunkenness and disgraceful conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline." Lieutenant Commander John H. Rowland, in command of the Saco, is to be tried on the charges of "obtaining money under false pretences, and scandalous conduct." There is quite an excitement among the naval officers attached to the fleet on account of these proceedings.

STARTLING OUTRAGE.

A dispatch from Des Moines giving the following account of an attack on the train of the Rock Island and Pacific Railroad on the night of the 21st: The train left Council Bluffs at 5 o'clock with four coaches and two sleeping cars in the rear, the sleeping-cars being filled with a company of aristocratic Chinese on their way to the New England colleges. There were also two baggage express cars, in which there was a through California mail and express matter, consisting of nearly $2000 in the express safe and three tons of bullion. About 65 miles west of this city, about 8:30 o'clock, at a sharp curve on the road and an isolated spot, with no house for several miles in any direction, the train moving about 25 miles an hour, the engineer, John Rafferty, instantly saw one of the rails moved from its place about 60 feet ahead of the engine. He instantly reversed the engine and applied the air-brake, and while in the act bullets came pelting into the engine like hail. The engine ran into the bank and turned over, throwing out the engineer and fireman, the former falling on the latter dead. It is supposed Rafferty was killed by the concussion, as no bullet wounds were found on the body. The fireman was unhurt. The train being very heavy ran about a hundred feet and stopped. The baggage cars doubled and were badly smashed. As soon as the train stopped, large athletic men, masked in full Ku-Klux style, appeared at the express car in which were Conductor William Smith, Superintendent Royce, Express Messenger John Burgess and three other persons, and commenced firing rapidly into the air, yelling, "Get out of there, —— ye, get out of there." Two bullets passed through the clothes of the conductor, one grazed the skull of the baggage-master, and one the side of the head of the express messenger. The inmates jumped out, when they were ordered to the rear, covered by half a dozen navy revolvers. Two of the robbers marched up and down the train threatening to shoot any person who showed their heads on the train, saying, "Get down out of sight, —— ye, or we will shoot you." The robbers then took about $2000 from the express safe, cut open the mail sacks, but took no letters, and mounted each a horse and rode off across the prairies in a southerly direction, the whole being done in less than ten minutes. They fortunately did not cut the telegraph wires and Superintendent Royce at once hastened to the nearest station and telegraphed in all directions. Engines and a posse of men were sent out from Council Bluffs on the Burlington and other roads to intercept the robbers, in a southerly direction. Their dress and voices indicated that they were regular bushwackers. They evidently intended to get the usual valuable express matter on this route on Mondays, but which went through on an extra train on Sunday night. The robbers during the day stole a spike, bar and hammer from the hand-car house at the station. They drew the spikes from one end of the rail and secreted themselves several rods away, as the engine approached pulling the rail out of place. The promptness of the engineer in reversing the engine and the use of the air brakes, saved the passengers from harm, as not one was injured. A track was at once laid around the wrecked car, and the train resumed its trip.

—An observing woman says she was never so much inclined to laugh at church as Sunday, when, walking down the broad aisle after service, she saw that every woman ahead of her was using her left hand in arranging that portion of her dress adorning her back, and before she was aware of it found herself similarly employed.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, so easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

HINT FOR A TABLE SPEECH.

[T. W. Higginson.]

If most people talked as well in public as in private, public meetings would be more interesting. To acquire a conversational tone, there is something in Edward Hale's theory, that every person who is called on to speak—let us say at a public dinner—instead of standing up and talking about his surprise at being called on, should simply make his last remark to his neighbors at the table the starting point for what he says to the whole table. He will thus make sure of a perfectly natural key to begin with; and can go on from this point, "As I was just saying to Mr. Smith," to discuss the gravest question of church or state. It breaks the ice for you, like the remark upon the weather with which we begin our interview with the person whom we have longed two years to meet. Beginning in this way at the level of the earth's surface, we can join hands and rise to the clouds. Begin in the clouds—as some of my most esteemed friends are wont to do—and you have to sit down before reaching the earth.

A READER ALIENATED.

A Western cotemporary thinks it smart to relate that an Iowa editor, recently, to keep up with the style, ran away with another man's wife. He did not get off so easily, however, as he imagined he would. The man followed him and overtook the truant pair. The editor got behind the woman, and prepared to sell his life as dearly as possible. He was uncertain as to whether the outraged husband would shoot him, or murder him with a carving-knife. He stood there, like the boy upon the burning deck, and calmly awaited the result. The outraged husband came up within about two feet of the editor, and said, "Cuss your impudence. I want you to stop my paper." That was all. The editor recovered himself, and said he would have the matter attended to at once. During all the trying scene the woman stuck to the editor like a sand burr to a girl's stocking. Some people get mad and stop their paper for almost nothing.

PREACHER POKER.

What it most irreventibly calls "Playing Poker for a Preacher" is described by a Cincinnati newspaper. The contest was between a church in Avondale and another in Springfield, Ohio. The Springfield church made an offer to the reverend gentlemen whose services were desired. The Avondalians went them $200 better. The game advanced for some time in this way, when one party became reckless and went $500 better, which seems to have finished the play. The pastor was not only "called," but he can now be "seen" in the pulpit of the victorious congregation.

—At the Caledonian Club games at Scranton, Pa., one feature was a fat woman's race for a new bonnet. The leanest contestant weighed 180, and three others weighed, respectively, 200, 242 and 251 pounds.

—Twenty-five tons of stoves descended from the fifth story into the basement of a Chicago store lately, without stopping to take breath. The floors all got out of the way.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations; but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exertion of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the print. ed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
NO. 76, STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse." CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

NO. 12 VAUGHAN STREET,

The only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

Purchasers will find it to their advantage to call and examine this machine that has stood the test for years and has constantly outstripped all its competitors, before buying the machines which are crowded into their houses. By so doing they can understand the reason why the Singer Co. have sold over 1,000,000 MACHINES.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 940 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandants' Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. oawjl

OCEAN'S STORY:

OR TRIUMPHS OF THIRTY CENTURIES: By E. B. Goodrich (son of "Peter Parley") and E. Howland. A work of great historical research recounting in truly graphic style the wonderful growth of navigation, and history of discovery since the flood; is replete with incidents, thrilling adventures, battles, shipwrecks, mutinies, piracies, &c. Describes how from the first tiny bark, when ocean was the dark realm of terrors, sails now whiten every sea, lightning flashes tidings from shore to shore; and men bring up wonders from deep waters, with many other matters of lively interest, which go to make up one of the most valuable, fascinating and remarkable productions of the age. The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Medical Science.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently, gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from over-work, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEPURENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

The Engineer.

Trust to dreams Bill?
I do! Foolish—still,
Do you mind that culvert—number eight?
I dreamt the train was there,
Dusting it, too, I'll swear!
We were more'n twenty minutes late!

Right on the edge
Of that trussel bridge
I saw my little pet gal, little Jane!—
She's the one that's dead;
But I saw her—her head,
And her blue eyes—just plain as plain!

All of a sweat
I whistled brakes, you bet!
But she never smiled nor spoke—
She floated to me, quick,
Kissed me on the cheek,
And vanished!—Then I woke.

Say what you will,
Dreams have their meaning, Bill.
Pardner, if I should go up, tell my wife—
God! the culvert—gone!
Jump, Bill! I'll hold on
To the brakes here! Save your life!

Can't get me loose,
Friends—it's no use!
'Twon't be long, though—let me lay.
I'm easy so, when still,
Somebody call—ah, here's Bill!
Don't fret, pardner—I had to go this way.

Nobody hurt but me?
That's good! Bill, you'll see
The old woman? Tell her—don't complain—
There's money in the bank—
She's other things to thank—
Ah! stoop down. Kiss your father, little Jane.

—It is related that Miss Anna Dickinson was about to deliver her lecture on "Joan D'Arc," in a small Western town. It was considered necessary that she should be introduced to the audience. The task fell on the chairman of the Lecture Committee, a worthy individual, but not very well versed in the history of the language of the lamented La Pulelle. "Ladies and gentlemen," said he, advancing to the front of the platform, "Miss Dickinson will address you to night on the life and adventures of John Dark, one of the greatest heroes of antiquity. We are not as familiar with the heroes of antiquity as we ought to be, owing to the long time since antiquity; but one thing is certain, and that is that Miss Dickinson can tell us all about the most remarkable man of them all—John Dark."

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or slow system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Ann Jones, of Providence, Rhode Island, fell to the floor dead on seeing the undertaker's hearse drive up for the burial of her infant child.

Camp-Meeting John Allen tells the following story of a Methodist brother: A reverend gentleman, somewhat advanced in years, was called to follow his partner in life to the grave, and, sufficient time having passed to keep her memory sacred, the old gentleman took it into his head that he had better marry again. His boy, finding out that his father was about to marry a girl of twenty-two, just set to and gave the "old gentleman" a lecture. The reverend listened to the boy until his patience and good nature were about exhausted. Finally, the boy, seeing that he could not make his father angry, finished his lecture with this remark; "Well, I don't care if you marry the devil's mother." The face of the father reddened a little as he looked at his son and remarked: "Oh! I buried her last Spring."

The Louisville Courier-Journal does not believe in transatlantic ballooning. It says: "If Mont Blanc were a solid lump of gold, and in order to become the owner of it we had nothing to do but go over in Professor Wise's balloon and take possession of it, we would a thousand times rather sit down on the shore of Massachusetts Bay and starve to death. For we should then have at least the stern satisfaction of knowing where we were and what we were doing." The C. J. further remarks that even if Professor Wise succeeds in his undertaking, he will never find a current of air to assist him on his return, and that he will therefore have to walk back.

Mrs. Moody was in that portion of the house at the time, and had a remarkable escape from death. She remembered feeling the L commence to move, and knew nothing further until restored to consciousness, from the effects of a blow from a piece of falling timber. When she recovered, assistance had not reached her, and she extricated herself from the ruins. The barn of Capt. D. M. Gilman was partly unroofed, and a grain house destroyed. Four large trees growing near Mr. Bryant's were actually twisted off by the wind. It is stated that portions of the L of the Moody house were carried a distance of twenty rods. It was fortunate no lives were lost.

JOHN STRAY.

[New York Post.]

In a novel lately published, entitled "Mark Gildersleeve," the hero, an officer in the Union army during the late war, is represented as performing an exploit, which although seemingly fanciful and extravagant, is nevertheless the recital of an actual occurrence, and is worth recording as an extraordinary instance of cool courage and steadiness of nerve in a situation of extreme peril.

In the fictitious narrative, Captain Mark Gildersleeve is made, while in a venturesome mood, to unspike a cannon during the siege of Richmond, directly in the face of the enemy's sharp-shooters. Now, the true hero of this feat was not a "curled darling in shoulder straps," as Captain Mark is represented to be, but sturdy old John Stray, a private in the First New York Volunteer Engineers, and the scene of action was not in Virginia, but in South Carolina, on Morris Island, in July, 1863, after the disastrous attack on Fort Wagner. Baffled in that assault, General Gilmore lost no time in taking means to reduce the fort by regular approaches, and in a few days after the bloody repulse the first parallel had been opened, and a breaching battery was in position. During a night attack on the Union works the rebels succeeded in driving the men from their position, and spiking the guns on the battery. This was a serious check, as the rebel sharp-shooters, in rifle pits, effectually stopped further progress on the part of the engineering corps. One of the spiked guns, a two hundred pounder Parrott, completely raked the rifle pits, and it was of the utmost importance that it should be brought into action. In this difficulty the Chief of Ordnance called for volunteers to restore the piece to service.

To do this it was necessary to mount the cannon, and drill out the spike, obstructing the vent while the foe were diligently trying to pick off the venturesome workman from his perch. As no one seemed ambitious to undertake the venture, Colonel Mordecai applied to Stray, who, besides being a skillful machinist had given proof of unusual coolness and daring. At the request of the Colonel, he inspected the gun, but the shower of bullets which greeted his appearance was not calculated to encourage him, and he reported that he did not think one could live long enough on the cannon to unspike it. Without trying to influence him against his inclinations, the Colonel replied that if he were willing to make the attempt, and should be killed, he (the Colonel) would see that his family were provided for.

This promise decided Stray. At nightfall he went forth on his perilous errand, armed simply with a brace of bits. Straddling the breech of the monstrous piece, and crouching as low as possible, he plied the drill vigorously. No sooner had he begun than the enemy perceived him, and flash after flash succeeded from the rifle pits. Stray could see, as he worked, the long rifle pits of the rebels not a hundred yards distant, blaze with the light of fifty rifles, and feel the wind of their bullets as they whistled past him. Occasionally one would strike the cannon, as he noticed by the peculiar shirp of the impact. Favored partly by the obscurity, and more by good luck, he remained unscathed, save by one skin-scraping shot. In fifteen minutes—it seemed to him an hour—the vent was clear. As the gun was loaded, a lanyard and primer were passed up to him, and these affixed he slipped quickly off. The rebels, seeing him drop, imagined they had shot him, and sent up a yell of exultation, which was suddenly checked as a discharge of grape scattered death among them. The rifle pits were at once abandoned, and our sappers and miners enabled to proceed without further interruption. The captain of the battery reported twenty-two lead marks from bullets that had struck the piece.

In reward for this exploit Stray was offered a Second Lieutenancy, but being a modest man, and not fitted by education for the position, he declined it, and was satisfied to accept the position of Master Mechanic in the Ordnance Department.

This is by no means the only adventure of peril that Stray was engaged in during the war, and his history would make a readable volume. He was presented by Major-General Gilmore with the bronze medal for valorous conduct, of which, we believe, but thirty-nine in all were distributed. Stray is now an engineer, employed in a factory in Jersey City. He is a short, thick-set man of fifty or so, with a gray beard fringing a quiet but determined countenance. Many a less deserving name will be handed down to posterity to become illustrious with time than that of this obscure hero, John Stray.

EGYPT ADVANCING.

In an editorial on the progress which Egypt has of late been making, the New York Tribune comments as follows:

It is not too much to say that the progress in industrial development which has been made in Egypt of late years arises, to a great extent, from the state of vassalage which is its condition toward Turkey. Although the great mass of the inhabitants have few of the qualities requisite for initiating a progressive movement or adding to its force when already begun, the Khedive is a man of sufficient penetration to comprehend that if his country is to be able to compete successfully with his neighbors, he must contribute to its industrial advancement. In the hope of eventually securing independence, the Khedive has, from that time to the present day, persistently but cautiously been adding to his strength by adopting the available systems of more enlightened nations. He has in his army some of the best officers of Europe and America, and some of the most capable engineers of those countries have rendered him efficient service in promoting the development of the material interests of his territory.

The Khedive has just given another sign of the spirit with which he has long been animated. Hitherto communication through the length of Egypt has been imperfect, the only medium being the river Nile for a distance of about 700 miles. He has now formed the design of extending this line of nommunication to nearly 1,400 miles by the construction of a railroad from the head of navigation of the Nile to the frontier of Soudan. If it is successful, the Khedive will have a stronger hold on his dominions, and will be able to add renewed impetus to their advancement in civilization. We count especially upon the more speedy termination of the trade in slaves, which has been carried on in Lower Egypt, and which has been comparatively free from molestation upon the theory that the Government of the Khedive was unable to control it effectually on account of the imperfect means of communication.

CAUSES OF SHORT SIGHT.

A recent paper by Dr. Liebrtich throws light upon the origin of this defect. He demonstrates that the two evils of permanent short sight and curvature of the spine, both so much more frequent among the educated than the uneducated classes of society, are developed by the unnatural posture usually enforced in schools. During childhood the eye possesses a great power of accommodating itself to distance, and if in reading and writing the desks are so arranged that the eye, instead of being twelve to fifteen inches distant, is kept at seven or eight inches from the book or paper, the eye adapts itself to the near object, and permanent short sight is the result. Moreover, as the predisposition to the disease is hereditary, short sight is constantly on the increase in highly civilized countries.

The bad posture adopted at writing desks is also the chief cause of lateral curvature of the spine. In extreme cases, says Dr. Liebreich, the copy book is pushed forward, so that its lower border is inclined at an angle of forty-five degrees with the edge of the table. The head is lowered, and so much twisted that the left eye is only a few inches distant from the book; the left cheek almost touches the left hand, or even leans upon it; the ribs of the left side are pressed against the edge of the desk, and the taller children slip backward on the forms, so that only the lower part of the thighs rest on the narrow bench. In many schools the pupils maintain this unnatural position for several hours, daily, until at last the muscles are overtired, and permanent distortion of the spine is the inevitable result.

To avoid these evils, desks should be so constructed that when the pupil is seated the shoulders should be even, the spine straight, the head balanced on the top of the spine, the elbows on a level with each other, and only the hands and part of the forearm resting on the desk. In order to effect this, Dr. Liebrech recommends a desk in which the angle is twenty degrees, for writing, and which by turning up a flap gives an angle of forty degrees, for supporting a book for reading. He strongly condemns the absurd unanatomical notion that straight spines can be insured by making children sit up straight without support for the back, thus over fatiguing the muscles, and producing the very effect desired to be avoided. He also deprecates strongly the unnatural plan of making girls lie on an inclined board or on the floor, "a foolish torture which misses its aim." A couch with an angle of forty-five degrees, with curves adapted to the curvatures of the spine, is one best adapted to girls with threatened spinal distortion.

WON'T WORK.

The New York Observer ridicules the idea that where the ages of the patriarchs of the Bible are mentioned in years, months are meant instead, as for instance, when the Hebrew chronologer stated the life of Methuselah to be 969 years, and of Jared 962, he meant that many months. The Observer goes into figures on the subject as follows: "Adam lived a hundred and thirty months, and begat a son. Seth lived a hundred and five months, and begat Enos. Enos lived ninety months, and begat Cainan. Cainan lived seventy months, and begat Michael. And Enoch lived sixty-five months, and begat Methuselah. And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred and sixty-nine months, and he died; and so on. Truly a wonderful race of beings! At the age of 130 months, which is little more than 10 years, Adam begat his first born, Seth; and at the age of 105 months, a little less than 9 years, Seth begat Enos; and at 90 months, or less than 8 years, Enos begat Cainan; and Cainan begat his first born at 70 months, which is less than 6 years! And this is a satisfactory solution! It is a historical and scientific mending with a vengeance."

POST OFFICE ROMANCE.

Regularly every two weeks for six years past, says the Manchester Union, a letter has been received at the post office there, addressed to "Dr. —, Manchester, N. H.," written evidently by the same hand. The caligraphy is good, and is evidently than of a lady. The name is entered on the list, time after time, and no one has ever claimed one of them. After lying at the office the time specified by law, the letters are sent, one after the other, to the dead letter office at Washington. So it goes on year after year. On one occasion one of the letters was returned from the dead letter office, because it contained some trifle of lace, which the department was desirous should be returned to the writer. The letter gave no clue as to who or what the writer was, and was signed simply "Emeline." The name was entered on the list, but no one ever claimed the letter or the bits of lace. Another strange feature of this case is that the "oldest inhabitant" had never heard of any man of the name the letters bear, and so the whole matter remains a mystery, year after year.

RECLAIMING A DESERT.

Among the gigantic projects of the age is one in relation to reclaiming the so-called great Colorado desert. The plan proposed is to convert the waterless basin into an inland sea, by turning it into the Colorado river at or near Fort Yuma, the same to be used for the purpose of irrigation and navigation, and a party of engineers are already on their way there, backed by San Francisco capitalists, to make the preliminary surveys. The San Francisco Bulletin says:—

"It is generally, but erroneously believed that the Colorado desert is an unproductive, sandy waste. The greater portion of the basin possesses an excellent soil, is covered with a stunted growth of mesquit and other trees, and is capable of producing anything the climate will permit, providing it is well watered. The feasibility of introducing an abundance of water for its irrigation from the Colorado river was demonstrated by the surveys made by the original projectors of the scheme of reclamation, and more recently by the surveys of the Texas and Pacific Railway."

—A man out in Montana, a short time ago squatted on another person's land and built a small frame shanty. When requested to remove, he positively refused to do so; so, one night, a squad of men came around after the squatter and his wife were asleep, and lifting the whole concern, shanty and all, with deliberate care carried it to the river and set it on a small raft out in the stream and let it go. When the squatter got up in the morning to go out, he was surprised to find himself about sixty miles down stream, and making good time in a nine-knot current. This is all we shall say about that man. It would be extremely improper to report his remarks in full in this paper.

It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS.

Midsummer Malaria.

At this season the heat of the sun liberates from the soil, the water and the filth of cities immense quantities of unwholesome gases which the strongest can scarcely inhale with impunity, and which develope the most distressing diseases in the weak and feeble. It is, therefore, of paramount importance to invigorate the body in hot weather. Vitalize and strengthen the stomach and the nervous system with at least two doses per day of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and you will be sure to escape the fits of indigestion, attacks of bilious colic, sick headaches, diarrhœas and dysenteries which are so common at this season. Be prudent. A little care and forecast exercised now, may prevent your being prostrated by remittent and intermittent fever, or by chronic bowel or liver complaint throughout the fall. When vigor is oozing out of every pore under the rays of an almost vertical sun, this genial vegetable tonic supplies to the nervous system an aliment which enables it to withstand the drain.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 1m9

Wanted, A Parapluie.

He was the agent of Den Stone's circus, on his way to Portsmouth from Manchester. He had occasion to get out of the car at Newmarket Junction, leaving his umbrella lying across the seat he had vacated. Returning, two nicely dressed ladies sat in the seat ahead, and as he resumed his sitting, one of them said, "You may pass me that umbrella, it you please?" He replied, "Is it your umbrella, madam?" "I will take charge of it," said she, and the accommodating gentleman passed his umbrella over to the lady. Then a pause! "Now, if you please," suggested the agent, "I will trouble you to return my umbrella. It's a silk one, and a good one. I paid just ten dollars for that umbrella and I'd dislike very much to part with it." The passengers by this time were interested in the conversation, and as the umbrella was returned to its owner, the lady who had shown such a peculiar interest in it was observed to flush deeply, while the owner regretted that he had found it necessary to rebuke her. After all was it not a mistake on her part?

SLEEP THE BEST STIMULANT.

[Journal of Health.]

The best possible thing for a man to do when he feels too weak to carry it through, is to go to bed and sleep a week it he can. This is the only true recuperation of brain power, the only actual recuperation of brain force. Because during sleep, the brain is in a sense of rest, in a condition to receive and appropriate particles of nutriment from the blood, which takes the place of those which have been consumed in previous labor, since the very act of thinking consumes, burns up solid particles as every turn of the wheel or screw of the splendid steamer is the result of consumption by fire of the fuel in the furnace. The supply of consumed brain substance can only be had from the nutriment particles in the blood, which were obtained from the food eaten previously, and the brain is so constituted that it can best receive and appropriate to itself those nutrient particles during a state of rest, of quiet, and of stillness in sleep.

Mere stimulants supply nothing in themselves—they only goad the brain, force it to a greater consumption of its substance, until that substance has been so exhausted that there is not power enough left to receive a supply, just as men are so near death by thirst and starvation, that there is not power enough left to swallow anything, and all is over. The incapacity of the brain for receiving recuperative particles sometimes comes on with the rapidity of a stroke of lightning, and the man becomes mad in an instant, loses sense and is an idiot. It was under circumstances of this kind, in the midst of a sentence of great oratorical power, one of the most eminent minds of his age forgot his ideas, pressed his hand against his forehead and after a moment's silence said, "God, as with a sponge has blotted out my mind." Be assured readers, "there is rest for the weary" only in early and abundant sleep.

—The avaricious man is often the victim of his own greed. A Peoria boy had two bunches of fire-crackers given him on the Fourth, which he crammed into his pocket, but noticing another lying idle on the sidewalk, he crammed that in with the rest. It chanced that the vital spark was present in the soul of that idle cracker, and suddenly that boy became the busiest youth in all that town. There were about 250 distinct explosions in that pocket, and at each one he turned two double somersaults and shrieked with terror. When quiet was at length restored, he clapped his hands upon the scorched and lacerated ruins of a once healthy abdomen, and groaned his disapprobation of the Pilgrim fathers for ever establishing a free country.

—The plea of Charles O'Conor, that there was no proof which of young Walworth's four shots were fatal, and the jury must, therefore, acquit him, is not original. It is based on the argument of the Western lawyer whose client shot another man's dog. "You hev heern, gentlemen of the jury," said the eloquent advocate, "you hev heern the witness swar he saw the prisoner raise his gun; you hev heern him swar he saw the flash and heerd the report; you hev heern him swar he saw the dog fall dead; you hev heern him swar he dug the bullet out with a jack-knife; and you hev seen the bullet produced in court; but whar, gentlemen, whar, I ask you, is the man who saw that bullet hit that dog?"

—Gerald Massey has certainly hit upon an original conundrum for his lectures in this country next winter: it is, "Why don't God kill the devil?"

A HOT DAY.

[Danbury News.]

It was so warm, Monday, that it was impossible to work without having the window open, and while the air was hot enough to shrivel up a judge of probate, there was breeze enough to carry papers from a desk with astonishing velocity. When we were not catching for a memorandum, we were diving after a poem, or clutching hopelessly for an advertisement, or springing after an essay on the statesmanship of the 13th century. Sometimes we were compelled to make a jump for all of them at once, and during the operation may have made some statements about the weather that in the future will trouble us to prove. And so the afternoon wore on, first a plunge and then a statement, until about four o'clock. At that hour a fleshy man with a book under his arm and a No. 8 smile on his face, appeared in front of us. He immediately proceeded to business by observing that the weather was exceedingly warm, and that he had the honor of being engaged in canvassing for Dr. Whimplebee's "Observations in Palestine," a book that comprised the views of the intelligent doctor on what he saw, with numerous speculations and comprehensive theories on what he did not see, altogether forming a volume of deep research, pure theology and chaste imagery. Here we interrupted him to plunge after the copy for an auction bill. Then we put our arm on the miscellaneous matter, and put the poem where we could sit on it, and hungrily awaited for further particulars. This was a work every family should have, and that people generally would be glad to hear of. He had already secured the names of the clergy, and knowing how popular and thoroughly attractive was our paper, he had called to have a little notice inserted stating that he was in town, and prepared to take the names of the excited populace. He had no notice prepared, but if we would give him a scrap of paper and the loan of our pencil he would scribble a word or so. At first we were prompted to suggest that the doctor might be wanting him, but a bet ter thought struck us, and surrendering the desk to his use, we cautioned him to lose none of the papers, and stepping into the other room, mounted a table where we could get a good view of the desk, and waited for developments. First he opened the book at the title page, and after studying over it a moment to get a clear and tangible idea of the work, proceeded to make a careful copy of it. Just as he got well to work a zephyr danced in and carried off an account of a runaway. The agent for "Observations in Palestine" made a pass for it, and securing it, triumphantly restored it to its place, and immediately darted after a State item. Getting back again he run his hands through his hair, cast a severe glance at the window, and grasped his pencil to record more inspiration from the title page, when another breeze came along and made a general sweep. Both of his arms came down together, but he didn't catch more than half the stuff. He put weights on this and as he was a fleshy gentleman with a pair of pants that must have been bought from a job lot, he didn't look very suggestive of Palestine. The work on the title-page went on, how ever, with brief intervals, for recovering articles. At first he didnt say anything when the breeze bombarded him, but after a while he grew more acquainted, and commenced to converse. The first observation he made was "Ah! indeed!" Then he said "Look out there!" and becoming still more sociable and confidential, ventured a trifle on history, calling on "Jupiter!" "Christopher!" and "O, Gabriel!" Pretty soon one sheet of his manuscript came sailing into our room, and out he dashed after it. He made a grab for it as it went over the rail, but missed it, and it dropped down and rolled under the table, before he could reach it. It was that part of the title page which referred more particularly to the city of Jerusalem, and if we are not mistaken he mentioned the place as he crawled under the table. However that may be, he secured the piece, and carried it back to the table, and then dropped it as another gust danced in, and back it came and back he came after it, looking very red in the face, and prepared to talk further about Jerusalem. Then he got back in time to see the second puff, or hopeless lunge for the second page. It struck the floor before he could save it, but he jumped on it with both heels, and turned them around on it, and grated his teeth till you could hear him on the next floor. Then he picked it up and brushed it off, and mopped his brow with his arm, and proceeded to renew his attack on Palestine, when more wind came in and another invoice of documents sailed upwards and spread outward, and again he sprang up and darted after them, dancing up and down and throwing his arms, and shouting localities that are not on our Palestine map. Then he turned over the chair and kicked it, and dashed his hat on the floor and jumped into it, and screamed such awful things about the weather, and made such astounding statements about what he would do if he could, that we felt compelled to have the agent for Dr. Whimplebee's "Observations in Palestine" led down stairs into the street. We haven't seen him since, but we understand that he was seen under the influence of liquor late that night, and having exchanged the "Observations in Palestine" for a pint of Jamaica rum is consigning the eminent Whimplebee beyond the annoyances of breezes. Had we not furnished him with accommodations as he desired, we might have felt in some way responsible for this descent, and it would have made uncomfortable.

THE MULE "SMASHER."

He was a very small hump backed animal; and there was a dreamy speculative expression about his eyes, as though his mind were deep in the retrospection of years gone by.

It was slow work getting him home from the railway station, for his legs were encumbered with heavy fetters. Yet the patient beast bore these insignia of disgrace with such an air of suffering resignation and meek humility, that it cut into the heart. It was not to suffer this cruel infliction long, however, for we were met on the road by a young man who claimed to be a nephew of Mr. Bergh. After upbraiding us severely for our inhumanity, he pulled a cold chisel and hammer out of his pocket, and began to cut away the irons from the sufferer's limbs. It was touching to witness the look of gratitude which the mule bestowed upon the friend at work about his heels; it seemed almost human. In less than ten minutes the task was finished, for the chisel was sharp; and then the mule was free. The tragedy was enacted in less than a second; for it was simply the drawing up of the mule's hind leg, and then the straightening of it again as quick as a flash of lightning, and all was over. The young man died while at the post of duty.

When we went into the barn the next morning, we found that he had chewed off his halter straps, and that all of the south side of the stable would need to be rebuilt before it could be of any use whatever. It was after this that we called the mule "Smasher."

Uncle Seth insisted that Smasher had never been properly broken, and that the master had been too kind and lenient with him; but he would very shortly demonstrate to this creature who was master now, and who was mule. One morning, after we had rebuilt, the old gentleman said that we would harness Smasher to the wagon, and take some wheat to the mill. We expected to have a serious time with this business, but to our surprise, Smasher offered no resistance to being harnessed up, and in a short time we were gaily trotting out of the yard. "You see, Sammy," said my uncle quite complacently, "Smasher knows very well that he has now found a master who knows"——and that was all either of us knew for about fifteen minutes. We both came to our senses at about the same time, and I remember of hearing my dear uncle say that the bolts and tires might sell for something, but the rest of the wagon would have to be used for kindling wood.

After that the old gentleman and Smasher had a series of arguments, which lasted about a month, and it ended by a cash order from Mr. Seth Barber to Mr. Goodyear, for one very large and strongly made India rubber man, which we suspended from the top of the stable by means of a rope around its neck, so that it would hang directly behind Smasher's heels. Whenever Smasher let out his rib smashing ticklers against this image, it would gracefully give way, and then come back to be kicked some more. This invention seemed to please Smasher very much, and after that he managed to let the sides of the stable alone.

We then got a bar of wrought iron, four inches square, which we fastened across the shafts of our new wagon for a cross bar; and then, when Smasher got into a tantrum on the road, he found something substantial to receive his blows. Of course this iron would get very hot after he had kicked away at it for two or three hours, and so we always carried a barrel of water to cool it off. The hot steam rising up about the mule, seemed to have a soothing effect on his nerves, and then he would travel off very sweetly.

One day his master came for him. Smasher had jumped over the fence that morning into Jake Ryder's yard; when he went to lasso him for his master, he had just finished swallowing two pailsful of nitro-glycerine which Jake had brought out to split some very tough and cross-grained logs with. Well, we caught Smasher and brought him around to his master, Mr. Ferguson. And then we told all about Smasher's breaking up our wagon and the stable, and we casually mentioned the rubber man, which had cost $300, and the iron bar. I never saw so mad a man in all my life as was Smasher's owner when we had finished. "Ungrateful wretch!" he exclaimed, "Is it thus thou repayest the many acts of kindness that have been showered on thy head?" And then he picked up a club and gave Smasher a whack under the belly.

If I should live ten thousand years, I could never forget the awful explosion which followed that blow; for the concussion had exploded the two pailsful of nitro-glycerine, which Smasher had just swallowed; and from that day to this not a trace of Smasher or Mr. Ferguson have ever been seen.

A COMICAL ACCIDENT.

[Seaside Oracle.]

An Edgecomb man bought a barrel of flour in Wiscasset recently, and the man who sold it kindly volunteered to assist in shipping it on board the Edgecomb man's dory. So, they proceeded to the wharf in high procession. First, they placed the flour on a raft that lay near by; next they brought the boat along-side; then the Edgecomb man took hold of one end, and the Wiscasset man the other, and they each placed one foot in the boat; then they swung the flour over the boat—(a little too far as the result proved;) and the boat slid gracefully towards the raft and capsized, while the men, with the flour, plunged solemnly, head first, into the river! The boat was afterwards bailed out, and the flour fished out and put on board—but in a damaged condition. The men swam ashore and were sufficiently cool to give the details of the accident without manifesting any excitement.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 940 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the material must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. ow jl are a sure cure for all diseases of the Respiratory Organs. Sore Throat, Colds, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, Dryness of the Throat, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Windpipe, or Bronchial Tubes, and all Diseases of the Lungs.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS

In all cases of sudden cold, however taken, these TABLETS should be promptly and freely used. They equalize the circulation of the blood, mitigate the severity of the attack, and will, in a very short time, restore healthy action to the affected organs.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS are put up only in BLUE BOXES. Take no substitutes. If they can't be found at your druggist's, SEND AT ONCE TO THE AGENT IN NEW YORK, who will forward them by return mail.

DON'T BE DECEIVED BY IMITATIONS.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties. It will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

OUGHT GIRLS TO COURT?

We have often thought (for editors never speak from experience) that a young fellow must have a good stock of assurance—nay, of downright impudence—to go through the ticklish, terrible, torturing ordeal of a regular courtship. He has not only to run the gauntlet of sneering young gentlemen, but also the gauntlet of gossiping young ladies; to be talked of, and to be the mark of watchful observations for the whole neighborhood in which his fair one resides. Nor is this all. If his addresses are only acceptable to one member of the family, and that member the depository of the garnered-up love of a whole life, he is sure to meet the savage glances of savage brothers, and is just as sure to encounter other equally flattering manifestations of paternal, maternal or fraternal opposition. Now this is all wrong. The exchanges should be more equalized; and some are sanguine enough to believe that the day is not far distant when they will be equalized; when we shall hear of young ladies paying their addresses to young gentlemen, visiting them nightly at their houses, inviting them to ride, to walk, to dance, to sing, to eat ice cream, and as soon as matters are brought to an interesting crisis, "popping" the question itself. Ah! what a delightful thing it would be, flurriedly awaiting in your mother's parlor, carefully brushed and strapped, to be courted. To be tenderly stared at night after night, by girl after girl; to have one's brown, rough hand occasionally squeezed, and to have one's waist delicately encompassed (of course only after the "engagement") by some of the most delicately tapering arms in the world.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

SATURDAY, JULY 26, 1873.

Readables.

A great fire at Baltimore destroyed 150 buildings on Friday. It caught in a planing mill on Clay street and extended to Howard, Liberty and Saratoga streets. Several squares were burned over, the fire burning one-third of a mile before it was checked.

Full details of the so-called "Dominion Scandal" develop the most hideous corruption, overshadowing and belittling by comparison even the most exaggerated estimates of our Credit Mobilier disgrace. They show that the Ministry was bribed to give the contract to build the Canadian Pacific railroad to Sir Hugh Allen; and that the latter also furnished immense sums of money to carry the elections of 1872.

President Grant and family go down to Augusta, Me., to visit Speaker Blaine on the 5th of August, and remain there several days. The visit is to be altogether of an informal character.

It is reported from Carlist sources that the minority of the Spanish Cortes intend to secede and establish a separate government at Carthagena. A Madrid despatch announces the capture of the insurgent man-of-war Vigilante by a German ambassador to restore the vessel to the government.

An incident attending a ride on Sunday last is told by the Lancaster (Penn.) Express, the parties being Mr. Stephen Musser, of Marietta, and a lady from Philadelphia. The lady held the reins, and in rounding a curve turned too suddenly, resulting in a tilt of the buggy, which threw her head-foremost from her seat. Her body had already left the buggy, and she was descending upon her head between the wheels when Mr. Musser, with that quickness of thought that comes to some persons in the hour of danger, seized her by her bustle with his left hand, while he grasped the reins and checked the horse with the right hand. The bustle was fortunately well secured, and the lady was saved.

Frederick Shultz, living two miles from Pleasant Hill, Nebraska, lately cut off the head of his sister, Mrs. Luckrous, with an axe, and then cut his own throat.

At Binghampton, New York, a local paper says, a few evenings ago, a family named Glazer had just sat down to supper when one of the women said that she had a presentiment that lightning would strike the table, and begged them to leave the room. They had scarcely obeyed when the lightning came in, smashing the supper dishes to atoms. The family will probably be firm believers hereafter in the theory of supernatural forewarnings.

There is an Irish woman of gigantic strength in St. Paul. One morning she lifted a barrel of sugar from the ground into a cart. The next evening she presented her husband with twins. Two days after she did the washing for a family of ten persons.

The Bailey Hat manufactory in Newburyport, turns out one hundred dozen of hats every day.

Since the clergy have held prayers for the benefit of the press, the Chicago Times suggests that editors unite in supplication for the diffusion of intelligence among the clergy!

Three men were killed and four or five other persons injured by a boiler explosion near Rushville, Ind., Wednesday.

A duel with rapiers was fought by two Frenchmen near Wilkesbarre, Pa., Tuesday. One was wounded, but the duel is to be renewed as soon as he recovers.

The defaulting treasurer of Jefferson county, Texas, resigned, and the grateful citizens fired a salute.

The Quincy, Ill., Call perpetrates the following, which is highly complimentary to the city council of that municipality:

Hubbs had a grudge against a Seventh street man and settled the account by persuading the gentleman to go up and hear the city council last night. Hubbs is satisfied if the other man is.

The Rochester Chronicle says prices have advanced in Albany. Fifty cents an hour is the lowest rate for blacking an editor's shoes.

The extreme prevalence of boils among persons training for a boat race suggests the query to an exchange newspaper whether or not Job, at the time of his affliction, was training for a regatta on the Euphrates.

A Graphic poet has a poemlet in a recent issue of that publication entitled "Babbling of Green Fields." We had heretofore supposed that the little brooks and streams monopolized the "babbling" business, but if green fields can babble let 'em bab.

When a crowd of jayhawkers started a disturbance in a Texas church the preacher raised a shot gun and said: "William Dello, sit down or I'll make it painful for you." William sat down and was as quiet as a lamb.

— A friend of ours has a thoroughbred pointer dog which is said to be the most efficient animal of the kind in the United States. It never lets any chance slip by it, this pointer does n't. The other day as it was trotting down Tenth street its master observed that it ran up the front steps of a house and pointed dead at the door plate. Our friend whistled and whistled, but the dog refused to budge an inch. Upon going up to see what the matter was, he found that the door plate bore the name of "A. Partridge." It is awful hard to beat that dog at his business. He only needs a hint—just a mere suggestion. He has been known to point at the children in the family when his master gets mad at them, and makes them quail.

— It costs ten cents to see Wagner now.

JACK'S DEFENCE.

At the Modoc trial, at Fort Klamath, Oregon, which ended on the 9th inst., Captain Jack made a long speech. It was the opposite of the bold Indian harangues against the pale face, which enliven school reading-books. It was a whining attempt to lay all the blame on the rest of the tribe and prove himself a long-tried friend of the whites. The killing of the Tule Lake settlers, he said, was all the fault of Hooker Jim, and so was the murder of Meacham. He, himself, was in favor of peace; he would have come out and made peace, if he had not been afraid. Old Modocs, and all the squaws coming into camp had told him that Meacham, Canby, Dyer, and Thomas were going to get them out and burn them. Finally, he claimed that he was no longer the chief of the tribe:—

"I don't consider that when you came to talk to me with the newspaper men that I was really the chief then. Your chiefs among the Bostons listen to the people, and the people listen to them and obey them, but my men would not listen. I told them not to fight, but they wanted to fight, and would not listen. As I was chief of the Modocs, the Bostons probably all think I began the fight, and have kept it going. I have told the Modocs the white people would think so, and if they would surely fight they must do it on their own hook. Hooker Jim wanted to fight all of the time. I sat on one side all this while, with my few men who agreed with me, and said nothing. Now I have to bear the blame for what the rest of them have done. When I talked as I have said, Hooker and his friends told me to hush; that I knew nothing; that I was no better than an old squaw. I and Hooker had a quarrel. I said I had not done nothing wicked or mean to bring on the war; that it was he who murdered the settlers. I got mad at Hooker, and if I could have seen through the wall of my tent I would have killed him. I thought I would kill him. I wanted to kill him because he had murdered the settlers on Tule Lake, and had made the war worse. They told me I laid in camp like a chunk, doing nothing, while they went around killing white people and stealing their things. They said they were Indians, and were not afraid to kill men. I told them I was not ashamed to be called an old squaw; I had advised them to keep peace and kill nobody, and they had done these murders against my will. Scarface told me he could go and fight with the Modoc warriors, and that I was no better than an old squaw. I told them to go out and fight on their own account; I neither wanted to go with them nor to live with them. Scarface will tell what he knows. He does not want to keep anything back; neither do I wish to keep back anything."

The decision of the military court is not made public, but was sealed and sent first to General Davis, who is now away in the Indian country out of the reach of mails and telegraph. He has first to approve it, and it will then be forwarded to Washington for the examination of the President, so that Captain Jack has a prospect of living all summer if no longer. The border settlers are naturally grumbling about red tape.

TOO EXPENSIVE.

[Lawrence Eagle.]

One of the strong points made against polygamy is the cost of furnishing the wardrobes of a half dozen wives. The financial aspects of the plurality system, at the present price of silks and laces and lawns and cashmeres and diamonds, are quite enough to make even the stoutest-hearted Mormon shrink back with dismay. But another equally serious difficulty has been overlooked. It has just been brought out by Mrs. Ann Eliza Webb Young, the seventeenth spouse of Brigham Young, the Mormon patriarch, who has sued for divorce and a large alimony, and has taken away a large quantity of furniture and other property. This is a solemn thing, and we are not surprised that the Mormon elders tremble like a new settler in his first attack of the shakes. A man can possibly stand one divorce with tolerable equanimity, provided he has the wherewithal to pay the costs of the suit; but just think of having wife No. 2 instituting proceedings, and wife No. 3 applying to the court for deliverance and alimony, and wife No. 4 making a dead strike, with the law for her defence and weapon! The possibility is altogether too painful for us to contemplate. The marrying part of Mormonism is the easiest part of it, especially when a man has fifteen or twenty better-halves, is unutterable horrible. It is worse than a fire in a timber lot, or tick in a flock of sheep.

CUSHING'S REST.

Great was the service of Caleb Cushing in the arbitration of Geneva, and in the total slaughter of Sir Alexander Cockburn, but neither is at all important compared to his crusade against the dog. For this he will live in history, and if he succeeds, for this he will have a bronze monument representing Caleb Cushing sitting on the ruins of the dog. Caleb Cushing's suit against the dog is the common suit of outraged humanity. Mr. Cushing laid his damages at $3,000. It was an inadequate sum. At Mr. Cushing's time of life, one such night as he spent in trying to quiet that raging dog would set him more than $3,000 worth on his way to the silent tomb. The destruction of a man's nerves is not to be recompensed by money. The only compensation Mr. Cushing can have will be the sweet thought that he has not lived in vain, if he aids in any degree in suppressing the dog, and may sooth his troubled spirit into sleep.

—This party to street urchin—"Boy, what do you suppose that dog is following me for?" The youngster casts a knowing look at him, and readily replies, "Guess he takes you for a bone!"

A HAPPY DADDY.

We are not obliged to tell how the following funny letter fell into our hands—all the reader has to do is to read it and laugh at it. We congratulate the new made pari-ent, and hope he will get over his confusion of ideas shortly, so as to be able to tell his baby from his horse:

DEAR SISTER EMMA:—I now take my seat and sit down to take this opportunity to inform you that I am a "daddy" at last; that is, I suppose I am, for Addie has got a nice, fat baby as ever made up faces. We hope these few lines may find you enjoying the same great blessing. Now, this is to be strictly a business letter. Firstly, as I said before, Addie has got a nice baby. Nextly, I have swopped away Old John and think I have got a pretty nice horse; it is a girl and weighs nine pound—I mean the baby—it is just as fat as butter, and has a good strong pair of lungs. She is red and has a bobtail—the horse I mean—and a white stripe in her face, and is a good driver; she has got blue eyes and a dimple in her chin—I mean the baby—and just the prettiest mouth that ever opened to receive pap; judging from her teeth I should think she was about six years old—I mean the horse now—she is sound, smooth and kind—I mean the horse or baby either, now—and the doctor says she is the fairest he ever saw, without any exception—he meant the baby—I got twenty-five dollars to boot, not on the baby though, for in its case the boot is on the other foot and two or three sizes larger as near as I can find out. I am going to harness the horse now, and go after mother; she was born last night at twenty minutes past nine—I hope you don't think I mean mother or the horse, I mean the baby. She is as hearty as a pig; ate an egg, a biscuit, and drank three cups of tea—I mean Addie—she is getting along nicely and if she don't have any bad luck she will get along first-rate. She is subject to disorders of the stomach and they say that is a sign of colic—I mean the baby—I hope it is, for the nurse says, colicy babies never die. She talks about her nose as she takes snuff—I mean the nurse. I am going to name it Ediema—I mean the baby. There I've been reading this over and I see plainly that I ain't fit to write. The amount of it is, I am flustrated; I am a happy daddy, and that accounts for it, so you must excuse me this time.

SLIDING DOWN HILL.

[Minneapolis Cor. of St. Paul Pioneer.]

Any one desirous of sliding down hill in the Summer time may gratify that desire at the falls by a toboggan down the apron. How nicely it can be done was illustrated by a couple of tourists, without any "guide," and also by their driver, on Tuesday afternoon.

These gentlemen were much interested in all they saw about the falls, and especially in the torrent of water shooting over St. Anthony's best apron. To obtain a better view, they ventured out upon the dam extending from the platform. About an inch of water runs over this dam, shoots down the apron with great velocity for the distance of 150 feet, until it strikes the timber running out level for twenty or thirty feet, and then dashes into a regular whirlpool that froths and foams among the rocks. Unfortunately for the tourists, the coffer-dam was thickly coated with a green, slimy substance, making one of the most slippery foundations imaginable: and in less time than it takes to tell it, their "feet were gone," and a couple of dark streaks were visible as they went down the slimy apron like a special telegram. Spectators feared they would be dashed upon the rocks and instantly killed, but, luckily, they managed to stop themselves on the timber bed before spoken of, and were promptly rescued. They were sorry-looking objects, however, covered as they were by the deposit wiped up from the dam and apron, and were "wearing of the green," in the fullest sense of the word.

Their driver subsequently attempted to recover an estray hat from the dam, and lacking apron-strings, he too indulged in an unexpected trip down the inclined plane, was fished up, sponged, and the parties started for St. Paul, feeling that it was not good for them to be here.

NEW HAMPSHIRE MORMONS.

We learn from an exchange that a singular sect has secured a footing in Wallingford, Connecticut, who are known as the "Wallingford Community." It consists of about eighty individuals, one-half of whom are women. Their religion directs them not to marry, but each one selects a partner, and the two live together as husband and wife for four weeks, when a general change of partners is made, in order that there shall be no special affection—for all are "brothers and sisters." When children are born, the mother is allowed to retain the child but a few weeks, when it is placed in the common nursery, and all the "mothers" of the establishment take turns in caring for these "children of the community." This strange people came from northern New Hampshire about twelve years ago, where the citizens were unable to dislodge them under the laws against prostitution, and the legislature passed a special act which obliged them to marry or leave. A few of them came quietly to Connecticut, selected a beautiful farm of about 200 acres with a large dwelling-house, purchased it without stating what they desired it for, and the "family" soon took possession. The Wallingford people prosecuted the concern as a house of ill-fame, but could not convict them under the present laws. From that time the community has not been disturbed, and has grown rich. The females dress in bloomer costumes, and are seldom seen outside of their home.

— The Clinton (Iowa) Register asks: "Why should the poor widow be compelled to pay $65 for a sewing machine that costs the manufacturer only $15?" Congress should pass a law prohibiting the hurling of such inflammatory conundrums among the masses. They are calculated to hurt the feelings of sewing machine agents; and cold and cruel indeed must be the heart which would hurt the feelings of a sewing machine agent.

—A Leavenworth photographer tells how he procured a "spirit" picture. He says the first took a picture of a Mr. Harris and painted his whiskers out. Then he cut the face out of an old lady's photograph and pasted Harris' in. He made a negative from this, and then a transparent positive. He next held this positive before a sensitized plate in a dark room, and the ghost-picture was made.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS.

Midsummer Malaria.

At this season the heat of the sun liberates from the soil, the water and the filth of cities immense quantities of unwholesome gases which the strongest can scarcely inhale with impunity, and which develope the most distressing diseases in the weak and feeble. It is, therefore, of paramount importance to invigorate the body in hot weather. Vitalize and strengthen the stomach and the nervous system with at least two doses per day of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and you will be sure to escape the fits of indigestion, attacks of bilious colic, sick headaches, diarrhœas and dysentaries which are so common at this season. Be prudent. A little care and forecast exercised now, may prevent your being prostrated by remittent and intermittent fever, or by chronic bowel or liver complaint throughout the fall. When vigor is oozing out of every pore under the rays of an almost vertical sun, this genial vegetable tonic supplies to the nervous system an aliment which enables it to withstand the drain.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOS. HORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

New Ship.

The splendid new ship, of 1200 tons measurement, building by Messrs. Tobey and Littlefield on Noble's Island, will be launched in about ten days. She is owned by Capt. Jacobs, Hon. John H. Burleigh and by Portsmouth parties, and is to be commanded by Capt. B. F. Jacobs, formerly master of ships Merrimac and Jean Ingelow. The captain is an energetic and successful ship-master. The vessel is pronounced a beautiful model, combining speed and carrying capacity. She will be fitted with all of the latest modern improvements for fitting first class ships, has masts made from Southern hard pine of great strength and will be masted at the Navy Yard shears, Commodore Howell having kindly consented to the use of the government shears, those ordinarily used for masting ships not being deemed safe to lift such heavy masts. She is intended for the Pacific trade and it is expected will make good time under Capt. Jacobs' skill. May success attend her.

We are indebted to Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett for the following list of the survivors of the attendants of the Centennial Ball in this city in 1823:

Joshua W. Pierce, Hampden Cutts, John G. Palfrey, Mrs. John G. Palfrey, Thos. W. Penhallow, Cyrus P. Smith, John A. Haven, Mrs. John A. Haven, Mrs. John W. Foster, J. M. Tredick, Samuel P. Long, Alfred W. Haven, Wm. H. Y. Hackett, Robert M. Mason, Edward Rundlett, Mrs. N. A. Haven, Jr., Mrs. Daniel Taylor, Mrs. Francis Bassett, Mrs. Lyman D. Spalding, Henry H. Ladd, Mrs. Joshua B. Whidden, Miss Jane S. Ball, Miss Lucy E. Penhallow, Mrs. Charles Cushing Little Harbor, Mrs. Gov. Goodwin, Miss Charlotte Sheafe, Miss Eliza Jane Larkin, Miss Mary B. Appleton, Mrs. Wm. A. Rice, Miss Mary Handy, Miss Mary O. Larkin, Miss Caroline Haven, Miss Sarah Simes, Washington Haven. George Melcher, Jr., Mary E. Mason, Mrs. Henry Ladd, Nath. S. Folsom.

The Fire Laddies.

Sagamore Steam Fire Engine Co. No. 2, Willard Sears, foreman, arrived home from a two days' trip to Lawrence, Friday evening. Mayor Marvin and others have with the Sagamores been the guests of Essex S. F. E. Co. No. 4, of Lawrence, the Dover Cornet Band furnishing music for the Portsmouth firemen. On Thursday, the Eagle says a fine dinner was served at the Franklin House, and in the evening there was a ball at City Hall. They spent Friday at Policy Pond. The boys express themselves in the warmest terms of delight at the courtesies extended them, and threaten retaliation in "Two's" well-known manner at the first opportunity. The Lawrence city government were conspicuous in their endeavors to make the visitors feel at home.

Laconics.

Rev. William G. Nowell accompanied the Maine editors on their excursion through the Provinces, representing the Boston Globe. He occupied the pulpit of the Universalist church at Halifax on Sunday. The excursion was a most delightful one.

Lots of gas about the Navy Yard.

The Baltimore Sunday Telegraph pays a handsome compliment to Mr. Richard W. E. Robinson, formerly of this city and now Cashier of the Narragansett Steamship Co. at New York. He is an obliging and courteous official.

Nellie Hooper had a finger crushed in the machinery at Kearsarge mills on Friday.

By reference to a notice in our advertising columns, it will be seen that Messrs. James P. Bartlett and Frank W. Hackett have called a meeting of citizens who desire to take part in the erection of a monument at Odiorne's Point, under the auspices of the New Hampshire Historical Society, to be held at the Common Council room, Monday evening.

Colby University, at its commencement conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity on Rev. W. H. Alden of this city.

There is a lady in this city who makes a practice of attending every funeral in town. Recently, to her dismay, two funerals came off at the same time and she found it difficult to decide which to attend.

The funeral services of Mr. B. Frank Bailey were attended by the Masons and Odd Fellows, with Harlow's Band, Friday afternoon. While the procession was crossing Market Square, a frightened horse knocked down and ran over a young son of Capt. John C. Bush. He was taken up insensible but was able to walk home an hour afterward.

Mr. Walter E. H. Fentress has been appointed second clerk to Commodore Howell at the Navy Yard.

The Dover Cornet ranks among the best Bands in New England outside of Boston. Their music as they passed through the streets, Friday evening, was fine, and elicited the commendations of our citizens.

Make way for the "Patrons of Husbandry."

—The Springfield Union thinks that one of the most amusing sights is that of a pretty and elegantly dressed young lady, standing in a mud puddle in the rear of a street-car, from which she has just alighted, and calling frantically to her pet poodle to "come back, you awful thing, and let that hoorid yellow dog alone," and in the next breath beseeching the driver to wait till she can get her "darling dog."

—An Oregon camp-meeting preacher, at a recent successful effort to convert sinners, made this announcement: "I hope all the congregation will be here Sunday by 10 o'clock, for precisely at that hour we will pass to the creek, where I shall baptize four adults and six adulteresses."

State News.

A party of religiously disposed young gentlemen, says the World, have resolved to import some St. Bernard dogs, a French chef de cuisine, and a stock of superior wines, with the intention of establishing an austere monastic retreat on the highest point on the New Hampshire mountains.

Mr. Woodbury, the "temperance threshing machine," received a cool reception from the "pious" people of Laconia, and a warm one from the roughs. The temperance and pious element took up a collection in church for him, when the princely sum of nineteen cents was realized. All the followers he got were a parcel of hard heads who were armed with rotten eggs, with which they bedaubed him.

A desperate attempt was made to burn the buildings of George W. Royleigh of Amherst, at midnight on Wednesday. Fires were lighted at his house, barn and carriage house, the latter being entirely consumed. Fortunately, the fires at the house and barn were extinguished without damage.

About two weeks since, a man, who is said to be partially insane, stabbed a valuable horse belonging to Mr. C. P. Ober, a milk-man in Nashua. The wounds, which were inflicted with a jack-knife, were of such a character as to cause death. The man's name is Wm. Simonds. He immediately left for parts unknown, but was traced to Manchester, who all traces of him were lost.

The little girl, four years of age, daughter of T. Shea of Amherst, who has lain since Sunday, the 6th inst., in an unconscious stupor or trance, from the effects, as it is thought, of drinking liquor which had been carelessly left within her reach, remains in the same condition, with but little hope of recovery.

Recently a boy named Hart, living with Moses Wright, in Walpole, fell from a load of hay with a pitchfork in his hand, the tines of which pierced the cavity of his chest, injuring the right lung. The external wounds have healed and the boy is comfortable.

The lightning struck a tree on the land of Mr. Bellows in Alstead, the 3d of July, and set fire to it. The tree was soon consumed, but the fire continued to burn into the ground, and is still burning, all efforts to extinguish it having failed. The late rain checked it somewhat.

On Sunday afternoon the barn of Daniel Clay at Bow Lake, in Strafford, was burned with contents, consisting of some ten tons of hay, a horse and carriage, harnesses, farming tools, etc. Loss about $1000 and no insurance. It is supposed that the fire originated from a tobacco pipe!

Snow fell on Mt. Washington on Thursday last.

It is feared that Mr. Reed Dutton, of Milford, who was injured by a cannon which he gave his boys on the recent Fourth of July, will not recover.

A REMARKBLE FORGER.

The N. Y. Tribune notices the death on Monday last, at Fort Washington, of Benjamin Rathburn, at the age of 82 years, and recalls to mind his career. Thirty-six years ago he was detected in forgeries to the amount of millions. He was arrested, tried, convicted, sentenced to five year's imprisonment, and what seems now remarkable, served out his term. The Tribune says of him:—

Of all the millions that had passed thro' his hands, he never put away a dollar for himself, nor could he at any time have called himself the honest possessor of fifty thousand dollars. The private life of this remarkable man was from his early manhood singularly irreproachable. He was modest to a fault, strictly temperate, never smoked or chewed, never gambled, kept no equipage, had no acquaintance with disreputable people, avoided public places, indulged in no extravagance, but devoted himself assiduously to his business.

MYSTERIES OF OUR MEAT.

[Boston cor. St. John's Globe.]

A nice, juicy beef-steak is not a bad thing to set before a hungry man; but when one comes to trace the history of that piece of manipulated meat, he is apt to have some compunctions about discussing it. We have a society here called the "Mission for Animals." It is one year old and has just made its first report. The report among other things goes on to speak of the hundreds of thousands of wild animals, which it regards as coming within its protection, as well as domestic ones, which are annually destroyed, a large portion for such considerations as their hides, teeth, etc. The agent of the society also says that while he was at the Brighton yard he saw one car loaded with "still-fed" oxen, one of which was unable to stand. The drover told me that "still feeding is apt to take all the strength out of their hind legs; and then this one got his insides melted down at Albany." Yet he was brought through in this sick condition. And his owner (Mr. Heath) told me he sent him to the slaughter-house, where he was doubtless converted into very tender beef. One lame ox also came down, which probably took the same road with his sick brother. With regard to the actual numbers lost by death in transportation, the report speaks as follows, after speaking of the manner in which the fact were ascertained:—"And this limited and partial survey of the fact makes the account, under this head alone, stand as follows against our slip-shod and cruel modes of transporting live stock: Dead cattle, 60,019; dead sheep, 263,893; dead hogs, 311,890. A grand total of 635,802 of these animals maimed, mangled and killed on their way from Texas and the Mississippi valley to this part of the Atlantic seaboard, and involving, in addition to the terrible suffering of these creatures, the loss of unknown millions of dollars. But the worst feature of this business is, that a large proportion of these dead and decomposed carcases are converted into human food. Hogs were probably "rendered" into cooking lard. The actual money loss by the cruelties of transportation is set down at about $45,000,000 yearly—an enormous sum, which the consumers have to make up in some way.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH of the City of Portsmouth call the attention of the public to the following sections of City Ordinances No. 4 and No. 100, and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the City to aid them in the execution of their duty.

ORDINANCE No. 4.

SEC. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c., shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the Health Officers may direct.

SEC. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance, or any other matter capable of producing infection into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

SEC. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three or more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

SEC. 11. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other things deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers or any member of the Mayor accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel, or enclosure, and cause the said nuisance or other thing offensive to be removed or destroyed.

SEC. 14. The owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure shall be liable to pay the expense of the removal or destruction of any such nuisance or other thing, as aforesaid, including fees of the health officers who order or cause the same to be removed; and the same may be recovered by action to be brought in the name of the city.

SEC. 17. Any person or persons who shall violate any rule or regulation, or commit any act forbidden in any section of this ordinance, to which no special penalty is annexed, shall forfeit and pay a sum not less than one dollar nor more than twenty dollars, to be recovered by complainant before the police court of this city.

ORDINANCE No. 100.

SEC. 1. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice to the Health Officers.

SEC. 2. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the Small Pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the Health Officers.

SEC. 3. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the Health Officers in the name of the city.

Gained Fifteen Pounds of Flesh.

SOUTH BERWICK, ME., Jan. 17, 1872.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir.—I have had dyspepsia in its worst form for the last ten years, and have taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine, without any material relief. In September last I commenced taking the VEGETINE, since which time my health has steadily improved. My food digests well, and I have gained fifteen pounds of flesh. There are several others in this place taking the VEGETINE, and all have obtained relief. Yours truly,

THOMAS E. MOORE,
Overseer of the Card Room, Portsmouth Co.'s Mills.

DYSPEPSIA.

SYMPTOMS.—Want of appetite, rising of food and wind from the stomach, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, dryness and whiteness of the tongue in the morning, sense of distension in the stomach and bowels, sometimes rumbling and pain; costiveness, which is occasionally interrupted by diarrhœa; paleness of the urine. The mouth is clammy, or has a sour or bitter taste. Other frequent symptoms are waterbrash, palpitation of the heart, headache and disorders of the senses, as seeing double, &c. There is general debility, languor, and aversion to mental exertion, dejection of the spirits, disturbed sleep and frightful dreams.

FEEL MYSELF A NEW MAN.
A Source of Great Anxiety

My daughter has received great benefit from the use of VEGETINE. Her declining health was a source of great anxiety to all her friends, but a few bottles of the VEGETINE restored her health, strength and appetite. N. H. TILDES,

What I Know About Vegetine.

SOUTH BOSTON, May 9, 1870.

H. R. STEVENS, Esq.:

Dear Sir—I have had considerable experience with the VEGETINE. For Dyspepsia, General Debility and Impure blood, the VEGETINE is superior to anything which I have ever used. I commenced taking VEGETINE about the middle of last winter and after using a few bottles it entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and my blood never was in so good condition as at the present time. It will afford me pleasure to give any further particulars relative to what I know about this good medicine, to any one who will call or address me at my residence, 326 Athens Street.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of securing their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL.
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL.
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL.
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL.
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL.
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no mines will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped into places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 940 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. oawjl

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole Materia Medical plants.

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company.

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RESCREENED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Portland Company's works at Portland were destroyed by fire on Saturday morning. The buildings burned were the paint, car, tin and blacksmith shops. Many cars and several engines were destroyed. Loss $50,000.

Dr. McGregor Jones, at Dexter, Me., has a trout in his well that is forty-six years old. He was placed in the well in 1827.

Information of a terrible tragedy is received through the Creek agency of Indian territory. A prominent and wealthy man named Barrett hunted down an Indian named Josiah Gray, with whom he had quarreled, and first dangerously wounded him, and afterwards with others made an attack upon him, killed him, and also wounded his brother. Thereupon Barrett's place was attacked by about a hundred of the murdered man's friends, two of his men were killed, and he was tried, condemned, and shot dead.

Portland, whose inhabitants are not hoggish by any manner of means, has gone into the pork packing business.

There is probably a great deal of truth in the following extract from Dr. Hall's Journal of Health: "The universal error as to the unhealthiness of pies, puddings, and pastries, taking it for granted that they are well made and properly cooked, has arisen from the simple fact that after we have made a full meal of other things the stomach is oppressed by them, and if the process is repeated becomes eventually dyspeptic—that is, has not the power to work up the food because it had been worked to death already. It would be quite as philosophical if a man has become very tired by plowing all day, and afterward, by chopping wood, has 'worked himself out,' to conclude that it was very unhealthy to chop."

The champion lobster was recently caught near Portland, He measured forty-six inches from tip to tip of his extended claws.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 81.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

The New Hampshire Historical Society is not so very old as to be venerable, having existed but half a century. Yet in that time nearly two generations of people have passed away. Its early actors have mostly gone, only one of its original members surviving. This is George Kent, Esq., now living out of the State.

The Society has had among its members several of the most learned and noted men of the State. Among them may be named such in the legal profession as Jeremiah Mason then of Portsmouth, and Judge Wm. M. Richardson of Chester; Governors Plumer of Epping, Smith of Exeter, Woodbury of Portsmouth, and Hibbard of Charlestown.

The object of the Society is specified in its constitution as follows: "It shall be to discover, procure and preserve whatever may relate to the natural, civil, literary and ecclesiastical history of the United States in general, and of this State in particular."

The operations of the Society for its first years were limited, but what was done was done efficiently. A room was provided toward the north end of Main street, in Concord, where a library was begun, a collection of the first books having been presented by Ex-Gov. Plumer. Within the last few years the library has increased rapidly so that it now numbers more than 6000 volumes and a great number of pamphlets. It has quite a collection in the form of a cabinet, consisting of Indian relics and a great variety of old articles, such as fire arms, the coat worn by Gen. Benjamin Pierce when Inspector in the war of the revolution, manacles worn by slaves in the South, &c. These are in a show case extending nearly across the new library room, and are too numerous to name in any full extent.

The Society has published eight volumes of collections. In these a great amount of old and interesting matter in form of early documents, or history of several towns, biographical sketches of eminent men in the early history of the State, with miscellaneous matter is preserved, much of which might otherwise have been lost.

The late Gov. Plumer has been named as one of the early benefactors. Another was Richard Bartlett, Esq., of Concord, who gave his library to the Society, James B. Moore, who wrote and in various ways labored industriously for the benefit of the organization, John Farmer, the great antiquarian of New Hampshire, for some years its corresponding Secretary. The fruit of his research is found in the Society's published volumes, in other books of which he was author and in extensive articles in magazines, &c. The late Hon. John Kelly of Exeter was Recording Secretary, and an earnest worker with his pen and by other means to promote its interest.

I was present at the dedication of its newly provided building, May 22. It was an occasion of great interest. At that time and before the dedicating exercises a donation of several volumes was made by Mrs. Nathaniel G. Upham, of Concord, being a part of the library of her father, the late Rev. A. Burnham of Pembroke. Hon. B. F. Prescott, Sec. of State, then presented a pair of silver mounted pistols from J. L. Elwell. They formerly were owned by his grandfather, Hon. John Langdon, of Portsmouth, and were carried by him while he was in the army of the Revolution for a short time. Since then Hon. C. H. Bell of Exeter has made a donation of books. And W. H. Dudley of Brentwood has made a gift of various articles, valuable to be preserved. On the whole the Society is a good institution, has much that is interesting, and its promise for the future is great for usefulness.

The Dunkers.

[Wilmington Commercial.]

The Dunkers are a very curious religious sect, originating in the Old World, and flourishing in some parts of our country, especially in Lancaster County, Pa. They are well-to-do farmers, and, as a friend remarked to me, are likely to be found wherever there is fertile limestone soil. Their ministers are educated and unpaid farmers; their religion is a compound of honesty, hard work, and legal rites; their churches are barns, and their chief meetings concentrate themselves in half-yearly services, before and after harvest.

Leaving Litiz after tea, we were quickly carried behind our landlord's swift and powerful horses through a real garden land to the place of Dunker meeting—the large white barn of a rich farmer of their persuasion. The lanes leading to the barn were filled with carriages, and the grounds were crowded with spectators, who were grouped under the apple trees or around the wide, open doors of the barn. The services were well under way, and the interesting ceremony of feet-washing over when we arrived. With some difficulty we worked our way over implements and hay piles into one corner of the barn, from which we could overlook the whole scene. The building had been cleared for the brethren and sisters, who sat across long, narrow tables arranged across the body of the barn.

A partition wall separated the sexes, and over it we could see the serious faces of the sisters, with their white caps and white capes, while a row of sedate brethren sat so near to us that we could have laid our hands on their hair, religiously parted in the middle.

As we came in they were silently partaking of their love-feast. On the narrow tables stood tin bowls of lamb's broth, while the boiled joint aside of them, bread and butter, and water served out of watering-pans. About 250 were partaking of the meal by the light of tallow candles, and never a word was spoken, except in address, or hymn, or prayer.

After the love-feast was over a speaker significantly reminded us strangers that as we did not keep the Lord's feast in this divinely appointed way we had little to expect on the Day of Judgment. Then came a prayer, the 19th chapter of John, recounting our Lord's crucifiction, and the address of an old white-bearded man, who, with rude but deep pathos, told of Christ's love in His redeeming death.

The leader bade them greet each other with a "holy kiss" ere they tasted their Lord's sacramental supper, and silently and slowly the salutation passed down one side the long tables and up the other. Then the elements were consecrated, and passed from hand to hand. The scene was striking. The barn was dimly lighted by the candles, the faces of all were sober, and some were thoughtful.

Many of the men were gray and toil-worn, and some of the women, if not beautiful, had a sweet charm in their faces. Sometimes a German or English hymn pealed upward among the rafters of the barn, and then there was a deep silence again, broken only by slight rustling in the hay and low whispers among the strangers, watching to see what new ceremony would next be started from the cross-table at which the Dunker preacher sat. Here was a strange mixture of the true and false; a ritual rude and yet defined, and as closely observed by these farmers as are the forms of St. Albans by its fashionable devotees.

The Massachusetts Cops.

[Providence Journal.]

Massachusetts has a State Constabulary. Inasmuch as it has been proposed to institute in Rhode Island this sort of Bay State executive, it may not be inappropriate to know how it acts upon important occasions. As a general thing, we believe, it confines itself to "pulling" small and influential liquor dealers. If we are to accept the evidence of Gen. Butler, the State Constable "harracks" the demijohn of the retailer, and the retailer himself, if he is one of the common people, but neither sees, nor endeavors to see the wine, and juleps and champagne in the Parker House. In a word, a Massachusetts State Constable is an individual paid by the State to worry poor folks, and keep assiduously out of the way of rich people; who is so peculiarly gifted by nature or education that he can discover the faintest aroma of gin in an alley, but is oblivious to the fragrance of "Otard" in marble halls. That one possessed of such characteristics should, upon occasion, distinguish himself, seems altogether natural. And if, as it appears in the case, the guardian of the public peace and virtue is authorized to deal with other crimes than that of liquor selling, we should expect that in those, his other duties, he would disclose equally obvious, just and beneficent qualities. We are not disappointed. Springfield has just witnessed an irruption of this chosen hand from another distant part of the State. Why, is thus told: "The local State Constables have local friends whom they will not molest, and local foes to whose persecution they devote their energies."

But the imported Constabulary; they may be relied upon to deal justly; they at any rate have no local attachments, and no local antipathies. Probably not; but even these gentlemen seem to have, in Springfield, made flesh of one, and fowl of another, in a way utterly incomprehensible outside of Massachusetts; out of twenty-five houses obnoxious to the law and good morals in that rural city, these Constables invaded four, and having brought to the police court an equal number—large enough to give a metropolitan air to Springfield, they convicted and punished the women, and let the men go free. We protest that this, although it may be Massachusetts morality, does not commend itself to the unsophisticated justice of our less progressive people. How is it that the aristocratic youth of Springfield, well instructed, and, of course, fully cognizant of what they were about, were allowed by these especial and supposed-to-be immaculate custodians of good order, to sin, to violate the statute with impunity, while their companions, poor, ignorant, perhaps, at any rate necessitous, were mulcted in fines and published to the world as vagabonds? No police of that kind, whether city or State, please, for us.

MEMPHISTIANA.

Says the Memphis Appeal, of recent date: "An editor of a religious paper in this city asks what will steady his nerves after receiving such calls as this: Yesterday afternoon a gentleman from Arkansas walked in, holding in each hand a loaded and cocked Colt's repeater, and asked, 'Is this the office of the Baptist? Is Dr. Graves in?' Upon receiving an affirmative reply to both questions, he said, 'Wal, I'll just call in 'The Other.'" 'The Other' came in, bristling all over with deadly weapons. On being asked the nature of their unusual call, 'Number One' replied by asking, 'Did you publish in your paper Parson ——, formerly of Arkansas, as a swindler and horse-thief.' The doctor did remember him, and many others who, as 'wolves in the fold,' he had exposed, and remembered, too their threats, and how surely he was to suffer martyrdom for his duty. What to say or do was the question, but it was too late to recede; so, boldly accepting the situation, he replied, 'I did.' Instead of the bang of a pistol, a pool of gore, a weeping widow, &c., which he vividly pictured in his mind, he received an extended hand, large, brawny, and sunburned, with, 'W-a-l, parson, lets shake, for I'm glad to see you.' The sequel proved that, though 'on the trail,' it was not that of the doctor, but of the 'exposed parson,' who had stolen of 'Number One' his horse, and of 'The Other' his daughter (making her his fifth wife,) and had gone to a more 'pleasant field of labor,' where he is at present feeding the 'lambs' in a certain part of Alabama, and through the 'detective column' of the Baptist they had discovered his whereabouts. Now, Dr. Graves requests that all gentlemen from Arkansas will, when they call, leave their arms and ammunition just outside the door.'

A Layman's Grace.

[Lowell Courier.]

A young married friend tells a good joke on himself perpetrated by a little three-year-old "pride of the family." She is the only pledge of love that has twined itself around the heart and affections of himself and wife. A few evenings since a minister visited the family and remained until after tea. At the table the reverend visitor asked the blessing and the little one opened her eyes to the fullest capacity in startled wonderment. She could not understand what had been done, and it was with great persuasion that her mother could keep her quiet during the time they were at the table. When they left it she walked up to the minister, for whom she had formed a great friendship, and said:

"What did you say at the table before we commenced eating?"

"My little darling, I thanked God for his goodness in giving us to eat, so that we might grow and be strong."

"Papa don't say that."

"What does your papa say?"

"Papa says 'Godlemighty, what a supper.'"

AN INFORMAL SURRENDER.

Speaking of the proposed love-feast of Union and Confederate West Pointers, next year, the Newark Advertiser—whose editor was "in the service" remarks: "This comrade-feeling reminds us of the surrender of the confederate Gen. Gideon Pillow to his old friend, Gen. A. J. Smith. It was a touching scene. Pillow came into Montgomery, one morning, afoot and alone. He sat down on a curb-stone and shook the gravel out of his rough army shoes, and then walked into Smith's office, a bank parlor, to surrender. The ceremony was simple. He said: 'How are you Jack?' The reply was: 'Good God, Gid! is that you? Have you had your breakfast?' To which Pillow feelingly responded, 'No, and I haven't a dollar to pay for one.' Pillow got his breakfast, gave his parole, and remarked that, if he could not whip the Yankees, he could go back to Tennessee and raise cotton, and went on his way rejoicing, with enough money in his pocket to resume his place as one of the best citizens of West Tennessee."

—This is the way they caged a rhinoceros at Ithaca N. Y., according to the local paper: "A cable chain was attached to each of his legs, and one around his neck, and these were coupled to locomotives on each of our railroads. The engines were then started. Pulling in five different directions, his behemothship had nothing left to fight with but his tail, and that was lashed to a church spire by wire rope. Being rendered harmless by these guys, a new wagon was built around him, and thus he was secured.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with cruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS. 689

Midsummer Malaria.

At this season the heat of the sun liberates from the soil, the water and the filth of cities immense quantities of unwholesome gases which the strongest can scarcely inhale with impunity, and which develope the most distressing diseases in the weak and feeble. It is, therefore, of paramount importance to invigorate the body in hot weather. Vitalize and strengthen the stomach and the nervous system with at least two doses per day of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and you will be sure to escape the fits of indigestion, attacks of bilious colic, sick headaches, diarrhœa and dysenteries which are so common at this season. Be prudent. A little care and forecast exercised now, may prevent your being prostrated by remittent and intermittent fever, or by chronic bowel or liver complaint throughout the fall. When vigor is oozing out of every pore under the rays of an almost vertical sun, this genial vegetable tonic supplies to the nervous system an aliment which enables it to withstand the drain.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. It taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

Local Matters.

The Odiorne's Point Monument.

We trust that the meeting, at eight o'clock, this evening, at the Common Council rooms, will be well attended. The object is a good one. The outlay contemplated is so remarkable, the occasion so interesting and the result so gratifying to the people of the whole State, that it were a pity that the scheme, now fairly proposed, should be abandoned. The meeting is designed to afford opportunity for talking the matter over in an informal way. The Press in Boston and elsewhere, have spoken favorably of the project and the Historical Society advocates it heartily. Prominent individuals in various parts of the country are interested directly upon hearing the proposal. For instance, a gentleman in Cincinnati has written that he would consider it a privilege to contribute something to the fund.

It is not soon enough to say what kind of a commemorative monument will be proposed, or what should be the programme of exercises at its dedication. These are matters which a little free interchange of opinion may determine. But it appears to be the general impression that a plain shaft which can be put up at small expense would be best. The plan of the celebration will undoubtedly look to an address of historical value, and possibly a dinner, without street demonstration. At all events the settlement of Portsmouth means the settlement of New Hampshire, and here and there, in the State, are to be found gentlemen who will gladly join in the exercises.

Portsmouth is rich in historical incidents. Odiorne's Point is hardly less interesting to the people of New Hampshire than Plymouth Rock to New England and the country at large. It was settled less than three years after the Pilgrim Fathers landed. True, Thompson and his companions did not come to found a "church without a bishop, a State without a king," but simply to fish and make a decent livelihood. Still their landing in 1623 makes that rocky point to-day one of the most interesting spots in the whole country. They will not be forgotten, if these who care to remember them can be got into an efficient organization. We have little doubt that the movement will prove a gratifying success.

A Wonderful Cure.

About a year ago, Hon. Jonathan Dearborn, Ex-Mayor of Portsmouth, was suffering from an acute kidney complaint, which his friends feared would be fatal. Consultation with physicians only confirmed those fears and he was told that nothing could be done for him. A critical examination of his case was made by Boston physicians, all of whom concurred in the statement that Mr. Dearborn had "Bright's disease of the kidneys," which has been deemed incurable. Dr. Fitch, of Boston, was finally consulted, and after a minute inspection of every symptom of the case, told Mr. Dearborn he might let his garden weeds pull themselves up. 'Twould do them and him no harm to let them grow. In fact, the less exertion he made, the more comfortable he would pass the remainder of his days. Our sterling Ex-Mayor saw the drift of the hints given and said he was willing to be told if his time had come. Dr. Fitch frankly informed him that his demise was not a distant contingency. "How long can I live," said the imperturbable ex-chief magistrate of Strawberry Bank; "three months?" "Perhaps," replied the Doctor. "Well, there's a Presidential election coming off in three months, and I propose to vote at that time," remarked the sick man. "You needn't trouble yourself about that—you'll not have an opportunity; you have Bright's disease," was the consoling reply, and the physician and patient parted. Taking the advice of friends, Mr. Dearborn went to the springs at South Poland, Me., and proceeded to put himself outside of all the Poland water he could imbibe. A speedy change was apparent, and after a few weeks of stomach flooding, Mr. Dearborn returned to Portsmouth armed with a barrel of the precious fluid. He tells us that every trace of the disease from which he was suffering has been removed; and now he attends to business with his wonted vigor and tranquility.

A Coffer-Dam Accident.

[Dover Democrat, July 23d.]

Another catastrophe at the coffer-dam. Last night about 12 o'clock, the pressure of water at the lower end became too great and some forty to sixty feet of the dam was swept away. A loaded gondola was coming up and just about to enter the passage on the north side of the dam when the crash came and the water being over six feet higher upon the outside than upon the inside of the dam it made a tremendous rush, carrying gondola, planking, clay packing and everything else to the interior at lightning speed. The loaded lighter would probably have shot clear through the upper end of the dam had there been no obstructions in the way. The dam planking was all saved upon the inside and this morning men were engaged fishing it ashore. This is a bad draw-back to the work down there. The dam was just about completed when this accident happened, and the pumps were being put in readiness to take the water from the inside so the blasting could proceed. The contractor informs us that he has been deceived in regard to the tides in this river. They run at a very irregular height so as almost to defy calculation. The information given him led him to believe that they were as regular and even as anywhere else. But the night tides average higher than those by day and are more irregular and uncertain. The tide last night was two feet higher at the dam, than the average, for the last fortnight. Under these circumstances the dam is insufficient and unreliable. The plan now is to increase the thickness in some of the sections. This will, we suppose, involve a pretty thorough reconstruction, which will prolong the job indefinitely, if indeed the force of circumstance does not compel the utter abandonment of this entire plan of operations.

Laconics.

Wagner has been taken back to Alfred jail from Saco.

On Friday, an accommodation train ran from Portland to Boston in three hours and forty-five minutes, making all the regular stoppages.

The dog-days have come—the hottest of the year.

A persistent conundrumist asks, "Can a unmarried lady become a 'Patron of Husbandry?'" Give it up.

A correspondent in answer to our query about the lady who wanted the circus agent's umbrella so much, replies that "if she is a spinster it was probably a mistake!" And the last end of that man was worse than the first.

Perhaps it wasn't hot on Saturday—98!"

The New York Graphic says "the ladies have arranged to have a fair at Rye Beach in aid of the traditional Sunday school." And it follows up this slur with a wretched pen to the effect that these af-fairs are one of the few annoyances at that sea-side resort. The Graphic had better keep its gas for that balloon voyage.

This sort of weather makes one think of Sydney Smith's desire to doff his flesh and sit in his bones.

The rush to the surrounding beaches on Sunday was immense. Everybody wanted to get a whiff of old ocean's cooling breezes. Some people think they ought to have gone to church—but they didn't.

Mr. Charles Rook, formerly agent of the Rockingham Mills in this city, died in Lawrence on the 23d.

Sunday brought refreshing showers. The day was a sultry one, however.

The question of to-day—To go or not to go down river.

Everything's froze up.

Our people do not take kindly to green apples thus far, but just wait till pears appear, my boys, and then ask why Summer complaint is the principal ingredient in our list of ills.

The ever popular Sea View House at Rye Beach is doing a good business this Summer. Lougee's fame is spread abroad.

State News.

Joseph Dame, of Dover, had both bones of the right leg broken, just above the ankle, on the 22d, by a hose cart backing against him and throwing him down.

Five first-class lathes were shipped from Nashua to Glasgow, Scotland, on Wednesday.

Sarah Felker, of Dover, fell, on the 19th, while picking cherries, and broke one of her arms.

The original bond of the defaulting Treasurer Shute to the Exeter Savings Bank, for the sum of $35,000, which has been missing since the absconding of Shute on the 20th of January last, has at length been found, and is now in the hands of the assignees of the bank. The bond, it is reported, was found by the father of the defaulter among some old papers and documents left by his son.

Captain Joseph Jackson of Rochester died recently from the effects of the bite of a white spider received ten years ago.

The Patrons of Husbandry are said to be forming an organization in New Hampshire. The necessary papers were sent from the West some weeks ago. Rumor connects Hon. Moses Humphrey of Concord, Hon. David M. Clough of Canterbury, and Hon. John H. Goodale of Nashua with the movement.

—A peculiar piece of revenge was carried out last week by an indignant Good Templar of Brooklyn. There had been a quarrel in the lodge, owing to the failure of all members but one to be elected president, and a split had followed. The elected president gave a pleasant evening party last Friday to the faithful. It was announced before it occurred. Some of the discontented heard of it, and plotted for satisfaction. They gathered a few newspapers, and by postal cards, they sent word to everybody who had advertised any want, to call at the president's house on Friday evening, at half-past seven. Simultaneously, therefore, with the advent of the guests there came pouring in a crowd without wedding garments or temperance password. Some applied for lost babies, others called for puppies, another wanted to pledge his watch, a detective called for a clue, and applicants for situations were innumerable. Some of the people had come all the way from Staten Island even, and their disappointment was very great at finding themselves deceived. The party was not a success, and nobody was very happy. The detectives are looking for the originator of the joke, and he is likely to find another lodge pretty soon.

—Advices from Virginia, Delaware and New Jersey give assurance that the peach crop of this season will be one of the heaviest ever gathered. It is thought that over one million crates will be sent to New York this Summer, which is a great increase over last year's shipments. As combinations and conspiracies are the order of the day in the commercial world, it is not surprising to hear that the large peach dealers are devising plans for a "corner" in their trade this Summer. They fear that, owing to the unusual supply, the price will fall so low as to leave them with very small profits, after a very hard season's work.

—The subject of impressions at first sight was being talked over in a family circle, when the mother said, "I always form an idea of a person on first sight, and generally find it correct." Mamma," said her youthful son, "Well, my dear, what is it?" "I want to know what you're opinion of me was when you first saw me."

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials, except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 640 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. ow3t

NEVER

NEGLECT A COUGH. Nothing is more certain to lay the foundation for future evil consequences.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS

are a sure cure for all diseases of the Respiratory Organs. Sore Throat, Colds, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, Dryness of the Throat, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Windpipe, or Bronchial Tubes, and all Diseases of the Lungs.

In all cases of sudden cold, however taken, these TABLETS should be promptly and freely used. They equalize the circulation of the blood, mitigate the severity of the attack, and will, in a very short time, restore healthy action to the affected organs.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS are put up only in BLUE BOXES. Take no substitutes. If they can't be found at your druggist's, SEND AT ONCE TO THE AGENT IN NEW YORK, who will forward them by return mail.

DON'T BE DECEIVED BY IMITATIONS.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up, and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FIRMLY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medical plants.

OCEAN'S STORY:

OR THOUGHTS OF THIRTY CENTURIES; By E. B. Goodrich (son of "Peter Parley") and E. Howland. A work of great historical research recounting in truly graphic style the wonderful growth of navigation, and history of discovery since the flood; is replete with incidents, thrilling adventures, battles, shipwrecks, mutinies, piracies, &c. Describes how from the first tiny bark, when ocean was the dark realm of terrors, sale now whitten every sea, lighting flashes tidings from shore to shore, and men bring up wonders from deep water; with many other matters of lively interest, which go to make up one of the most valuable, fascinating and remarkable productions of the age. Over 200 spirited illustrations. Agents Wanted. For circulars and terms address, HUBBARD BROS., Pub'rs, Boston, Mass. ta18

A G-o-o-d D-e-a-l of Money.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

It was a somewhat blunt inquiry, though propounded in the blandest manner, that an ex-congressman put, the other day, to a member of the last Congress: "Have you drawn your back pay?" The member had united with his constituents, since the adjournment, in hearty and indignant denunciation of the grab, and without a moment's hesitation responded, "Oh, no; no,—no, sir!" His interrogator, being of an inquisitive mind, did what, perhaps, he ought not to have done—persued the inquiry. "Have you turned it into the treasury?" The answer was a trifle less prompt. "N-n-o. I haven't yet. But it's there. I haven't drawn it." "Well, are you going to draw it?" pursued the inquirer. The member looked over his spectacles and winked. Then he began to show just the faintest ripple of an approaching smile. And after a litle, he said: "W-e-l-l, I—don't—know—I haven't drawn it, yet. It's there; and I suppose it's subject to my order. There's a good deal of feeling about it, and—I don't know. I haven't made up my mind what I shall do. I haven't drawn it, yet, and I sha'n't draw it at present any way." And then, after a moment's contemplative pause, the coming smile rippled to the surface as he added, in a burst of confidence: "The fact is, I've been building a house, and it has cost me a good deal more than I expected, and—well -I don't know. F-i-v-e t-h-o-u-s-a-n-d dollars is a g-o-o-d d-e-a-l of money. I haven't made up my mind yet; but it's f-i-v-e t-h-o-u-s-a-n-d dollars; my house has cost me more than I expected and f-i-v-e t-h-o-u-s-a-n-d dollars is a g-o-o-d d-e-a-l of money. Still, I don't know. I havn't made up my mind." And he was the average congressman. Will he take it? Take it? If that five thousand dollars don't go toward paying for that expensive house, there's an end of sinning; temptation has lost its charms, sin ceased to be beautiful; the adversary of the soul has lost his best hold.

Good Enough.

The young man L. H. Keith, who drew the $100,000 prize in the Louisville Library Lottery, didn't slop over. He took his father to Louisville and brought the funds along. The editors, however, did slop over. They made a hero of Keith, gave his genealogy, and tell what a very sharp business man his father is, and he was a chip of the old block. Had Keith have drawn a blank! their comments would have been: Fool and his money soon parted. And such is the effect of only $100,000 on poor but respectable editors.

TUESDAY, JULY 29, 1873.

A Fight to the Death.

A correspondent of the New York World, writing from Medicine Lodge, Indian Territory, gives a lengthy account of a terrible and deadly conflict between two notorious frontier characters, Hugh Anderson of Texas, and Arthur McCluskey of Kansas. The latter, burning to avenge the murder of a friend, challenged Anderson to a mortal combat. Both were desperadoes and both celebrated pistol shots. The affair was a horrible one throughout, both men being literally shot and hacked to pieces, and finally dying locked in each other's embrace. Omitting the introductory remarks of the correspondent, we give his full account of the duel, which may be said to be without a parallel even in bloody Western annals:

But little time was wasted in preliminaries. The twenty paces were quickly stepped off and the principals placed in their respective positions. The sun had long since set, and the dark pall of evening was rapidly settling on the spot, so that neither could be annoyed by the rays of the sun, nor could either side complain of holding an inferior position. The crowd drew back to what was deemed a safe distance, and the seconds, after a moment's consultation apart, advanced to give the signal. The interest at this moment in the proceedings was of an intense nature, and served to keep the lookers-on in a state of breathless expectancy. Like statues the figures of the two men who were to fight a Foutrance loomed up against the western sky, each with the muzzle of his weapon pointed to the earth, the intention clearly being to make a "rising shot;" that is, to fire, catching the aim while the weapon is being raised. In this way the practiced hand rarely wastes his ammunition in the air by shooting over his adversary's head as so often happens when the falling shot is adopted.

The giving of the signal had fallen by lot to Harding. Stating to the principals, who by this time began to show signs of impatience, that this would be the report of a pistol, he drew his own weapon and discharged it, first asking the question and receiving the usual answer that both were ready.

THE DUEL.

McCluskey was the first to fire, wheeling as he did so, though the smoke had scarcely curled up from his pistol before the report of Anderson's weapon followed. A momentary pause ensued, each of the antagonists closely scanning the other to note the effect of the shot. Across Anderson's cheek a deep furrow, from which the blood slowly began to trickle down, told the work of his antagonist, while McCluskey remained standing in his original posture, to all appearances unharmed. But this was not the fact. Those nearest to him fancied they saw a sudden spasm as of a pain pass through his frame, and his face certainly blanched to a death-like pallor, but just where the ball had taken effect they could not tell.

At the second fire McCluskey again anticipated his opponent, and, taking a more deliberate aim, succeeded in breaking his left arm. Anderson uttered a sharp cry, and sunk on one knee, but quickly recovering himself returned the fire, and this time with horrible effect. The ball, passing through McCluskey's mouth, carried away with it several of the clenched teeth and a portion of the tongue, finally lodging in the base of the skull. McCluskey staggered forward wildly a few steps, and made desperate efforts to steady himself. The blood poured in torrents from the wound, and stained his hunting-shirt and dripped from the muzzle of his pistol; but with heroic courage he continued to advance, spitting out mouthfuls of blood and teeth at every step. During the interval thus gained Anderson, who in his crippled state had every reason to shun a hand-to-hand encounter, had not been idle, but fired another well-aimed shot, which broke McCluskey's left shoulder. As if this was not enough, he sent still another ball into him, which, striking him in the pit of the stomach, caused him to fall forward heavily on his face. McCluskey was now mortally wounded and momentarily growing weaker from loss of blood. Tearing open his shirt in his agony, a crimson spot in his left side indicated the place where Anderson's first shot had taken effect. He still, however, retained his grasp of his pistol, and by an effort superhuman in its coolness and deliberation fired at his antagonist his third shot. The latter had been closely watching for this, and endeavored to save himself by suddenly dropping to the ground. Too late, however, McCluskey's finger was already on the trigger and his eye along the sights, and when his adversary's body reached the earth it was heavier by a Colt's pistol ball. A scream of pain followed and the spectators saw the figure of a man clutching wildly with his hands at the grass and writhing and twisting in horrible contortions. The bullet had struck him full in the abdomen, and, like his antagonist, Anderson was now a fast-dying man.

At this juncture it seemed as if the crowd would interfere, but Harding sternly bade them back and leave the men to settle the matter in their own way. As none cared to dispute with the gigantic hunter, the mandate was obeyed, though a universal expression of horror ran through the spectators, a large number of whom were the engineers and attaches of our own party. Still, horrible as was the scene, no one thought of leaving the spot. An irresistible fascination to see it out bound one and all to the blood-stained locality. But the finale was at hand—the curtain almost ready to drop.

McCluskey, summoning by a supreme effort his remaining strength, drew his knife and began to crawl feebly in the direction of his antagonist. The latter, who had raised himself to a sitting posture, saw the movement and prepared to meet it. Both had dropped their revolvers, leaving to the cold steel the completion of the work.

By this time it had grown quite dark, and to distinguish the movements of the combatants required the closest attention. Anderson was clearly unable to move any portion of his body save his right arm. With this he raised his knife aloft, and as McCluskey crawled up to within reach dealt him a terrible blow in the neck, cutting muscles and tendons and veins, and half severing the head from the body. But the effort was too much for him, and leaving the weapon sticking in the wound, he pitched heavily forward on his face. Every one supposed that this blow would have instantly killed McCluskey, but strange to say it did not, for so great was his vitality that before falling he twice plunged his own knife into the body of Anderson. The tale is soon told. McCluskey lived a minute longer than his antagonist. The dead bodies, firmly locked in each other's embrace, were taken to the house of Harding and laid out side by side on the gaming-table. A crimson trail marked the path of those who carried them in-doors, and pools of blood indicated the scene of the late conflict.

There was no gaming that night. The hunters and Indians appeared to find excitement enough in talking over the events of the day without having to resort to their usual pastime. About eleven o'clock the moon rose, and the bodies were taken out for burial. There were no funeral ceremonies, but Job Harding remarked, as the muffled forms were lowered into the grave, "There go two as brave men as ever lived." They were buried deep to keep the wolves and coyotes from digging them up, and the earth was heaped up in a little mound to mark where they slept. And then, with the night wind whispering a soft requiem over the dead men's graves, and the moon shining sadly from her distant sphere in the upper ether, the crowd slowly dispersed, and each one sought his couch.

Early the next morning our party of engineers turned its back upon Medicine Lodge, and on the evening of the fourth day took passage on the eastern-bound train from Wachita, Kansas.

A more horrible affair than this double murder it would be difficult to imagine. Both men were well known in Wachita, and along the great cattle trails, and both, to a certain degree, were popular. While looked on as desperadoes and bad characters, their undoubted pluck won for them a feeling of admiration, which, if not akin to friendship, at least secured them friendly treatment; and I have no doubt but that, in the minds of many of their own class, they left behind them recollections quite as favorable as would have been the case had they, instead of being ruffians, lived virtuous and peaceable lives.

A Morgan Raid.

[Danbury News.]

Stephen Butler lives in Westville, and owns a farm. Mr. Butler has had no particular feeling against the Fourth of July as an anniversary. Friday morning he was engaged milking one of his cows. While thus employed, a youth named Morgan, fired by the memory of the deeds of his fathers and having some pocket money, imagined the air was full of British, and loading his gun with powder and slug, fired away at a few of them. The cow Mr. Butler was milking at the time, was working up a new cud, and thinking of the changes that had taken place in the political and social affairs of the country in the past ninety-five years, when the slug from Morgan's gun came over the fence, and ploughed into her hind leg, glanced from the bone, and dropped into the pail. At this the cow stepped over to the other side of the yard, and glanced back at Mr. Butler with a look of mingled astonishment and reproach, which Mr. Butler failed to notice, being too busily engaged in picking himself up, and otherwise enjoying the stirring memories of the day.

As Mr. Stephen Chase, constable of Washington township, Indiana, was riding to the house of his father, who lives three miles from Fort Wayne, he had occasion to cross the track of the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad. He discovered a large hickory tree had fallen directly across the track in the woods. It was then about dark, and the passenger train would be along in two hours. He rode to his father's, nearly a quarter of a mile, procured an axe, and had cut off one end of the tree, when the axe slipped and went into his left foot, cutting it half off. He remounted the log, cut off the other end, rolled it on one side, leaving a clear passage for the train, then jumped on his horse and galloped home through the rain to look after his foot.

Up in a Balloon.

[N. Y. cor. Charlestown Advertiser.]

Boston, the patron of science, having sent Prof. Wise away from her door empty handed, while her coffers were yet full, and Philadelphia having given Prof. Donaldson, a native of that city, the go by in his efforts to test the aerostatic theory of a perpetual eastern current, it has fallen to the liberal city of New York to supply directly or indirectly the means to test this question so important to science. A portion of the required $3000 is already subscribed and would undoubtedly all have soon been raised had not the two above named aeronauts. Prof. Wise alone having made four hundred balloon ascensions, and Professor Donaldson having had a good experience almost as wide, concluded to take the matter in their own hands. They purpose to make a series of balloon ascensions in the city of New York, and charge a small admittance fee; when the proceeds shall be sufficient to build a balloon of sufficient size for their transatlantic voyage, it will be devoted to that purpose, and the two above named aeronauts will risk their lives and money in the enterprise. Active preparations are already made. New York is astonished that Boston should plead poverty as an excuse for not aiding an enterprise of this kind. They think if New York does the finance for the country as she chiefly does, Boston ought to do the science. The Boston New Yorkers are disgusted when the city pleads the "Great Fire" as an excuse for not advancing $3000. They say here it is "Picayunish." If there was any "steal" in testing this, New York admits it would be ab alive, but they will give $3000 on the throw of a die. Boston New Yorkers again say to their progressive lovers of science at the "Hub," have you forgotten that Halley, the English astronomer, discovered this upward eastern current? Do they forget that Humboldt, Pye Smith, Glass, all testify that on the peak Teneriffe the wind always blows eastward with great violence? Why Boston lets her prestige depart for a paltry $3000 her travelling sons fail to see. Here hope is high.

Some object that if the wind in the upper strata is always east, how can we get back from across the Atlantic? Your correspondent, being a scientist, replies and expresses an original idea unusual in a correspondent. You don't want to go back! If the theory is good, it is not only good "across the Atlantic," but round the earth. Ascending and lighting are now the only problems! If the theory of the force of this eastward current be true, the balloon which leaves Boston as a "lightning balloon" on the Fourth of July, will not only cross the Atlantic, but drop down in Boston, (having passed round the entire globe) on the Sixth of July, a trip of forty-eight hours, with mails from London and intermediate points. This is science; you don't want to go back. Always go ahead.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. Midsummer Malaria.

At this season the heat of the sun liberates from the soil, the water and the filth of cities immense quantities of unwholesome gases which the strongest can scarcely inhale with impunity, and which develope the most distressing diseases in the weak and feeble. It is, therefore, of paramount importance to invigorate the body in hot weather. Vitalize and strengthen the stomach and the nervous system with at least two doses per day of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and you will be sure to escape the fits of indigestion, attacks of bilious colic, sick headaches, diarrhœas and dysenteries which are so common at this season. Be prudent. A little care and forecast exercised now, may prevent your being prostrated by remittent and intermittent fever, or by chronic bowel or liver complaint throughout the fall. When vigor is oozing out of every pore under the rays of an almost vertical sun, this genial vegetable tonic supplies to the nervous system an aliment which enables it to withstand the drain.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ts6

Local Matters.

The Beaches, etc.

While reports from many popular watering-places are to the effect that summer travel is very late in starting, this season, the beach and island hotels in this vicinity are and for weeks have been better patronized than in previous years at so early a date. The large numbers already at the Shoals promise an even greater August crowd than ever before, notwithstanding the erection of the spacious Oceanic and the enlargement of the "Laighton Boys'" famous Appledore within the past year. The beautifully-situated Marshall House, at the mouth of York river, with its superior advantages for surf or smooth-water bathing, ocean and river boating, and fishing, has for some time had every room engaged, and York and Wells beach houses are unusually full for July. At Rye Beach "the season" commenced two weeks earlier than usual, much to the gratification of the landlords and boarding-house proprietors, who are always sure of as many patrons as they can accommodate, in August, but have frequently had more room to spare than they liked, in July. It was feared that the destruction by fire of the Ocean House, last Spring, would injure the summer business of the whole beach, but such does not seem to be the case; the other hotels and the numerous boarding houses are more hardly taxed than ever before. The spacious and commodious Sea-View Hotel, kept (and capitally kept) by Mr. George G. Lougee, is now we believe the largest hotel in Rye; and it receives the liberal patronage it merits. In a fine situation, close by the sea and with beautiful drives over good roads in all directions, it is not remarkable that it should be a favorite place of resort for those who are able and willing to pay a reasonable price for good accommodations. Mr. Lougee sets a good table (with good food on it) before his guests, has furnished his house with gas and everything else he could think of to increase its convenience and consequently its popularity, and is enjoying a goodly return for his outlay. Glad of it.

Fishing and boating excursions down and up the river, and picnic parties to the sea-shore and forests, are innumerable; and on Gerrish's Island, in Dow's woods and at many other places, the tents of campers out peep through the trees or stand unsheltered in bold defiance to sun and wind and weather. Sunday School classes are driven off in furniture wagons covered with canvass awnings, and feast on all sorts of indigestible cake among the pines; delicately nurtured ladies exchange cool parlors, snowy table-cloths and choice vands for poor provisions and poorer coffee, hot air, blazing sun, bugs, mosquitoes and misery, and try to believe they are having "a real good time;" and half-broiled laboring men in fields envy the jovial courters of discomfort as they drive past. Our desires are for ice-houses, Nova Zembla, Spitzbergen and the Falkland Islands, and we envy neither the workman who swelters in the field all day and then goes to a comfortable meal of wholesome food, nor the picnicer who parboils in perspiration beneath the trees and then half-starves on cake and pies. We prefer to do our hard labor by proxy and our picnicing in a rocking-chair in the back yard, though an afternoon drive to Rye Beach and a supper at Lougee's, or an evening trip to the Shoals by steamer, does not fret us much.

Den Stone's Circus.

The menagerie and circus of Den Stone appears here next Saturday. The Providence Journal says the street parade there consisted of a fine band chariot drawn by eight horses, followed by the immense elephant, Jennie Lind, and a dromedary, marching side by side, some twenty horse-back riders, and a lengthy cavalcade of animals, wagons, &c., the whole displaying unmistakably the great resources of the combination. There are many attractions in the exhibition, too numerous to enumerate, but in addition to the large zoological show we speak of the following; Mlle. Cordelia rides her fine horse Ellsworth without saddle, bridle or girth. During her act she leaps from the ground to the back of her horse while he is in full motion. She is one of the most graceful equestriennes of the age. Den Stone is favorably known throughout the country and numbers many friends in our own city. He is an able and successful manager. The Snow Brothers, acrobats and gymnasts, are great favorites, and Madame DeBerg, James E. Cook, William O. Dale, the two clowns Holland and Murray, contribute greatly to the entertainment, while the daring and dashing Indian rider, Mar-ke-sa, of the Iroquois tribe, excites great interest. The entertainments open at one and seven o'clock.

The Olefiant Gas Works

At the navy yard, put in by Messrs. Tiffany & Sons, are now under way, and the piping is so well advanced that the kerosene gear has been banished from the officers' quarters and the houses are now lighted with the gas. This gas has three important advantages over the common article manufactured from coal, viz.; first, it is much more easily made, any man of ordinary intelligence being able to master all the mysteries of the business in a half hour; second, it is much cheaper than coal gas; and last, but certainly not least, it gives a better light than coal-gas,—a light which, though much more powerful than that of the brilliant illuminating material served out by the Portsmouth Gas Co., is purer, softer and consequently far less trying to the eyes. That manufactories and large hotels will find it a paying investment to supply themselves with this superior gas is certain; and no doubt private individuals would find it to the interest of their pockets and their tempers to club together, put up small olefiant gas manufactories, and thus secure an excellent light and at the same time make it possible for them to scoff at the Gas Company's bill collector. This last consideration is not to be sneezed at, as any one who has ever paid a gas bill in this city will admit.

The Firemen's Excursion.

Messrs. Editors: — You have already chronicled the main incidents of the visit to Lawrence, Mass., of Sagamore S. F. Engine Co., No 2, of this city; but I hope your generosity is expansive enough to enable you to tolerate this supplementary report.

We carried with us the Dover Cornet Band, and were accompanied by Mayor T. E. O. Marvin, Ald. Garrett, Councilman Wm. Russell, Ex-Alderman Wm. W. Cotton, Chief Engineer Marston and Willis L. Hidden, Clerk to the Board of Engineers. We were received at Lawrence by Essex and Washington Engine Co's., Nos. 4 and 5, with Mayor Tarbox and the City Government and Board of Engineers of the city, and were escorted to the Essex engine house, where refreshments were liberally provided. Mayor Tarbox then took charge of the members of the governments of the two cities, and showed them the lions of the place; and after a reasonable time for resting and making acquaintance, the firemen resumed the line of march through the principal streets. At the residence of Chief-Engineer Brewster, of the Lawrence fire department, and at the engine-house of the Washingtons, abundant refreshments greeted the procession; and at 2 o'clock the entire party sat down to an excellent dinner at the Franklin House. After dinner Mayor Tarbox (in the chair) made a brief speech and was followed by Mayor Marvin, Capt. Merrill of the Lawrence American, Ex-Ald. Cotton of this city and Col. Sargent of Lawrence.

Later in the afternoon we visited the Hook and Ladder house, and vainly endeavored to do justice to another generous set-out of tasteful viands; but after a most agreeable half hour an alarm of fire informally dissolved the meeting, the Lawrence boys disappearing as if they had been fired from cannon. In the evening a grand complimentary ball was given, at which the Sagamores danced until 4 o'clock Friday morning; it was largely attended and finely managed, and was a most enjoyable feature of the visit.

Friday forenoon the Lawrence boys escorted their guests to Hagget's pond, on a chowder excursion, where another good time was secured; row-boats and swings were in constant use, and Cummings' Drum Corps serenaded the chowder-makers and eaters, and those who, having danced late, went to sleep beneath the shade trees. On returning to the city at half-past 3 o'clock we were received by the Tigers and escorted to their engine-house, where we found one more nice dinner to discuss, after which we took the cars for home, fairly wearied out with the excess of hospitality shown us by our hosts (the Essexes) and their brethren of the Lawrence fire department.

On arriving at the depot in this city we were received by Dearborn S. F. E. Co. No. 1, and escorted to their engine-house to partake of just one more liberal collation; and thus ended a trip which was a source of unalloyed pleasure to the Sagamores and their invited guests. For the generous heartiness of our welcome by the Lawrence firemen, and the innumerable courtesies shown us by the citizens and City Government, we have no words to adequately express our thanks; but we may be able to partially pay our debt "in kind," to a portion of those who so successfully endeavored to make our visit agreeable, before time shall have blotted out its memories.

SAGAMORE.

Laconics.

Now and then, in dog days, the "city" editor of a metropolitan journal will get things mixed. For example, a Monday's Boston daily says, under the head of "manufacturing" items: "The new Portsmouth Trust and Guarantee Company of Alstead, N. H., incorporated with a perpetual charter, in 1871, has a capital stock of $100,000, with deposits and surplus of $250,520." Perhaps the man intended to speak of the Trust and Guarantee Company of Portsmouth, which has, exclusive of surplus, over $300,000 in deposits, but is not a Manufacturing Company.

The two scoundrels, Fred Varney and George Henderson, of Farmington, who last Spring stole $250 from Capt. Chase of North Portsmouth, are now in Newport jail awaiting trial for burglary. The thieves had received shelter from Capt. Chase when "hard up," and repaid him as stated. They have been living by crime ever since, and it is to be hoped will get a full term in State prison.

In response to the call for a meeting of persons interested in the movement for erecting a monument on Odiorne's Point, about twenty gentlemen gathered in the Common Council chamber on Monday evening, and the meeting organized with Jas. P. Bartlett, Esq., in the chair, and Mr. Albert H. Sides as secretary. After some very interesting remarks a committee was appointed to take the subject into consideration and report at an adjourned meeting, as follows: Messrs. John Elwyn, Lory Odell, T. E. O. Marvin, Frank W. Hackett, James P. Bartlett and Frank W. Miller. The meeting was enthusiastic and promised well for the speedy erection of the long-neglected memorial.

The Sabbath School connected with the Methodist Church has its annual picnic at Hedding Camp Ground in Epping to morrow. Cars leave the Concord depot at 8 o'clock A. M., and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

Drowned.

Mr. John P. Hobbs, aged 18 years, only son of the late Thomas D. Hobbs of North Hampton, was drowned on Monday at Straw's Point, Rye Beach, while bathing. His body was recovered some hours after death. He was an estimable and promising young man, and his sudden death is a source of deep sorrow to a large circle of friends.

A Long Swim.

The Detroit (Mich.) Free Press contains this paragraph:

A negro, named Joe Long, claiming to be a deck hand on the propeller Arctic, reached here yesterday from Malden, claiming to have made one of the longest swims recorded in this country for some time. He asserts that he fell overboard Wednesday, while the Arctic was full two miles from Malden. His cries were unheard, and no one seems to have witnessed the accident. Long had on a pair of gaiters, and as soon as he saw it was to be sink or swim with him he kicked these off, and, turned on his back, began swimming for the shore, there fortunately being but little sea to interfere with him. He says that after swimming for about half a mile he found a piece of board about three feet long, and the float, frail as it was, aided him materially in completing the remainder of his voyage. He gave the name of the person who picked him up near the the beach, told the name of the physician who gave him some stimulant, and would be highly indignant if any one doubted the truth of the whole story.

The Healthfulness of Lemons.

When people feel the need of an acid, if they would let vinegar alone, and use lemons or apples, they would feel just as well satisfied and receive no injury. A suggestion may not come amiss as to a good plan when lemons are cheap in the market. A person should then purchase several dozen at once and prepare them for use in the warm, weak days of spring and summer when acids, especially citric and malic, or the acid of lemons, are so greatful and useful. Press your hand on the lemon and roll it back and forth briskly on the table to make it squeeze more easily; then press the juice into a bowl or tumbler—never into tin; strain out all the seeds, as they give a bad taste. Remove all the pulp from the peels, and boil in water—a pint for a dozen pulps—to extract the acid. A few minutes' boiling is enough; then strain the water with the juice of the lemons; put a pound of white sugar to a pint of the juice; boil ten minutes, bottle it, and your lemonade is ready. Put a tablespoonful or two of this lemon syrup in a glass of water, and you have a cool, healthful drink.

A Third Term.

[Rochester Democrat and Chron.]

The father of his country knew that the liberties of the people would have been safe in his own hands for four years more or for the rest of his life, but he was also aware that the spirit which grants and accepts executive power continuously is not the one which deserves to be cherished in a Democracy. Self denial and not selfishness needs cultivation in human nature. We think the people will hesitate long about offering any man—even one who has eaned so much consideration at their hands as General Grant—a third term, and he will be more scrupulous to accept than they to proffer.

Justice in Kentucky.

[Cynical exchange.]

A man in Scott county, Kentucky, has been tried three times for the same murder. First he was sentenced to five years imprisonment, next to two years, and the third time acquitted. The chances are that, if they had tried him again, they would have given him a three hundred and fifty dollar watch and chain.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of obtaining their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 660 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. eawjl

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, giving rise to many weaknesses of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

OCEAN'S STORY:

OR TRIUMPHS OF THREE CENTURIES: By E. B. Goodrich (son of "Peter Parley") and R. Howland. A work of great historical research recounting in truly graphic style the wonderful growth of navigation, and history of discovery since the flood; is replete with incidents, thrilling adventures, battles, shipwrecks, mutinies, piracies, &c. Describes how from the first they hark, when ocean was the dark realm of terrors, sails now whiten every sea, lightning flashes tidings from shore to shore; and men bring up wonders from deep waters, with many other matters of lively interest, which go to make up one of the most valuable, fascinating and remarkable productions of the age. Over 200 spirited illustrations. Agents Wanted. For circulars and terms address HUBBARD BROS., Pub'rs, Boston, Mass. ta18

Daily Chronicle.

Converting a Prodigal.

Little Johnny was a saving youth—one who from early infancy had cultivated a provident habit. When other little boys were wasting their substance in riotous gingerbread and molasses candy, investing in missionary enterprises which paid no dividends, subscribing to the Labrador Orphan Fund, and sending money out of the country generally, Johnny would be sticking money into the chimney-pot of a big tin house with "Bank" printed on it in red letters above an illusory door. Or he would put out odd pennies at appalling rates of interest, with his parents, and bank the income. He was never weary of dropping coppers into that insatiable chimney-pot and leaving them there. In this latter respect he differed notably from his elder brother, Charles; for although Charles was fond of banking, too, he was addicted to such frequent runs upon the institution with a hatchet, that it kept his parents honorably poor to purchase banks for him; so they were reluctantly compelled to discourage the depositing element in his panicky nature.

Johnny was not above work, either; to him "the dignity of labor" was not a juiceless platitude as it is to me, but a living, nourishing truth; as satisfying and wholesome as that two sides of a triangle are equal to one side of bacon. He would hold horses for gentlemen who desired to step into a bar-room to inquire for letters. He would pursue the fleeting pig at the behest of a drover. He would carry water to the lions of a traveling menagerie, or do anything for gain. He was sharp-witted, too; before conveying a drop of comfort to the parching king of beasts he would stipulate for sixpence in lieu of the usual free ticket—or "tasting-order," so to speak. He cared not a button for the show.

The first hard work Johnny did of a morning was to look all over the house for fugitive pins, needles, hair-pins, matches, and other unconsidered trifles, and if he sometimes found these where nobody had lost them, he made such reparation as was in his power by losing them again where nobody could find them. In the course of time when he had garnered a good many, he would "realize" and bank the proceeds.

Nor was he weakly superstitious, this Johnny. You could not fool him with the Santa Claus hoax on Christmas eve; he would lie awake all night, as skeptical as a priest; and along toward morning, getting quietly out of bed, would examine the pendant stockings of the other children who cried because they did not get anything, and when the parents affected surprise (as if they really believed in the venerable fiction,) Johnny was too manly to whimper; he would simply slip out of the back-door, and engage in traffic with affluent orphans; disposing of woolly horses, tin whistles, marbles, tops, dolls and sugar archangels, at a ruinous discount for cash. He continued these provident courses for nine long years, always banking his accretions with scrupulous care. Everybody predicted he would one day be a merchant prince, or a railway king; and some added he would sell his crown to the junk dealers.

His unthrifty brother, meanwhile, kept growing worse and worse. He was so careless of wealth,—so wastefully extravagant of lucre—that Johnny felt it his duty at times to clandestinely assume control of the fraternal finances, lest the habit of squandering should wreck the fraternal moral sense. It was plain that Charles had entered upon the broad road which leads from the cradle to the almshouse—and that he rather liked the travelling. So profuse was his prodigality that there were grave suspicions as to his method of acquiring what he so openly disbursed. But there was but one opinion as to the melancholy termination of his career—a termination which he seemed to regard as eminently desirable. But one day when the good pastor put it at him in so many words, Charlie gave token of some apprehension.

"Do you really think so, sir," said he, thoughtfully; "ain't you playin' it on me?"

"I assure you, Charles," said the good man, catching a ray of hope from the boy's dawning seriousness, "you will certainly end your days in the poor-house, unless you speedily abandon your course of extravagance. There is nothing like habit—nothing!"

Charlie may have thought that, considering his frequent and lavish contributions to the missionary fund, the parson was rather hard upon him; but he did not say so. He went away in mournful silence, and began pelting a blind beggar with coppers.

One day, when Johnny had been more than usually provident, and Charlie proportionately prodigal, their father, having exhausted moral suasion to no apparent purpose, determined to have recourse to a lower order of argument; he would try to win Charles to economy by an appeal to his grosser nature. So he convened the entire family, and—

"Johnny," said he, "do you think you have much money in your bank? You ought to have saved a considerable sum in nine years."

Johnny took the alarm in a minute; perhaps there was some bare-footed little girl to be endowed with Sunday school books.

"No," he answered, reflectively, "I don't think there can be much. There's been a good deal of cold weather this winter, and you know how metal shrinks! No-o-o, I'm sure there can't be only a little."

"Well, Johnny, you go up and bring down your bank. We'll see. Perhaps Charlie may be right, after all; and it's not worth while to save money. I don't want a son of mine to get into a bad habit unless it pays."

So Johnny traveled reluctantly up to the garret, and went to the corner where his big tin bank box had sat on a chest undisturbed for years. He had long fortified himself against temptation by vowing never to even shake it; for he remembered that formerly when Charlie used to shake it, and rattle the coins inside, he always ended by smashing in the roof. Johnny approached his bank, and taking hold of the cornice on either side, braced himself, gave a strong lift upwards and keeled over upon his back, with the edifice atop of him, like one of the figures in a picture of the great Lisbon earthquake! There was but a single coin in it! and that, by an ingenious device, was suspended in the centre, so that every piece popped in at the chimney would clink upon it in passing through Charlie's little hole into Charlie's little stocking hanging innocently beneath.

Of course restitution was out of the question; and even Johnny felt that any merely temporal punishment would be weakly inadequate to the demands of justice. But that night, in the dead silence of his chamber, Johnny registered a great and solemn swear, that so soon as he could worry together a little capital, he would fling his feeble remaining energies into the spendthrift business. And he did so.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 30, 1873.

Tornado in Maine.

The gale in Penobscot county, Me., on Saturday, which demolished a portion of the bridge of the European and North American Railway at Oldtown, resulting in the precipitation of a locomotive and five men into the river, was the severest tornado that has visited that region for years. The full force of the tornado appears to have been concentrated at Oldtown. Besides the disaster to the bridge, a good deal of damage was done to buildings and fences. In Bangor and the adjacent towns barns were blown down and unroofed, and large trees were torn up by the roots. Concerning the destruction of the bridge and the terrible accident to the locomotive crossing it, the papers give the following details:—

"Engine No. 7 of the European and North American Railroad, in charge of engineer George A. McClellan and fireman, and with three other men on board, started from Oldtown at about five minutes before 7 to cross over to Milford for wood and water. While crossing the short trestle work on the Oldtown side McClellan remarked that owing to the darkness they must run slowly to avoid accident, and almost immediately the forward part of the engine was seen to settle. McClellan at once reversed the engine and put on a full head of steam, but it was too late, and the engine, tender and five men were plunged into the river, the two entire covered spans of the bridge, some three hundred feet in length, having been blown completely away before the engine had reached it. Of the five men who went down with the engine all escaped but McClellan, who died at his post. The others sprang back into the tender, which with the engine fell in some twenty feet of water, and were washed out and swam to places of safety. Incredible as it may seem, not one of them had a bone broken, though all were more or less bruised. McClellan's body was recovered on Sunday by divers about fifty feet from the engine, in the exact position in which he stood when reversing his engine. He was one of the best engineers upon the road, where he had been since its opening, and formerly ran on the Oldtown and Milford roads. He leaves a wife and three children."

Female Bravery.

[Williamsport, (Pa.) Gazette.]

A correspondent says that on the 17th inst., a party of young women went out from Queen's Run to the mountain just back of the settlement, to gather huckleberries. One of them Jerusha Bryan, advanced a little further into the woods than the others, when she was attacked by a huge panther. Her companions, hearing the brute scream, sought safety in flight, but Miss Bryan, finding escape impossible, determined to stand her ground, and seizing a huge pine knot gave her enemy battle. The contest was a close one for a few minutes, but human courage, judgment and coolness soon triumphed over brute strength, and the heroic woman had the satisfaction of laying the blood-thirsty monster dead at her feet. Her garments were torn in shreds, and her face and arms were badly scratched, but she walked home with a firm step and the light of triumph in her eye, and gave a good account of herself. The dead panther was soon afterwards found by the people of Queen's Run, and proved, on measurement, to be six feet ten inches long. Miss Bryan is the lion (or lioness) of the neighborhood, as she well deserves to be.

Church Sold to the Catholics.

The church on Court street, Newburyport, Rev. D. D. Pike, pastor, and which has always been occupied by the Christian Baptist Society, was on Friday deeded to the Roman Catholics. The price paid for the church, land and furniture, exclusive of the organ, was seventy-two hundred dollars. The deed was given by Elder Pike to Bishop Williams. Thus in a moment has become scattered the church and society which Mr. Pike has for twenty-five years labored with, and which has seen great periods of numerical prosperity, at one time over one hundred persons being baptized by him. It is uncertain what becomes of the society, the Catholics having taken possession.

Readables.

"Fourteen years for stealing a horse, and five years for killing a man, is the schedule of penalties in Texas." This looks a little curious at the first blush, but you must remember that, while a horse will cost you a hundred dollars in Texas, you can buy a man—a member of the Legislature, for instance—for one-third of the amount.

Miss Ida Greeley has turned authoress. Her translation of a French novel, "The White Blackbird," is announced for early publication, and a contract has been made between her and a well-known newspaper by the terms of which she is to furnish an original novel before the end of the year.

The entire loss by the Baltimore fire will not exceed $1,000,000, and some think it will be below $500,000. The insurance in the burnt district is estimated at $200,000.

The Internal Revenue receipts, Saturday, were $230,817, and for the month $7,536,280.

The affairs of the Brooklyn Trust Company are not as bad as was thought. There is an excess of assets over liabilities of $105,524.49. The only over-drafts are those made by Mr. Mills of $147,000, and $34,806 made by Mr. Rodman. For the latter the bank held collateral, from which the entire amount will be realized. The company will resume operations.

W. S. Groesbeck has written a letter declining to accept any nomination for Governor of Ohio. He believes that the Democratic party has gone up. The blunderings and defeats of the past ten years have killed it. He urges the formation of a new party, composed of all those opposed to the present administration, to be called the Liberal Democratic party.

The usual Saturday night murder took place in New York. This time the victim was a poor woman, who was killed by her husband, who was arrested.

Women at Harvard.

[Chelsea Public.]

The action of the Overseers of Harvard College, by which annual examinations of women will be held hereafter, as is now done at the University of Cambridge, in England, is a long step forward in the attainment of Woman's Rights, and a step in the right direction. It will accomplish more of practical benefit to women than years of stump-speaking, crimination and recrimination, and the political twaddle of male and female demagogues have been able to effect. While, if we understand the matter rightly, this action does not admit women to study in the University side by side with the male students, it amounts to the same in the end, since, if they are competent to pass the examinations, they will go out into the world armed with the diplomas of this venerable seat of learning, and indorsed by it as competent to teach or follow other professional pursuits, in the same manner as the regularly graduated students. For all practical purposes, they stand upon the same level with them. They have secured the same privilege, only in a different way. Such a result as this has a direct practical influence upon the condition of women, and will elevate her to a position where she may attain still higher honors, and help to lift the sex from that low plane where her advocates insist that she is persistently kept by the tyrannic disposition of man. There is no bar to this result except her own inefficiency.

The new scheme which the Overseers of Harvard have adopted, at the suggestion of the corporation, is substantially the same as that which has been adopted by the English University of Cambridge after a three years trial. There are two classes of candidates for these annual examinations,—those under 18 and those above that age. Those who pass the examination in a thoroughly satisfactory manner will be awarded certificates of honor, and those who pass in a creditable way will be awarded certificates of credit. These certificates are tantamount to the diploma which the male student receives upon graduation, and they bear witness to the fact that the possessor is qualified to fill the post of teacher or such other positions as the new educational standard qualifies her to fill. An association of Boston ladies has agreed to bear the incidental expenses after the manner in which the English experiment has been carried out.

Complaints of the disability now to be removed have been in some quarters loud and urgent, and the fruits of the concession made at the principal American university will be waited for with lively interest. Whether our fair young students will be disposed to submitto the loftier and severer tests of scholarship, by which they will henceforth have the privilege of measuring their attainments, and to what extent they will show that disposition, are questions that of course remain to be tested. For our own part, we have not the least doubt that the results will be what Americans may be proud of; and we believe that other collegiate institutions of repute in various parts of the country will follow an example likely to be productive of so much good. The fact that the authorities at Cambridge thought proper to wait until they could judge of the results of similar experiments made at their sister city in England, speaks well for their prudence. Our readers may recall that, begun in 1868, the system of examination as extended to women at the English University, was only made permanent after three years' trial. As soon thereafter as practicable, the system is now to be adopted at Harvard. Nor need we be ashamed of coming second in the innovation, when, in so many cognate ones, we have been an easy first. Moreover, if the American University will have flourished for two hundred and thirty-seven years, while extending its privileges to men alone, we must not forget that the venerable seat of learning on the banks of the Cam beats us in tenure of exclusiveness by as long a space as divides the time of John Harvard from that of Seigebert, King of the East Angles.

Shingle Counting.

[Danbury News.]

There are men who dispute what they do not understand. Mr. Coville is such a man. When he heard a carpenter say that there were so many shingles on the roof of his house because the roof contained so many square feet, Coville doubted the figures, and when the carpenter went away he determined to test the matter by going upon the roof and counting them. And he went up there. He squeezed through the scuttle—Coville weighs 230—and then sat down on the roof and worked his way carefully and deliberately toward the gutter. When he got part way down, he heard a sound between him and the shingles, and became aware that there was an interference, some way, in his further locomotion. He tried to turn over and crawl back, but the obstruction held him. Then he tried to move along a little, in hopes that the trouble would prove but temporary, but an increased sound convinced him that either a nail or a sliver had hold of the cloth, and that if he would save any of it he must use caution. His folks were in the house, but he could not make them hear, and, besides, he didn't want to attract the attention of the neighbors. So he sat there until after dark and thought. It would have been an excellent opportunity to have counted the shingles, but he neglected to use it. His mind appeared to run into other channels. He sat there an hour after dark, seeing no one he could notify of his position. Then he saw two boys approach the gate from the house, and reaching there, stop. It was light enough for him to see that one of the two was his son, and although he objected to having the other boy knowing of his misfortune, yet he had grown tired of holding on to the roof, and concluded he could bribe the strange boy into silence. With this arrangement mapped out, he took out his knife, and threw it so that it would strike near to the boys and attract their attention. It struck nearer than he anticipated. In fact it struck so close as to hit the strange boy on the head, and nearly brain him. As soon as he recovered his equilibrium, he turned on Coville's boy who, he was confident, had attempted to kill him, and introduced some astonishment and bruises on his face. Then he threw him down, and kicked him in the side and banged him on the head, and threw him over into the gutter, and pounded his legs, and then hauled him back to the walk again and knocked his head against the gate. And all the while the elder Coville sat on the roof, and screamed for the police, but couldn't get away. And then Mrs. Coville dashed out with a broom, and contributed a few novel features to the affair at the gate, and one of the boarders dashed out with a double-barrel gun, and bearing the cries from the roof, looked up there and espying a figure which was undoubtedly a burglar, drove a handful of shot into its legs. With a howl of agony Coville made a plunge to dodge the missiles, freed himself from the nail, lost his hold to the roof and went sailing down the shingles with awful velocity, both legs spread out, his hair on end, and his hands making desperate but fruitless efforts to save himself. He tried to swear, but was so frightened that he lost his power of speech, and when he passed over the edge of the roof, with twenty feet of tin gutter hitched to him, the boarder gave him the contents of the other barrel, and then drove into the house to load up again. The unfortunate Coville struck into a cherry tree, and then bounded to the ground, where he was recognized, picked up by the assembled neighbors and carried into the house. A new Doctor is making good day wages picking the shot out of his legs. The boarder has gone into the country to spend the summer, and the junior Coville, having sequestered a piece of brick in his handkerchief, is lying low for that other boy. He says that before the calm of another Sabbath rests on New England there will be another boy in Danbury who can't wear a cap.

A Woman's Write.

Some editor who has been victimized writes as follows:

"We shall never engage another woman to report gentlemen's fashions for this paper. We might have known that she would ignominiously fail; but she said gentlemen reported ladies' fashions, and she couldn't see why a woman shouldn't write up the masculine modes. We couldn't see, either, so we gave her a carte-blanche to go ahead. And such a fashion article! Here is a specimen of the ridiculous stuff: "A recherche spring overcoat for promenade has pretty ribbed stripes, with three ruffles on the tails, festooned with tassels, single breasted collar and rolling flaps on the pocket. A lovely dress coat has three buttons and pockets in the rear, box-pleated on the hips, three-ply guipure lace on the extreme narrative, gored in a bunch and cut bouffant. Vest button up in front, same as last year, and have pockets, with imperial polonaise up the back, and oxydized buttons in double rows on the collar, with tab fronts. The shirt is cut tight at the knee, and open in front or rear, as may be preferred, with percale bosom, trimmed passementerie—four rows of Magenta braid around the skirt, with hood at back, bound with galloon to match. Much depends on the pantaloons. A gentleman's dress is very incomplete without trousers. These are of some subdued color, as London smoke, and should harmonize with—the—the neck fichu. They are cut bias in both legs, with deep frills to fall over the instep. The waist is garnished with a broad band of batiste, corn facings, and buttons to match; the—." But that is enough. Any one but a Sandwich Islander will see at a glance that these fashions are frightfully mixed. Who ever heard of trousers being cut bias in the legs, deep frills falling over the instep, with a broad band of batiste—whatever that may be—and corn facings, and things? Rather than wear pantaloons built that way, we would go without, and encase our limbs in two sections of stovepipe."

—The New York Evening Post says that the appointment of either Senator Conkling or Senator Howe to the vacant seat of Chief Justice cannot be done, since section six of the constitution provides that "no senator or representative shall, during the time for which he is elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments thereof increased during such time." The salary of the Chief Justice having been increased by the last Congress, it is evident that any talk of the appointment of either of these gentlemen is idle.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS. 889

The Testimony of Travelers.

All travelers who have tested the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as an acclimating preparation and as a means of avoiding the painful and dangerous disorders of the bowels and the liver, which accrue from a change of water or unwholesome vapors, refer to it with enthusiasm as an unequalled preventive medicine. Whenever the atmospheric conditions are unfavorable to health and the water impure, this powerful tonic is indispensable alike to the settler and the transient sojourner. There was a time when raw brandy or whiskey was almost universally used to quality the waters of the western rivers, and the wells, &c., of the low-lying districts of the south. Now, the liquors of commerce have been generally discarded by travelers and residents in these regions, and Hostetter's Bitters substituted in their stead. At this season when the sun is near the zenith and the heat oppressive, two or three doses of the Bitters will have a salutary effect on the appetite, the digestion and the spirits.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 886

Church Troubles.

The Catholic churchmen in this city have been in a peck of trouble for a long while over a collision of authority, in which Canon Walsh has shown his intention of exercising control. Two masses are held on Sundays, the first being free, but the second free only to pew-holders and those who contributed to building the church. All others are admitted at 25 cents per caput, and many there are who deem the charge extortionate. Last Sunday, Edward Flynn was prevented from entering the church by one of the sextons, Patrick Morrison, who had orders from the Canon not to admit him unless he paid 25 cents. Flynn swore out a warrant for assault and Judge Bufford dismissed the case. A few weeks ago, John E. Hennessey prosecuted the same sexton for forcibly preventing his entrance to the church, and Judge Page fined Morrison $10 and costs, the latter appealing. Canon Walsh has a difficult task to please all parties in the church, but being a man of great energy and will has thus far more than held his own in the struggle for mastery. The publicity given the quarrel increases the interest and now the S. J. Court may have an opportunity to give its opinion in the matter of religious litigation.

A fine new cattle barn has been erected on the farm of Charles Hayes & Son, replacing that burned three months ago.

Heroism at Wolfeboro.

[Concord Monitor.]

On Tuesday, July 22d, two boys about 12 years of age, sojourning with their parents at the Pavilion Hotel in Wolfeboro, took a row boat and went out upon the back bay. The boat was old and rotten, with several holes in the bottom which had been stopped up with rags. Not comprehending the use of these rags, and when about forty rods from the shore, the boys pulled them out, in order, as they subsequently declared, that the boat might present a more respectable appearance. The boat filled with water almost immediately, leaving the venturesome lads clinging to its sides. At this perilous moment, a lady walking by the shore discovered their situation, and started at once to procure aid. In a neighboring field, hid from the scene of the accident by a knoll, was a young man named George Gridley engaged in mowing. The lady at once shouted for Gridley, who dropping his scythe, ran to the shore, threw off his boots, and without waiting to remove more of his clothing, plunged in the surf. Meantime, one of the boys had lost his hold upon the boat, and was sinking for the last time, as Gridley reached the spot. His companion who was clinging still to the boat, with rare presence of mind, shouted to the drowning lad, as he was disappearing beneath the waves, "Throw up your hands, Georgie." He did so, and Gridley, by a quick movement, drew the lad's head above water, and then, after charging the boy clinging to the boat to hold on for dear life, seized it and swam with both to the shore, where the nearly drowned lad was soon fully restored. Only the remarkable promptitude, fearlessness and swimming powers of Gridley saved the life of at least one of the boys.

A Michigan Lumberman.

A paragraph in a recent Michigan paper has elicited from the Pontiac Gazette the following respecting the landed wealth of a citizen of that State:

Dr. David Ward's great wealth rests in his immense amount of cork pine lands in Michigan and Wisconsin, amounting to over 150,000 acres, every forty acres of which he has been over himself, making a careful estimate of the number and dimensions of the trees, and noting all the characteristics of soil. His land was nearly all selected from close observation years before most people had an idea of their ultimate value, and the very best taken; location upon streams and facilities for running the timber to market were carefully considered, so that to-day he owns the finest tracts of really available and valuable cork pine in the United States, and the most of it. His pine lands may be summarized as follows: On the Saginaw, 30,000 acres; on the Manistee and Au Sable, 90,000 acres; on the Chippewa, in Wisconsin, 30,000 acres. Total, 150,000 acres. In addition he owns 20,000 acres of the very best hard-wood timbered lands for farming in the central and northern part of the State, besides all his valuable property in Oakland County, and 13,000,000 feet of logs afloat. Placing the same valuation upon his pine lands alone, as other persons are selling detached tracts in the vicinity of his, and it aggregates the sum of $6,500,000, and we may here say that that amount of greenbacks stacked up would not obtain the deeds of his pine property alone. The difference in pine lands is very great, as between cork and other qualities, and acre by acre the cork nets more than three times as much as any other variety.

A Potato Bug-Story.

[Pittsburg Leader.]

A sad case has just come to light in Braddock's fields. A man residing here, who had a small field within the Fields, found himself and his little family surrounded by potato-bugs, with stripes up and down, and some of them crosswise. He tried all kinds of remedies, but the bugs snorted at him in scorn and made hostile demonstrations. He was advised to try the tobacco cure. He did try it. He bought a paper of fine-cut and commenced to chew it. It was his first effort at chewing. He went out and got a basketful of bugs and squirted the tobacco juice in their eyes, and they snapped their tails and pawed around as if they were awful mad. He got away with about half the paper of fine-cut when he commenced to grow white about the gills. He laid the basket that had the bugs in it down, and put his hand up to his forehead and found a cold sweat standing upon his brow. He said to his wife: "My dear, I am pained to announce that I have the cholera. Fly, if you would save yourself. Leave me to my fate, and seek safety in flight." And then he got so sick he couldn't contain himself or anything. His wife rushed away down to the Fields, and in a few moments had the whole borough in a fit about the cholera. He recovered, but says he don't believe in exterminating potato-bugs by tobacco juice.

Still So Gently.

The Madison Courier tells this of a revenue officer who was sent into the illicit whisky-distilling district in Kentucky. He knew illicit distilling was going on, but he could get no basis to work from. Coming to an Irishman who was tolerably drunk, the officer tapped him on the shoulder, and said, "My man, do you want to make ten dollars?" "Is it ten dollars?" said Pat; "sure and I do." "Then," said the officer, "show me a 'private still.'" "I'll do the same; follow me yer Honor." The officer followed across lots and fields to the camp of a company of soldiers that had been sent there to aid the revenue officers. The soldiers were in line—dress parade. "Do you see that red-headed man?" asked Pat, pointing to one of the soldiers. "Yes," replied the officer. "He is," said Pat, "my brother. He's been in the service twelve years. He'll be a corporal after a while, but he is 'a private still.'" "Ten dollars gone, and no illicit whisky found," moralized the officer as he wended his way back to his hotel.

Caleb Cushing's Dog Suit.

The Hon. Caleb Cushing has addressed a letter to the Germantown Chronicle concerning his famous dog case, in which he says:—

"I believe that all the newspapers chronicle my dog fight. I have thus of a sudden become famous, pretty much as Alcibiades did by cutting off his dog's tail to the astonishment of all Athens. I plead guilty to barking at Sir Alexander Cockburn; but I have done this in self-defence, and, as it seems to me, with great moderation, seeing that Sir Alexander began by barking at me through 130 pages of close printed large octavo, while I barked at him through only 25 pages of large type leaded, these pages not half the size of the others. You see that I have been temperate. In justice to Mr. Fernando Wood, also, I desire to say that the dog did not belong to him, but to his tenant-at-will, Thos. Kelley, and that being written to on the subject, Mr. Wood gave me full permission to act in my discretion against both Kelley and his dog."

Water Boilers Upon Stoves.

[Boston Journal of Chemistry.]

A brass or copper vessel tinned upon the inside, and holding several gallons, is usually found connected with cooking stoves used in families. As this vessel is kept full of hot water, which is used for ordinary culinary purposes, it is important that no deleterious agent connected with the metal should be employed in its construction. A recent analysis has been made of a specimen of tinned brass plate used for making these boilers, and it was found that the tin contained 26 per cent. of lead. How far this may serve to cause injury it is impossible to say. It is certain, however, that lead is an objectionable metal to be brought in contact with culinary utensils, and hence its use must be condemned. An iron boiler lined with porcelain would be much safer, and perhaps not more costly. We understand such a vessel is constructed, and if so, it would certainly be a much safer one to employ as a reservoir of hot water for constant household use.

The grand Duke Alexis has almost concluded his trip around the world; he was expected to reach Katharinburg, Siberia, on the 10th inst.

The Prize Package Boy's Dream.

One of the most alarming cases of somnambulism with which we are familiar is that of the prize package boy who operates on the Norristown Railroad in this city. By some extraordinary combination of circumstances, this child of sin was induced to go to church a few Sundays ago, and while listening to the sermon he fell asleep in the back pew where he sat. There had been a Sunday school meeting there before church, and all the Bibles and missionary newspapers were piled up in that particular pew. Suddenly this remorseless young orphan picked up a bundle of the papers in his sleep and began to walk up the aisle, throwing one into each pew as he went along. When he got under the lee of the pulpit he stopped waited two or three minutes. The minister looked cross-eyed at him and glared at him through his spectacles, but the young brigand was unconscious. Then he glided down the aisle and amazed the congregation by removing the papers from each pew. When he reached the rear he seized an armful of Bibles and rambled up the aisle again, tossing them at the occupants of the pews.

Resting again under the pulpit, and wholly indifferent to the circumstance that the clergyman's eyes were out of their natural straight position, and were making his spectacles look like a double-barreled locomotive headlight, the infant brigand pranced down the aisle the second time yelling, "Here's yer prize package, only ten cents; each one contains a prize worth from ten cents to ten dollars!" and grabbing for the Bibles as he proceeded. The minister waved his hand at one of the deacons; the deacon and the sexton charged on that boy, and the organist tells us the three scudded down that thoroughfare at the rate of fifteen knots an hour, while the sexton shook the boy up, and the deacon boxed his ears, and wished it was not wicked to swear. Then they took him up into the steeple and killed him. We are not certain that they killed him, but we think they did, of course, for that is the only way in which he could be kept quiet. We would have butchered him long ago if we could only have gotten him alone in a steeple somewhere.—Max. Adeler, in Saturday Evening Post.

Cure for Bites of Snakes and Dogs.

I see in your paper of June 27 an article on hydrophobia. I thought I would send you an article, which you can publish if you please.

I came to Galesburg in 1837. Soon after my arrival I found there were many rattlesnakes to contend with. We used to kill from twenty to thirty every year.

Soon after this I found two colts bitten on their noses. Their heads and necks were swollen back to their shoulders, so that they could not suck. I thought I would try spirits of turpentine; I bathed and rubbed their heads and necks with my bare hands three times thoroughly between 6 o'clock in the evening and midnight; in the morning the swelling was entirely gone.

Since that time I have had several valuable cows bitten, and all I did was to bathe them thoroughly with spirits of turpentine, which proved a perfect remedy. The milk, which is very poisonous for several days, I throw into a vault, so that nothing can get at it.

When a person gets bit by a mad dog, spirits of turpentine is a sure remedy, though the person that is bit should take a few drops of turpentine in some brown sugar several days.—Cor. of Chicago Tribune.

Pleasuring.

[Golden Age.]

After all, the great benefit of this annual exodus of our people is the change it gives. We need change of scene, companions, pursuits, food and air once a year at the least for health and elasticity of body; and it is needed still more for our overworked and anxious people for intellectual and moral relaxation. They require an occasional breaking up of the regular routine of care and labor, and going away for different spectacles and excitements, where new objects will arrest the attention, new fashions will fix the eye; new companions will suggest new thoughts, and a bouquet of fresh and varied experiences will be gathered up to make the rest of the year sweeter and happier by the recollection. It is not so much going into the country as going somewhere, anywhere to break up the wearing and wearying monotony of existence.

—Really these Western newspapers are cruel. The way they lacerate the feelings of back-pay congressmen is enough to draw tears from a crocodile. Witness this exhibition of mingled gratitude and heartlessness in the Clarksburg (Mo.) Sentinel: "We have recently been placed under obligations to the Hon. Andrew King, our ex-congressman, for public documents. We should feel under renewed obligations if he would redeem the honor of his district by returning the back pay he both voted for and drew.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

! TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. EDMUND BURKE, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy, and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

A "Mystery."

The Springfield Union has a genuine and enterprising sensation. As the papers have hinted for some weeks, there is a "medium" over in Brattleboro', Vt., who is "finishing" Dickens' story, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood." A reporter of the Union has visited Brattleboro', hunted up the medium, and furnished an eight-column account of his interview. In a "small room of a small house, in a retired part of the village," he found the medium, a "good looking man of average height, with dark hair and moustache, a round face, fair and sometimes florid complexion, restless eyes of nameless hue, as of one looking at something and not seeing it, and not far from thirty years of age." He is a native of Boston, an uneducated mechanic, who knows nothing about spiritualism, and don't care whether it stands or falls.

At a seance, in October last, Mr. A., the medium, wrote a message addressed to himself, requesting a sitting on the 15th of November, and signed in a plain, bold hand, Charles Dickens. At first the medium was reluctant to give himself up to the strange task set before him, but he gradually warmed in the work, and has now campleted upwards of twelve hundred pages of manuscript, enough to make some four hundred pages of an ordinary octavo volume. Only two chapters remain to complete the work. The handwriting is not the medium's, but is said to resemble Mr. Dickens', so far as there has been opportunity for comparison. The medium writes morning and evening, laboring at his trade during the day. The sittings go on for half an hour or an hour, and the only remembrance which the medium has of these trance periods is that of "seeing Dickens sitting beside him, usually with one hand held in a meditative manner at the side of his face—a sad, grave face." He utters no word, but sometimes looks appealingly toward Mr. A., 'and oh, such eyes!' All this, however, the medium remembers as one remembers a dream when just awaking. The sign by which Mr. Dickens indicates that the sitting is at an end is the placing of his hand on the medium's, and the first time that Mr. A. felt this pressure, seemingly as cold and heavy as that of the hand of death itself, he screamed with fright, and he can hardly think of that awful chilling sensation at any time, even now, without a shudder."

In the matter of publication, the medium has been instructed in all particulars, even to the selection of the English house. In the first volume there are twenty-three chapters, and in the present one there will be twenty. The captions of the new chapters are given in full by the Union, and among them are the following, which are certainly in Dickens' happiest vein:

Chapter I—What the Organ said.

Chapter II—A Light Breaks on Staple Inn.

Chapter X—Introduces Joe Sluggers, and Relates how Jasper Visits the Puffer's House, and what Occurs There.

Chapter XIV—John Jasper's Nerves Receive a Shock, and Mr. Sapson's Dignity Receives Another.

Chapter XVII—Bessie Bids Good Bye to the Thorns and goes to Join the Lillies.

Chapter XVII—While the Dawn Appears to Others, Jasper's Night Comes on.

Of the literary character of the work, the Union reporter says:

"I find through all these chapters an extremely interesting development of the plot which was but partially laid in the first volume. Characters and incidents, whose pertinacy does not appear there, and who, as one reads the first volume and then stops, seem to have no part in forwarding the story towards its denouement, are proved in this manuscript to have been introduced with deliberate purpose. At the same time the new personages fill perfectly the places assigned them, and likewise 'prove their usefulness.' Several passages in the second volume are more powerfully dramatic than any to be found in the first, as for instance, Jasper's second midnight excursion with Durdies (chapter seven) in the crypt of the old cathedral."

The work has not yet been revised, but the medium, who attempted it himself, was cut short by a message from Mr. Dickens that he would make the revision. Copious extracts are given by the Union, which all admirers of Dickens will be compelled to confess are not unworthy of his pen. We have space but for a single extract, touching Mr. Peckcraft of the firm of Drood & Peckcraft, abd his housekeeper, Miss Keep:

"Mr. Peckcraft, like a great many other gentlemen who live bachelors, was very particular to rise at 5 o'clock the year round, and prided himself very much on his ability to follow this rule. His lodgings were in Silver square, and he had occupied them for many years, partly on account of his strong dislike to a change of whatever he had been accustomed to, and partly because the lady with whom he lived was a person who, like him, did not believe in the 'Rolling Stone' business. This lady was known as Miss Keep, and a very precise and prim maiden lady she was indeed.

If Miss Keep should be aroused at any time of the night, and should be asked where the dust-brush was to be found, she would tell you to step into the basement, and behind the door you would see a row of hooks, and on the third hook from the door you would find the brush. No matter what the article, there was a place for it, and it could always be found there, night or day, when not in use.

As we were saying, Mr. Peckcraft arose the year round at five o'clock, and in the recollection of Miss Keep he had never deviated from that habit except on one occasion. He had been suffering the night before with a violent toothache, and had resource to laudanum to quiet the brain. The pain was quieted, and so was Mr. Peckcraft, for he did not waken the next morning till nearly an hour after his usual time, and when, on referring to his watch, he found that such was the case, he very deliberately put himself back into bed again, and remained there until five o'clock the next morning, thereby nearly frightening Miss Keep out of her seven senses until he had explained the cause to her through the key-hole, just as the two servants were on the point of bursting in his door by command of their mistress.

Miss Keep is rather tall and very slim. She has what was probably intended for a blue eye, but the blueing material must have got very low, and the consequence is that we cannot better describe its color than by saying it was milky blue. She wears her hair pressed tight to her temples in the form of a half circle, and an artist with his brush could not carry the curve with a more perfect line. Her chin protrudes to about the same angle with her nose. Add to all this a maiden lady with a great love for poetry, and you behold Miss Keep as she is to-day."

The Union's reporter, who evidently "came to scoff but remained to pray," concludes his long and interesting narrative with the following observations:

"I came to Brattleboro' expecting to find this decidedly posthumous work a bubble which could be easily blown away. After two days' careful and somewhat critical examination, I go away, I confess, a good deal puzzled. I reject in the first place as an impossibility—as every one would do after thoroughly investigating the matter—the theory that this manuscript was written by the young man, Mr. A. He says he has never read the first volume, and I care not whether he has or not, being fully convinced that he is not capable of writing so much as one page of the second volume. This of course is no disparagement; for how many men are capable of doing what Dickens left undone? I am driven, then, to accept one of the two conclusions: Either some man of genius is using this individual as a go-between, in order to place an extraordinary work before the public in an extraordinary way, or the book is, as it professes to be, dictated by Dickens himself from the other world. The one supposition is scarcely more astounding than the other. If there is in Vermont a man, heretofore unheard of, who is able to write as Dickens wrote, he has surely no cause to resort to any such device as this. If on the other hand, Charles Dickens himself, 'though dead, yet speaketh,' what shall we next expect? It is but fair to say that, with the fullest opportunity for investigation, I found not the least evidence on any hand of fraud, while the name of the 'amanuensis,' were I allowed to give it, would dispel any suggestion of that kind from the mind of every citizen of this place who knows him.

Whatever may be the true state of the case, the critics are to have more than one opportunity to judge. This, if promises are fulfilled, is to be but the beginning, as the invisible Dickens (who long ago forbade the use of the medium by any spirit except himself,) has notified him that he shall require his entire time, and has even given the title of a new story to be begun as soon as the one now on hand is completed, that title being 'The Life and Adventures of Bockley Nickleheep."

Horse Rakes and Politics.

To any one who unhappily worked on a farm thirty years ago, with the clumsy and inconvenient tools then in use, the vast improvement in labor saving farm implements is little less astonishing than the increased facilities men now enjoy for communicating with or killing each other, for there is scarcely more difference between an ancient post-boy and the modern telegraph, or between the old "Queen's arm" and the modern Springfield rifle, than between the old and new styles of tools for farmers' use. A day's work with an old-fashioned rake or scythe, or shovel, would now be regarded as a fearful thing by the average farm laborer,—and we always did regard it as a fearful thing, for we once worked on a farm, though we never will again so long as we can earn an honest if frugal livelihood by peddling clams from a wheelbarrow or picking huckleberries by the quart for the market. Some people might infer that we have a prejudice against farming; but this is not so, for theoretically we love and admire that occupation, though practically perhaps we don't. Theoretically, we are fond of "picking rocks," building stump fence on wet days, hoeing corn or mowing on hot days, and of getting up in the middle of the night, calling it morning and going to work, every day in the year; practically, we despise stump fence, hate hoeing and mowing, and cordially abominate getting up in the morning, no matter what the hour may be. We freely admit the nobility and importance of the farmer's calling, and the independence and happiness which is his, but we don't hanker after independence and happiness on those terms. We are not alone in the conflict of theory and practice; a bank official in a neighboring State not long ago labored earnestly with sinners at the Sunday evening prayer meeting, and then scooted with all the funds he could claw hold of before Monday morning; his theory was good, but his practice wasn't. The recently deceased Mr. Walworth wrote some very feeble, milk and water novels, in which the only marked traits of the heroes was their chivalrous gallantry to women; but he filled up his spare time by writing to his wife such brutally abusive letters as would have disgusted a drunken madman. And we have also noticed, at different periods of our existence, that "A Life on the Ocean Wave," (a ditty which is popularly but erroneously supposed to be a favorite song with sailors,) is never sung with proper spirit except by a farm hand; and that no one can equal an old sailor in the fervency with which he sings

"For to plough, for to mow,
For to reap, for to sow,
For to be a farmer's boy—or—oy,
For to be a farmer's boy."

We have a vivid recollection of the way in which we obviated the necessity for scarecrows on the farm on which we toiled, by singing "A Life on the Ocean Wave" every half-hour; and we remember well that in later years, when experience had taught us that the romance of a sailor's life consisted mainly of salt horse and weevily hard tack, gelatinous water, tar, gales of wind and—worse yet—dead calms, we would fain have roared forth the pleasures of being a farmer's boy, but were prevented by conscience, for, having experienced the pleasures of being a farmer's boy, we knew that said pleasures were a rank humbug.

Possibly the farmer of to-day may enjoy life, but one of thirty years ago couldn't. Then he would get up at 4 o'clock in the morning and commence to mow, and by 10 o'clock he would be played out, and would have cut over but a small piece of land, besides; now he seats himself comfortably upon a mowing machine, drives a horse (or two horses) around for a couple of hours, and dismounts after cutting acres of grass without having "turned a hair" with sweat. Then he drives another machine briskly over the new-mown grass, and spreads it, turns it and throws it up in the air, doing it many times quicker, better and easier than it used to be done by hand. When it comes to raking the horse is again employed, one man with a horse-rake doing easily what formerly required the hard labor of the whole force of haymakers. We believe no machine has yet been invented to "pitch on the load" of hay, but on many farms the horses or oxen are made to pitch it off, and it is done in much less time than by the old method. Furrowing ploughs, seeding machines, horse-hoes and cultivators greatly lighten the labor of planting and tending crops; and the clumsy, heavy, back-breaking and heart-breaking wrought iron shovels, hoes and forks of years ago have given place to steel implements so light and conveniently fashioned that it seems as if no further improvement could be made in that direction. The sickle long ago gave place to the grain-cradle, and a "reaper" no longer means a man or woman doubled up like a cod in a pot and clipping off small handfuls of grain with a hook, but a machine which cuts down an acre of grain while an old-fashioned reaper would be looking at it.

But the farmers are not yet happy. Having to a great extent substituted machinery and calculation for main strength and stupidity in their farm labors, they now propose to make to make themselves felt in politics; and from the way "Granges" are springing up in all quarters it is more than likely they will manage it. It is a little singular that some such movement had not taken place before, for other occupations and trades have nearly all had their special organizations, while the farming interest—the most important of all, employing more men and embracing a larger percentage of employers than any other business—has never been accorded the political influence its numbers would have secured under well-directed, organized action. Whether or not this movement, commenced in the West as an anti-railroad-extortion proceeding, will exercise a permanent influence, is a conundrum. If the farmers and their allies can manage to keep the control of their Granges out of the hands of the old party hacks who are so generously offering to take the lead in many places, the farmers' movement may do more service than any trade union ever did. The courteous offers of certain ancient wire-pullers to take high seats in the synagogue have been declined in the Western States, and may be in others; but it does not seem probable that the Patrons of Husbandry can long avoid capture by the veteran fuglers of the political world.

But whether the movement finds an object to strive for of importance enough to keep it alive, or degenerates to a mere partizan scramble for power and place, it will serve a good turn if it wakes up the rural population to a sense of the duty they owe the country as citizens, as well as the power they can wield as voters. It is stated that a combination of the larger boot and shoe manufacturers of New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey, resolving to emancipate themselves from the rule of the Crispins, have recently purchased eight hundred acres of land on the Hudson, in the town of Stockport, and propose to erect the necessary buildings for manufactories and residences, and bring over from three to five thousand Swiss workmen and their families. Agents are now in Europe negotiating for this immigration. The property has a river front of two and a half miles, and is admirably situated for a thrifty and healthy settlement.

State News.

A. A. Perkins, Esq., has resigned his position as Superintendent of the Great Falls & Conway Railroad, and Hon. John W. Sanborn of Wakefield has been appointed to take his place. Mr. Sanborn is an energetic, go-ahead, and safe business man.

The Strafford county fair will be held at Great Falls this year.

Mr. Charles Black, of East Weare, met with a very serious injury, recently. He was at work on a bee-hive with a long pointed knife, having the hive pressed against his knee. Accidentally the knife slipped from the hive and penetrated his leg to the bone, severing three branches of the main artery about midway from the knee to the hip. The knife was driven with such force as to require quite an amount of strength to withdraw it and to bend its point. As soon as possible, but not till after great loss of blood, medical assistance was obtained, and with considerable difficulty the arteries were taken up. Mr. Black is in quite a critical state, and the surgeon fears inflammation of the bone, which will necessitate a removal of a part of the bone, if not an amputation.

Mr. Noah Ranlet, a prominent coal merchant in Concord, was killed Monday morning in his coal shed in the railroad yard in that city. The up freight train made so much noise that he did not hear the shifting engine backing down, and having rigged a coal car stepped on the track. His right arm was severed and the back of his skull and chest were crushed. He was fifty years of age and leaves a wife.

The Laconia Democrat tells the following: At the dinner table not long since at an "Elm House," somewhere in Belknap County, among the guests, unknown to the waiters, was a minister, who, seating himself at the table, closed his eyes, and as was evident to others, was silently asking a blessing. The young lady waiting upon the table, not noticing the act of devotion, stepped behind him and leaning over said, "boiled salt fish, roast beef and boiled chicken." Getting no response she supposed the gentleman must be hard of hearing, so leaning lower towards him, she repeated in her loudest tone, "boiled salt fish, roast beef and boiled chicken!" The gravity of the boarders at that table was temporarily suspended.

A Serious Joke.

[Detroit Free Press.]

At a private party recently held in this city, a boy thoughtlessly drew a chair away from a corpulent gentleman who was about to seat himself, thereby letting him down on the floor in a very unpleasant manner. A merry laugh greeted the unfortunate victim when the "joke" was discovered, which however was soon changed into a murmur of regret, for it was found that the gentleman was unable to rise. He was assisted into an adjoining room, where a physician, who was one of the guests, ascertained that the force of the fall had created a rupture, the effect of which will be felt through life.

Killed With a Scythe.

On Friday morning, a little son of Samuel King, a farmer in the town of Oswego, N. Y., was killed with a scythe in the hands of his father. Mr. King was mowing in his meadow, and while he was at work his little son, aged 5 years, came running out to him. Mr. King told the lad it was not safe for him to be there and to go back to the house. The little fellow started, but it appears that instead of going home he laid down in some tall grass beside a stump in the meadow and fell asleep. Subsequently Mr. King went to mow around this stump, and, not seeing the boy, thrust the point of his scythe into his face below the eye, cutting through the nose and producing a horrible wound. Mr. K. pulled the scythe out but the child died in a few moments.

From the glorious coralline,
See those teeth untarnished!
White alike, the back and front
Yes, by the fragrant SOZODONT,
May beauty's mouth be garnished!

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years; until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS. 680

The Testimony of Travelers.

All travelers who have tested the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as an acclimating preparation and as a means of avoiding the painful and dangerous disorders of the bowels and the liver, which accrue from a change of water or unwholesome vapors, refer to it with enthusiasm as an unequalled preventive medicine. Whenever the atmospheric conditions are unfavorable to health and the water impure, this powerful tonic is indispensable alike to the settler and the transient sojourner. There was a time when raw brandy or whiskey was almost universally used to quality the waters of the western rivers, and the wells, &c., of the low-lying districts of the south. Now, the liquors of commerce have been generally discarded by travelers and residents in these regions, and Hostetter's Bitters substituted in their stead. At this season when the sun is near the zenith and the heat oppressive, two or three doses of the Bitters will have a salutary effect on the appetite, the digestion and the spirits.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ow6

SAD ACCIDENT ON LITTLE BAY.

THREE YOUNG LADIES DROWNED.

Passengers by the evening train from Newmarket Junction, Wednesday evening, reported the drowning of three ladies in Great Bay, in the afternoon. Several boats were seen from the train, containing people searching for the bodies. The ladies were said to have belonged in Stratham. Our reporter visited Newmarket, and returned at a late hour this morning with the following particulars of the sad affair:

At 1 o'clock on Wednesday a party consisting of twelve ladies and three gentlemen started from Newmraket in the packet Eagle, Capt. Charles T. French, for a clambake and chowder on Goat Island, near the site of the old Piscataqua Bridge. After landing a number of the party on the island, the others went off for a sail, and when about half way across Little Bay the packet came up into the wind, and the ballast (eight barrels of fish, not secured in any way,) rolled from one side to the other, capsizing her and throwing all on board into the water.

Mr. Edward Robinson, who has charge of the drawbridge on the Concord Railroad, hastened to their assistance in his boat, and succeeded in rescuing all but three, viz.: Miss Mary Abbie Garland, Miss Minnie Moulton and Miss Burnham, three young ladies employed in the tailoring establishment of Mr. Benjamin F. Haley of Newmarket. The survivors were in the water, clinging to the capsized packet, for about half an hour before Mr. Robinsos reached them.

This sad affair has cast a deep gloom over the town, where the victims of the accident were well known and highly esteemed; the whole available population joined in the search for the bodies, which however had not been recovered when night compelled a cessation of their endeavors.

We are indebted to Mr. Eben G. Chapman of Newmarket for the foregoing particulars of the disaster, all the other inhabitants of the quiet town seeming to be sound asleep when our reporter arrived there at midnight. Mr. Chapman said that diving apparatus had been sent for and was expected to arrive early in the day, when it was hoped the bodies would soon be found.

Richards Avenue.

A preliminary meeting of citizens invited to consider the plan drawn up by Engineer Johnson, for the widening and improvement of Richards Avenue, was held at the Common Council room, Wednesday forenoon, but as Hon. William H. Y. Hackett, executor of the Cutts will, was too ill to be present, and Engineer Johnson was absent, no decisive action could be taken and the meeting adjourned.

John L. Elwyn, Esq., who was present, offered suggestions which were favorably considered. Engineer Johnson's plan, which is on exhibition at the City rooms, provides for a roadway twenty-eight feet in width, with a sidewalk ten feet wide on the west and another eighteen feet wide on the east, and a row of trees on each side of the roadway. Mr. Elwyn's offer is a very liberal one, the only conditions he attaches being that the road shall be properly macadamized and his plan of improvement adopted.

He proposes a roadway of thirty feet, with no sidewalk west of it and a sidewalk twenty feet wide east of it. When this is completed he offers to give the City fifty feet in width of all the land between the residence of Mr. Richard C. Yeaton and South road, and in case the trees now adorning the Avenue be found in the way, he offers to transplant them at his own expense. Of this fifty feet, another roadway of thirty feet in width and another sidewalk of twenty feet can be constructed, making the width of the Avenue one hundred feet.

Den Stone's Circus and Menagerie

Will appear in this city on Saturday. The Bridgeport Farmer of June 17th has the following in relation to the circus and menagerie: "All the acts of the circus performance were highly interesting, many of them were thrilling enough to satisfy the most critical admirer of daring feats in riding and display of athletic power and ingenuity.

The horsemanship displayed was far above the ordinary standard. Madame DeBerg rides with wonderful dash, grace and daring, and Jas. E. Cook, in his great four horse act proves himself to be unsurpassed in the art of riding an equine quartet. A good lady bare-back rider is a very unusual feature in a circus, but Mlle. Cordelia more than answers that description, performing feats generally reserved for first-class male riders alone, with a grace and confidence that excites the admiration of all who behold her. The menagerie consisted of a rare and select collection of animals all of them in the best condition, and the general character and management of the whole show struck the visitor most favorably.

Laconics.

B. W. Perkins, steward of steamer Major, who took an over-dose of aconite recently, died on the 29th. He had been in poor health for several years.

Benjamin J. Cahoone died in New York, Sunday night, at the age of 73 years. Throughout a long and vigorous life he has been well-known among the officers of the United States Navy, with which he was connected for nearly 40 years. He was born in Rhode Island, and at an early age entered the naval service. On Nov. 12, 1870, he received the appointment of Pay Director in the Navy, with the rank of Commodore. Of the 38 years during which he was connected with the department, he has seen 16 years of sea service, and has left behind him an excellent record of diligence and faithfulness in the discharge of every duty. He retired from active service Nov. 1, 1868, his last duty having been performed on board the receiving ship Vandalia in this harbor. His funeral will take place to-day.

Patrick Hennessey, Michael Cunningham and others have brought a suit in equity against Canon Walsh, Bishop Bacon of Portland, and Rev. Charles McCallion, the intention being to secure the control of the Catholic church property in this city. Goodall & Marston appear for plaintiffs. The only important fact in the case thus far eliminated is that the editor of the Times "does not propose to take any side in this controversy !"

Rev. Mrs. Fannie U. Roberts, of Kittery, Me., has been licensed to solemnize marriages, the first instance of the kind on record in the State.

Portsmouth sends up to the county farm to-day two female drunkards, for three manths.

Mr. John W. Leach, of Kittery, on Wednesday placed a half-dozen nice ears of green corn where they would do the most good,—the first fruit of the kind that we have seen, raised in this vicinity the present season. It is (or it was, rather, for it is all eaten up, now,) of the succatash variety, and the kernels were plump and well filled, to the tips of the cobs. Mr. Leach informs us that he had corn fit for the table a week previous, which is doing pretty well for the "Barbary Shore," considering the backwardness of corn in general and that no unusual care was taken of this particular lot.

About one hundred and fifty persons, young and old, attended the Methodist Sunday School picnic at Epping on Wednesday, and enjoyed themselves greatly.

Dearborn S. F. E. Co., No. 1, Foreman J. Frank Shannon, will make an excursion to Lynn early in September, and stop in Salem a few hours.

Tommy, since his trip to the mountains, has great faith in the Eastern Railroad's ramifactory powers. Coming home from Conway, last week, he asked, with the guilelessness which is perhaps the most engaging attribute of childhood, if the Eastern Railroad went to San Francisco. "No, my dear," replied the sage who bears to Tommy the double relation of mentor and grandsire'; 'No, my dear, it stops at Boston." "Of course I know that well enough, grandpa, but I thought it might have a branch to San Francisco."

Virginia Conservatives Alarmed.

[Washington Republican.]

The New York organ of the Democracy, the World, comes to the assistance of the Virginia Conservatives with the declaration that "it is difficult to find any reason why the radicals should make another attempt upon Virginia." If the World had only examined the political situation in that State, or if it had only the honesty to tell what it knows, it would find no difficulty whatever in accounting for what it calls the "radical attempt" upon that State. In the first place, it gave Gen. Grant and the republican platform a majority of nearly two thousand last fall, which was a gain of nearly thirty-five thousand. In the next place the last Legislature, by its short-sighted policy, its palpable neglect of all the vital interests of the State, disgusted everybody who has the true interests and material progress of the Old Dominion at heart. Virginia Conservatism means only the aggrandisement of a lot of selfish politicians, who are seeking only how they can advance their own interests to the neglect of the public welfare. On the other hand the "Radical" platform and purpose means the development of the great industrial resources of the State, the building of the James River canal, the proper support and extension of the school system, a free railroad law, the placing of Virginia in the position among her sister States to which her geographical position justly entitles her. This is why the radicals make another attempt upon Virginia, and these, among others, are the reasons why the attempt will be successful.

—A fashionable lady has been compelled to leave Long Branch in spite of its attractions, because the moist sea air takes the "crimps" out of her poodle's front hair.

THAT part of the John Shannon farm—was owned by Thos. K. Shannon, lying on the Dover Road, 1 1-2 miles from the E. R. R. Depot, consisting of a House and Stable room, and about 1 1-2 acres of excellent land and a very fine young orchard of grafted fruit in bearing. Also about 12 acres near the above stand of pasture, tree, wood and timber land, there being on the same over 100 acres of wood and a fine lot of white pine timber. j8tim

For Sale.

That Delightful sea-side resort known as the

WOODMAN COTTAGE,

AT Newcastle, N. H., is for sale. The Farm contains more than FIFTY Acres of Land; and is bounded on the East for three hundred yards by the Atlantic Ocean.

The House is within a stone's throw of the surf, NEW, ELEVATED and COMMODIOUS, one and a half stories high, containing TEN rooms and surmounted by a first-class weather proof observatory and surrounded by a piazza from which the whole sea coast from Boon Island Light to Plum Island, including the Isles of Shoals, are plainly seen. In fact this property is situated nearer the famous Shoals than any other on the main land, and possesses the same advantages for BATHING and FISHING and the enjoyment of the sea air, while it is accessible at all times over good roads.

The Barn and out-buildings are in good repair.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Mexico.

["Broadway's" Cin. Commercial Letter.]

So far as is publicly known, the Mexican government has made no complaint of the raid of Colonel Mackenzie, or of any of our recent operations beyond the Rio Grande. It is reported, in fact, that the Mexican government is quite willing that our troops should pursue into Mexican soil, and there punish or take captive such Mexican marauders or Indo-Mexican bands as may have disturbed the peace of the people on this side of the Rio Grande. If this be so, it certainly shows that the Mexican government is in the hands of men possessed of unusual discretion. But of course, though it be so, anybody will admit that it would be possible for Belknap to go too far, even with Mexico. It cannot be utterly impossible for him to get up a muss, if he be bent on getting one up. For instance, Mackenzie, in one or other of his raids, might happen to shoot or capture some Mexican officials, or to come into collision with a handful of Mexican troops. In case of an accident of this kind, we would be very sure of having a muss. Or, perhaps, on the occasion of an incursion into Mexican territory a big lot of Mexican troopers might fall upon a small lot of our troopers, chase them to this side of the line, burn the town to which they fled, and play havoc all round. Then of course, the "American heart would be fired," and before we fairly knew what we were about, the country would be precipitated into war and Belknap would be happy.

We would "lick" the Mexicans, no doubt. After several years of fighting we would conquer the people. After they were conquered we would annex their country. After it was annexed we could govern it. In governing it, and in preserving the peace and enforcing the laws all over it, from the Rio Grande to Yucatan, from Tampico to Mazatlan, we would have a lovely time. We would keep on enlarging our army until it was big enough for its work. We would toil away patiently at the never-ending business of suppressing rebellion.

We would labor at it even as Sisyphus labored at his task. In this way the young West Point officers would be able to win the laurels to which Belknap alluded when he addressed them. We would make the Mexicans themselves pay the cost of their subjugation; and if it were found, after all, that this could not be done, it would be easy for our own government to issue as many bonds and greenbacks as might be necessary. We could stand heavier taxation than we now enjoy, and if it got so heavy as to break our back, we could adopt Butler's theory of repudiation. I presume Belknap could easily explain all these matters.

There are between eight and nine millions of people in Mexico. Of these, about one-sixth are pure European blood; the great majority, or about seven millions, are of the original Indian stock, and the mixed Indian and European breed. Perhaps we could quickly induce this great mass of Indians and mongrels to organize and carry on Republican institutions according to the methods which have been successful in this country. But perhaps we would have more difficulty about it than some annexationists suppose. We would, of course, govern them by force, as Great Britain governs her East Indian subjects; but this would not be Republicanism; and I apprehend that if we created a despotic system there, we would not long maintain a free system anywhere. With four millions of blacks who care little for Republicanism, and a growing influx of Mongolians who care less for it, I apprehend that it would be hard for us to stand seven millions of Indians and mongrels who care nothing for it.

I close, therefore, by repeating the remark with which I opened, that it would be well for the country to keep an eye on Belknap, and be prepared to put a check on this ambitious scheme which he is privately nursing with the idea that it will mature into Mexican annexation.

A Ticket of Leave.

The elopement of Brigham Young's seventeenth wife, reported by telegraph a few days ago, was not without encouragement, it seems, from the autocrat of the Mormon church, though he did not design or consent that she should go so soon. A Salt Lake paper gives the following extract from one of Brigham Young's recent sermons:

I wish my women to understand that what I am going to say is for them as well as others, and I want those who are here to tell their sisters, yes, all the women in the community. I am going to give you from this time to the 6th of October next for reflection, that you may decide whether you wish to stay with your husbands or not, and then I am going to set every woman at liberty, and say to them now go your way. And my wives have got to do one of two things, either round up their shoulders to endure the afflictions of this world, and live their religion—that is, polygamy—or they must leave; for I will go into heaven alone, rather than have scratching and fighting about me. I will set all at liberty. What, first wife too? Yes, I liberate you all. I want to go somewhere or do something to get rid of the whiners. I do not want them to receive part of the truth and spurn the rest out of doors. Let every man thus treat his wives, take all that I have and be set at liberty; but if you stay with me you shall comply with the law of God in every respect and round up your shoulders to walk up to the mark without any grunting."

—A Utica man, whose wife has been ill for some time, came down one day with a face longer than the revised charter. A friend who met him grasped him by the hand in sad sympathy, and murmured: "Oh, when did she die?" "Oh, thunder!" was the reply; "she ain't dead; she's cleaning house."

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Reveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of pushing their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents. Having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part lends me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

OCEAN'S STORY:

OR TRIUMPHS OF THIRTY CENTURIES: By E. B. Goodrich (son of "Peter Parley") and E. Howland. A work of great historical research recounting in truly graphic style the wonderful growth of navigation, and history of discovery since the flood; is replete with incidents, thrilling adventures, battles, shipwrecks, mutinies, piracies, &c. Describes how from the first tiny bark, when ocean was the dark realm of terrors, sails now whiten every sea, sight-ning flashes tidings from shore to shore; and men bring up wonders from deep waters, with many other matters of lively interest, which go to make up one of the most valuable, fascinating and remarkable productions of the age. Daily Chronicle.

Wise's Balloon Voyage.

The proposal of Mr. Wise to cross the Atlantic in a balloon is looked upon by many persons as a foolhardy undertaking. No doubt it is dangerous; very dangerous. The risk is so great that it would be wrong to venture if there is not a fair prospect of success, and if no good is to come from accomplishing the journey. But neither of these suppositions is correct. The prospect of success is so great as to make it worth while to try the experiment. And if the experiment is successful, the advantages to follow it are almost incalculable.

Mr. Wise is a man of great experience in balloon navigation. We may be sure, then, that as far as safety can be secured, and dangers prevented by ample precautions, these will be taken. He knows perfectly what accidents may happen, and what has caused disaster hitherto. He knows the lifting-power of gas required, the amount of leakage, the amount of loss by the necessity of ascending and descending, etc. We may presume that his balloon is amply able to sustain him and his companion and their freight during the full time necessary to cross the Atlantic, allowing for all probable delays. The only great danger which remains, therefore, concerns the possibility of finding the air-current setting from west to east. If this is not found; if the balloon is to be driven helplessly to and fro, backward and forward, then, of course, the sustaining power must be at last exhausted, and the aeronauts be deposited in the sea. But all laws of meteorology, and all the observations of meteorologists, indicate a general upper current in the northern hemisphere from southwest to northeast. It is implied in the trade winds, which, coming from the poles, must return to them again. It is indicated by the frequent northeasterly storms, which, as is well-known, move constantly from the southwest to the northeast. These great storm-clouds are so lofty that the largest part of them is rooted in the upper current of air setting to the north and east. Their mass is always carried in this current, no matter what may be the direction of the winds below—just as the fleets of icebergs from the Arctic circle sail steadily to the south, no matter how the winds may blow or the currents tend on the surface of the ocean. The icebergs are sunk so deep in the sea that their chief bulk is rooted in the lower current setting always toward the equator. So the great storm-clouds rise so high that their chief bulk is rooted in the upper current of air, setting always toward the north and east. As soon as Mr. Wise finds himself in this current, he will be carried by it to the coast of Norway or Denmark, and in a few days be landed somewhere in the Scandinavian regions.

But here a new difficulty arises. If the heroic navigator remains near the surface of the ocean he will not find this great return current of air, and may be driven north, south or west, and so never reach Europe. But, if he ascends high enough to reach the steady westerly tide of air, how can he tell his course at all? While near the sea, the rapid flight of the balloon will be transferred to the waves below, and his compass will tell him the direction of his movement, as being the reverse of these. But when he is so high as not to be able to distinguish the lines on the water, how can he know which way he is moving? You may say—by the clouds. But will the balloon move faster than the clouds? If he is in the same air stratum with the clouds, probably not. If in a different one, then their apparent motion will result not merely from the direction of the balloon, but also from their own proper motion in the different currents of air. This is a difficulty which we confess ourselves unable to resolve. Another danger from traveling in the upper air current may come from extreme rarefaction of the air and extreme cold. Even the storm-clouds of a summer day will be sometimes so lofty as to rise into the region of perpetual frost. Every summer hail-storm is a proof of this—for the best explanation of hail is, that the upward suction of air in a lofty cloud carries the drops of rain up so high that they are frozen, and thrown out at the top of the cloud, on either side, as lumps of ice. Let us hope, therefore, that our adventurous navigator may find his westerly wind so low down as to be able to avoid these difficulties and dangers. They, however, certainly incline us to the opinion that the form which air-navigation is ultimately to take will not be that of a balloon, but rather some imitation of a bird. The Duke of Argyll, in his Reign of Law, has a very interesting chapter on the flight of birds, in which he shows that birds, by being heavier than the air, have a great advantage over a balloon. The balloon is helpless in the current, but the weight of the bird opposes a resistance to the air which enables him to direct his course. The final air ship may therefore more nearly resemble a bird. It will present a flat or concave surface toward the earth, and a thin, cutting edge toward the air, which it is to penetrate. Some motive power, as much greater than the locomotive as the locomotive with its tubular boiler is more powerful than the old steam-engine, will drive its wings. The wings must be shaped like those of a bird, retaining the air in front by their stiff unelastic edge, and letting it out behind by flexible and elastic terminations.

Meantime, the first great step will be taken in aerial navigation as a mode of travel, when it is demonstrated that a balloon can be safely directed across the ocean. If Mr. Wise accomplishes this he will achieve a renown only second to that of Columbus. For what are the advantages likely to result from Arctic researches around the pole, or explorations of Central Africa, compared with the gain to humanity which will result from air navigation? These geographical researches will be included as a small part of this result. When we can guide balloons north and south, east and west, we can travel to and fro over Africa, and soon become familiar with all its deserts and water-courses. The poles may be later in giving up their secrets to the balloon, but they must at last reveal all of their mystery to the man who, in twenty-four hours, can sail directly over to the north pole from Greenland to Kamschatka. But consider the delight of air travel. No motion, no dust, no noise, and a perpetually unrolling panorama below of sea and land, forest and city, mountain and river. No danger of explosion or of collision—no sea-sickness, no wrecks. The balloon will travel on the bosom of the most furious hurricane, and not a breath of air be felt by the voyagers. The expense of travel will be much less—for a balloon or a mechanical bird will not cost as much as a steamer; and for land travel we shall be saved all expense for land surveys, cost of the land, grading and rails. Political and commercial results of importance may also follow. The friends of free-trade ought to welcome the air-ship—for it must abolish the custom-house; and we do not think that any government will establish a balloon revenue cutter to stop travelers a mile above the earth.

These events may not be seen by the present generation, but they are sure to arrive. Our grandchildren, looking up into the air, will say, "There goes the New York train!" "That is the daily balloon for England!" "There goes the Red line balloon for San Francisco and Japan." In the meantime let us not consider Mr. Wise as fool-hardy, but as a true hero, who is opening a way for us through the unknown into some great advance of human civilization. May the heavens smile on the daring explorer of the skies, and may we hear of his safe arrival on the shores of Europe!

Five men were fatally burned and three others seriously injured by an explosion of gas in a foundry furnace at Chicago.

Isaac C. Cobbins has been nominated as a candidate for Governor of Ohio in opposition to the republican candidate, Gov. Noyes.

Col. Robert W. Hughes has been nominated as the republican candidate for Governor of Virginia. Many old farmers took part in the convention, the carpet-baggers and negroes taking back seats.

The Savannah (Ga.) News & Courier reports that one of the most malignant fevers ever known in this country is desolating Pensacola, Fla. Out of a population of less than 1,000, twenty a day have died. Scarcely an American is left.

A Portland man dropped a heavy lignum-vitæ ball on his foot, while bowling, and smashed one toe completely.

A printer from Fort Wayne, Ind., by the name of Eismer, fell from a precipice on Mount Washington, the distance of a hundred and fifty feet. He remained insensible for some time, and when he recovered consciousness, found himself in a rough unsettled section. By following the course of a stream he managed to reach the road, where he fell to the ground utterly prostrated with weakness. A team coming up, he was removed to Gorham.

While a party of fishermen were hauling their nets at the mouth of Chester river, in Chesapeake Bay, twenty miles from Baltimore, they were attacked by several sharks. They made all haste to reach their boats, but before one of them, James Green, could reach it, he was seized by a shark and one leg so nearly bitten through that it hung to his body by shreds of flesh and bone. His companions rowed towards him and tore him from the mouth of the savage fish in an almost dying condition. He was taken to Baltimore where amputation was performed, but it is thought that he cannot live.

It is commonly reported that Marshal McMahon will retain the presidency of France but six months longer, when he will resign and return to the command of the army. It is considered certain that the republican form of government will be succeeded by a monarchy, and it is deemed essential that MacMahon, who possesses great influence with the army, should be in command on the occasion of the change. The extreme left have determined to agitate the question of the dissolution of the assembly in the provinces during the recess, and are making preparations for a vigorous campaign.

Twenty-two Chinese females brought by the steamer, on the 28th ult., from Hong Kong, were sold, at public auction, in the Chinese quarters, in San Francisco. The young girls brought as high as $450 each and middle-aged and old women from $200 to $1000 each.

"John the Baptist," a race-horse of Council Bluffs, is said to be the "forerunner" of all horses in the region round about. But he refuses locusts and wild honey in his "feed."

A barn with thirty tons of hay belonging to George Moore of Berwick, Me., was struck by lightning on the 29th ult., and entirely consumed. Loss $1000, partially covered by insurance.

State News.

The Hedding Camp Meeting will commence, the present year, on Monday, the 25th of August, and close on the following Saturday,—not holding over Sunday.

Wm. H. Gutterson, of Dunbarton, met with a severe, and it is feared fatal accident on the 26th ult., by the bursting of a shot gun. The right side of his face was terribly burned and mangled.

Charles B. Coleman of Great Falls committed suicide on the 28th ult., by taking strychnine. He died almost instantly after swallowing the dose. He had been low spirited for some time, from what particular cause is not known. He was respectably connected, about 50 years of age, and has left a wife and three children.

The Sand Club.

Charles A. Russell, who was hanged in San Francisco for shooting and killing James Crotty, had a bad reputation, and for that reason, probably, all appeals for executive clemency were in vain. He was tried for burglary in 1866 and a memento of his crime remained in the hands of the police of San Francisco. This was a sand club, a weapon which, many will be surprised to learn, is the most diabolical ever used by lawless men. Russell so well knew the depravity which the possession of this murderous instrument indicated that, while efforts were in progress to secure a commutation of his sentence, he vehemently denied that it had ever belonged to him, although the public knew very well that it had. The club was made by filling an celskin with fine sand. This formed a very pliable and deadly weapon. A blow could be struck with it which would easily break a bone without leaving the slightest mark on the skin. It is only within a few years that the sand club has been in use or at least known to the police authorities in the United States. Attention was first called to the curious weapon in New York.

Several dead bodies were found at different times, the post mortem examinations of which showed deaths by external violence, but no marks could be found on the outside of the body. A burglar was finally captured with a sand club in his possession. Being closely questioned he explained its use. When the victim is struck, for instance, on the head, he falls and soon dies from congestion of the brain. Oftentimes the skull suffers no injury from the stroke, and if the person struck recovers a state of sensibility he gradually relapses into a condition of maudlin idiocy. Sometimes a man struck in the body will be knocked down by the peculiar force of the blow and feel no immediate results from it. In a few weeks, however, the flesh will begin to mortify under the line of the blow and rot down to the bone. Heller, the celebrated pianist, is supposed to have met his death in Mexico from a stroke of this diabolical weapon—the sand club. Pistol and knife are not half so horrible as this weapon, and it is a universal feeling among the police that a man found with it upon his person is the vilest murderer at heart and entirely deserving to be blotted out of existence.

The Upper Ten at Newport.

While other watering-places, says a correspondent of the Tribune, are making a great noise about their present or coming races, crowded balls, and arrivals of more or less famous personages, Newport hangs back and refuses to get excited over anything. The season has long been formally declared open, the hops have begun, and there is the usual modicum of well-known people, but still everything wears a quiet, subdued air, so much so that it is difficult to realize that this is, as it is called the Queen of Seaside Resorts. Until late in afternoon, the only signs of holiday life are a few carriages. About to 10 A. M., driving the bathing beach, even there very little is to be seen yet; perhaps eight or ten persons may be counted at one time in the water. But 5 o'clock brings the grand display. Then Newport drives out, and for an hour or more Bellevue avenue is one grand procession of fashionable carriages, from the phaetons, with dignified parties of ladies and gentlemen, to the basket-wagons, usually monopolized by pairs of smiling, chatting girls. The footmen generally have the appearance of feeling the dignity of their position most, sitting with folded arms and straight backs, as though the least motion would ruin them. For that short hour Newport lives, and moves, and shows its glory to the vulgar gaze, and then subsides again. The hops or concerts follow in the evening, but they are poorly attended as yet. That at the Ocean House on Saturday was a marvel for this season. As many as a dozen couples were dancing at one time—a marvel, because at no time does Newport indulge much in that amusement, and only in the height of the season has such a thing occurred before. This quietness is, perhaps, inseparable from a resort where the hotels are so few and the cottages so many.

Cummings at it Again.

[London Letter.]

Of course the visit of the Shah has been an occasion for excitement among our religionists. We might have been sure that our dear beloved Cumming would get into the prophetic mood and see the end of the world approaching. And so he has. He finds in the Bible that as an eschatological token "three Kings shall come from East to the West;" the Sultan and the Khedive made two, and now the visit of the Shah makes it certain that Christ is the only potentate we may look for to come next, and may prepare our ear for the final trump.

Saratoga versus Springfield.

[Springfield Republican.]

It is a fact within the knowledge of many of our readers—though it will undoubtedly be news to more—that a strong push was made to capture the regatta this year, and carry it into disgraceful captivity at Saratoga. Mr. John Morrisy gave the students to understand that he stood ready to assume all the expenses, to provide prizes, &c., and foot the bills for the support of the crews, if they would leave that puritanical Springfield in the lurch, and come to the Springs. It was a terrible temptation; to the boys of the little up country colleges, especially, these regatta expenses are a very serious matter. But it was resisted. The boys were proof. Mr. Morrissey was civilly given to understand that the regatta was not for sale.

He is not the man to be discouraged by a single rebuff, however, and it is already evident that another and more determined attempt is to be made upon the undergraduate virtue. We may add that the innkeepers of Saratoga are very nearly or quite as earnest in this business as their distinguished townsman. The regatta would mean guests in their rooms and greenbacks in their tills. It would add a good fortnight or three weeks to "the season." They could well afford to go snacks in Mr. Morrissey's bribe; it would be a shrewd business-investment, sure to pay, and pay handsomely. But we fancy Mr. Morrissey and the Saratoga bonifaces are doomed to disappointment; that it is rather a pronounced case of sour grapes. There are a few things, thank God, still left in this country that money can't buy, and we believe this regatta to be of the number.

A Sad Case.

Miss Margaret Van Allen, a beautiful girl nineteen years of age, died recently in New York. Two years ago she became a clerk in the dry goods establishment of Mucovitz & Russell, University place, from which she honorably retired to accept a better position. Soon after it was ascertained that goods had been bought of A. T Stewart & Co. on a forged order of Muscovitz & Russell. After the firm had arrested several girls and had been unable to prove anything against them, they caused Miss Van Allen to be arrested a week ago Saturday afternoon. They placed her in a cell in the Charles-street police station and kept her locked up until the next morning. Miss Van Allen was then taken to the Jefferson Market police court, where she endured for nearly three hours the horrors of the prisoners' pen and the society of the vilest of the city; but as there was not a shadow of proof against her, Justice Cox released her on her own recognizance. She went home and was taken down that day with jail fever, of which she died. Her death causes intense excitement throughout the city. In the funeral sermon Rev. Mr. Rhodes pronounced her death sheer murder.

Household Hells.

[New York Nation.]

The fact is that such husbands and fathers as Walworth are by no means uncommon. There is not a street of this great city which does not contain several of the same class. If every wife had the means, or courage, or money to bring her griefs into court, Mrs. Walworth's sad story, down to her husband's death, would speedily wear the appearance of a slight misfortune. There is probably nothing, not even the sack of a stormed city, which brings out the devilish and animal part of some men's nature as the unchecked control of another human being's person and feelings does. There are thousands of poor women in this city, without friends or hope in this world, who have to listen every night to the ravings, and bear the blows and tortures of tyrannical beasts, compared to whom Walworth was harmless, and decent, and merciful; and yet the world knows nothing of their sorrows, unless when, now and then, some unlucky blow terminates their misery and their life together; and thousands of others pass their lives in higher stages of the same hell. What is the remedy for this state of things, except the general elevation of human nature, it would be hard to say. Legal remedies few people will care to discuss who seriously consider the condition of a woman whose youth and health have been passed in bearing children, and who has to face life without heart, hope or training for any calling by which money may be made, and whose nearest friend has turned into one of those fiendish enemies by whom no male human being is ever pursued in civilized society.

—A few years ago, there was a clergyman settled over one of the societies of Newburyport, an able and pious man, but with a defect in his vocal organs which made his pronunciation of some words some what peculiar. The Herald says, "On one Sunday, a little girl who had attended his ministrations during the afternoon service inquired of her mother who the "sigger-buggers" were. She was informed that there were no such creatures, but persisted that there must be, inasmuch as Rev. Mr. —— had prayed especially for them. After considerable investigation as to what the child had mistaken for the mysterious "sigger-buggers," it was discovered that the intended subjects for prayer were 'the sick among us.'"

—Captain Hauser, of Kokomo, Indiana, basked in fortune's sunshine one short day under the impression that he had drawn ten thousand dollars in the Louisville lottery. During that brief period he made his immediate family and friends happy by numerous presents and more numerous promises. Next day the corrected list dropped the prize ten numbers below and left the captain high and dry. After locking himself up for half a day communing with his soul, he began to annul contracts, rescind promises and break the commandments.

—A West Chester (Pa.) merchant set a steel trap in the cellar to catch cats, and the next morning it was missing. A few days thereafter, a boy saw a strange cat enter the cellar carrying a piece of meat in her mouth. She went behind a lot of empty barrels, and presently returned without the meat. The barrels were removed, and there was a cat eating the meat, with one leg fast in the missing steel trap.

—Salt is a simple remedy for many things. It will cure sick headache, make cream freeze, make the butter come, take ink stains out of cloth of any kind, kill wens, kill worms, make the ground cool so it is more congenial to celery, cabbage, etc., ease the itching pain caused by irritable skin diseases like hives, itch, etc., produce vomiting or stop it, as you like; and many other things too numerous to mention.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS. 689

The Testimony of Travelers.

All travelers who have tested the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as an acclimating preparation and as a means of avoiding the painful and dangerous disorders of the bowels and the liver, which accrue from a change of water or unwholesome vapors, refer to it with enthusiasm as an unequalled preventive medicine. Whenever the atmospheric conditions are unfavorable to health and the water impure, this powerful tonic is indispensable alike to the settler and the transient sojourner. There was a time when raw brandy or whiskey was almost universally used to qualify the waters of the western rivers, and the wells, &c., of the low-lying districts of the south. Now, the liquors of commerce have been generally discarded by travelers and residents in these regions, and Hostetter's Bitters substituted in their stead. At this season when the sun is near the zenith and the heat oppressive, two or three doses of the Bitters will have a salutary effect on the appetite, the digestion and the spirits.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

Odiorne's Point.

The responses to the suggestion for the proper remembrance of the 250th anniversary of the settlement of New Hampshire are hearty and prompt. We give to-day three interesting letters received by Frank W. Hackett, Esq.

CONCORD, July 22d.

Dear Sir:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 18th inst., which I read with great interest and pleasure. Your suggestion in relation to a Monument at Odiorne's Point meets my most hearty approval. I will take the earliest opportunity to lay the matter before the officers of the N. H. Historical Society, who will, I hope, take action for the accomplishment of so important an object.

Permit me also to suggest, that it would seem proper that the citizens of Portsmouth should inaugurate a monument toward the same end. Your honored father may justly take a lead in what he so fully appreciates.

Yours, &c., N. BOUTON.

SO. BOSTON, July 28th.

My Dear Friend:—I am very sorry to be unable to accept your kind invitation to be present at the meeting to-night, but I would like to send on my good wishes. It gives me great pleasure to think that the morning walk of two pilgrims a fortnight ago to Odiorne's Point should culminate in this meeting, and that it promises to come to a still better point in a tapering rocky shaft near the graves of the early settlers of New Hampshire. Our State is fortunate in being able to trace back its history by such a clear, well-beaten path to its very start, to the spot where stood the ancient "Manor-House," to the site of the old "Fort," to "Fake Hill," to those sunken graves, and say, "Here that history began." We not only need to throw all the light we can on that path and make it still clearer, but especially to make its beginning luminous. I think we must feel a filial duty in permanently marking the spot and in shedding on it all the glory we can. Such commemoration would make a fitting finale to the celebration of New Hampshire's settlement on the 4th, and our memorial stone will make a Mecca centre, to call to itself the wandering feet of many an absent "Son" or "Daughter of Portsmouth," each summer.

The good sense and good taste of Portsmouth, expressed in some organization of its own for this purpose, the N. H. Historical Society cooperating, will, I doubt not, easily secure the desired object. And whatever may be done at this meeting, consider me fully pledged to help along its results. Yours, EDWARD A. RAND.

BOSTON, July 28.

My Dear Sir: Your favor of the 26th, informing me that a meeting of citizens of Portsmouth has been called for this (Monday) evening, to consider the matter of erecting a monument at Odiorne's Point, and recalling the first settlement of New Hampshire, has just come to hand. I rejoice to hear that it is proposed to mark the event by a visible monument, and that the citizens of Portsmouth intend to take the initial in so interesting and praiseworthy an undertaking.

In common with every son of the Granite State, not only can I find no occasion to blush at any chapter in her history, either as a province or as a part of the federal Union, but it is a grand source of legitimate satisfaction, and even of pride, to feel that I have at least an inherited interest in that portion of our annals that contain the record of her political, military, commercial, literary and social life.

It has, sometimes, and in certain places, been suggested that the beginning of her history was very humble; that they lacked the element of devotion to exalted political and religious principles which it is claimed characterized the origin of some other colonies; but this difference, if such there was, was more apparent than real. However this may have been, and however true it may have been of the first generation, it would seem conceded that local, temporary, and personal interests have no more to do with fixing the character of the early settlers of New Hampshire than they had in the case of other people elsewhere.

This certainly we may claim for New Hampshire, that during her entire history her people have exhibited the same qualities and traits that have marked the best English stock in all countries and under all the vicissitudes, political and social, to which that stock has ever been subjected. An event, therefore, that marks the commencement of a chapter of English colonization is worthy of commemoration, and it is eminently fit that this memorial should be durable. It is also fit that this commemoration should occur in the same year that witnesses the serious and determined efforts of your enterprising citizens to inaugurate such measures as will give to New Hampshire all the commercial advantages which God and Nature designed she should have.

I have reasons for feeling a special interest in this memorial, inasmuch as I may rightly claim blood relationship to that Henry Joelyn who came over as one of the stewards of Capt. John Mason and Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and whose prominent connection, subsequently, with the early history of Maine, it is conceded by all, I believe, was both useful to others and honorable to himself. During his brief stay in New Hampshire he was certainly faithful to his trusts, and did not, like Norton and some few others, run away with the property of his employers.

Permit me to suggest a doubt whether Odiorne's Point, after all, is the most suitable location for the monument. The settlement there was temporary; in the largest and strictly historical sense, the first settlement of New Hampshire was in the "region of the Piscataqua." Why not, then, locate the monument in a conspicuous place within the limits of the city proper, where it will be not only seen and cared for by the present generation, but, what is of great importance, cared for and preserved by future generations. The corporate authorities will be its best guardians.

Sincerely yours, ALBERT H. HOYT.

Laconics.

The first of August is our anniversary. Twenty-one years ago to-day the first number of the DAILY CHRONICLE was issued.

Daniel street rejoices over a new cross-walk at its head. Good job!

Whitefield's Views of Portsmouth will be ready for delivery on Monday. Orders may be left at Foster's book-store.

Dr. I. T. Hunt, of the Oceanic Hotel, desires us to state that Mr. Perkins, steward of steamer Major, did not die from the over-dose of aconite he swallowed, but from rheumatic meningitis.

An interesting entertainment will be given by the ladies of St. John's Parish at Congress Hall, this afternoon and evening, including tableaux, music and sale of fancy articles. The Hall will be open at 4.30; tableaux at 8. See advertisement.

The Eastern railroad is running an engine with a two-story cab. The engineer occupies the upper story and the fireman the lower one.

A case of incest at Eliot is being developed. A girl of 14 has been the victim.

The Oceanic had an "opening" yesterday, at which journalists from abroad assisted. The fun closed with a ball last night.

The work of preparing the Middle street church for having its walls and ceiling frescoed, has commenced. The frescoing, we are informed, is to be done by Mr. Philip I. Butler of Portland, who did the fine work in the North Church and at the Rockingham House.

Until recently a brace of gamblers have watched their opportunity and caught the unwary by playing the game known as "three card monte," in the smoking cars of the Eastern and Maine Central Railways in the vicinity of Portland. The Eastern papers state that the managements have taken such measures, that these practices by these or any other "sporting fraternity" have had an end. This is creditable on the part of the Road.

Steamer Appledore will make a trip to the Shoals, Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock. Tickets at 75 cents each may be purchased of Mr. Richard D. Smart.

The Bay Accident.

The parties who assisted in saving the survivors of the picnic party were Thomas Robinson, George Durgin, John Chapman and Frank Savage. One of the ladies saved is a daughter of the owner of the packet. This is the third time Mr. Robinson has saved lives in this bay. At one time, six years ago, he saved three from drowning. Owen Printly, who is deformed, saved two lives. After the disaster first occurred, Miss Moulton and Miss Burnham had been rescued from the water and placed in a little boat, which was made fast to the stern of the packet, and when the latter finally sank she carried them down the second time. The bodies have not been recovered.

—"I found it very inconvenient and a great loss of time," said Chateaubriand, "to dine before seven o'clock. My wife wanted to dine at five o'clock and insisted upon that hour. After many arguments and much heated discussion, we finally compromised upon six o'clock—an hour inconvenient for us both. This is what they call domestic concession."

—"Paint—run against it!" says one sarcastic Chicago sign.

HOBBIES.

[Providence Journal.]

Mr. Prime, in his recent book on Fishing, makes some sensible remarks on "hobbies," which have been quoted far and wide by the newspapers, and which contain so much truth that they deserve to be enlarged upon. He says:—

"Every hard-working man should have a hobby. Especially should the professional man and the active business man remember this," etc.

We have in our community men who, though absorbed in business, have their hobbies, nevertheless. One collects in natural history—shells, plants or insects are his hobby, and the leisure moments of his whole life may be devoted to their collection. One of the finest collection of shells in the United States had its origin in a counting-room in South Water street. A clerk began by collecting specimens from the ballast of vessels from Africa. This collection is now preserved in Prof. Agassiz's great museum, in Boston, and the gentleman who formed it has charge of it. Two gentleman, at least, engaged in active business in Providence, have made botany their hobbies, and have formed large collections, while many others here have made quite respectable ones. The hobby of two others of our townsmen is the collection of woods from all parts of the world, a most interesting study.

Coins and medals, porcelain and china, paintings, engravings and bronzes, are elegant specialties or hobbies, although, from their cost, they can only be indulged in by the rich. We know of no large collection of coins and medals in Providence, but there are collections of porcelain. There is no hobby pursued with more enthusiasm in Europe, at the present time, than making collections of porcelain. All have heard of the royal collection at Dresden, the finest in the world, which fills twenty-four large rooms, some of them sixty feet in length. In England this is a favorite pursuit and is cultivated by the wealthy, for, next to the collecting of pictures, that of china is the most expensive. The writer visited a private collection in London, which cost its owner upwards of £30,000. Many of the princely houses of Europe have collections, among them the Rothschilds. One gentleman in London made a collection of signboards. Collections of lock-keys and buttons are not unusual. Let any one take either keys or buttons for his hobby, and he will be surprised at how large and curious a collection he can form. Then there are the hobbies of collecting seals, snuff-boxes and postage stamps, the latter pursued with great vigor all over the world. Young people may learn much from collecting postage stamps; it teaches them geography and the currency of various countries; and we venture to say that many young collectors know more about the currency of foreign countries than our merchants and bankers. Horses, carriages, yachts, farming stock, as fine breeds of cattle, sheep and pigs, poultry of all kinds, fancy pigeons and birds, are hobbies pursued with more or less zeal all over the world. Certain specialtnes in horticulture and gardening are the hobbies of many, and are pursued in Japan, China, India, and every country in the civilized world.

At the present time, perhaps, the passion for collecting books prevails in all civilized countries. With some the passion, or hobby, is omnivorous, the desire being to collect as large a library as possible on every subject. But the more intelligent and cultivated collectors of books confine themselves to special subjects, in which they feel an interest. Thus one collects wholly in books on botany. We have one fine collection on this subject in Providence. Then we know a gentleman in New York who thinks he possesses every book published upon fishes. Another has a hobby like the late Mr. T. P. Barton of New York, who had the finest Shakesperian collection in America, embracing every known edition of the great dramatist, every commentary, criticism or illustration of his works, and every book to which Shakespeare refers, or from which he obtained the materials or incidents for his plays. The department of Americana, or works relating to America, is a favorite specialty, and finds its devotees or collectors in England, France, Germany and Russia, as well as in America. One of the finest collections in this department in the world is known to be in Providence; and we may add that in the department of American poetry another gentleman in our city possesses upwards of 3500 separate works and editions of the writings of American poets and dramatists, including poems directly relating to America, a collection unsurpassed in America or elsewhere. The literature of the rebellion is a hobby or specialty with many, and we believe that Providence possesses two collections not surpassed in extent and value in this country. Among other book collectors, one secures every book that relates to fishing from the Greek poem of Oppian, who lived 1700 years ago, on the fishing of the ancients, and honest Izaak Walton, down to the latest sporting adventures in the Adirondacks, and the report of the Rhode Island fish commissioners. Other specialties in literature are the Greek and Latin classics, Spanish and Portugese literature, philology and lexicography, facetiæ, almanacs, and last, though not least, Bibles. The late Duke of Sussex had one of the finest collection of Bibles in Europe, which was dispersed at his death. But the largest collections ever made is that of Mr. Lenox of New York, which forms a part of the "Lenox Library," recently given to the city, and for which a grand edifice is now in the course of erection, near the Central Park.

—"What's the date of your bustle?" was what an anxious papa asked his well-dressed daughter, after searching for the latest copy of his paper.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 23, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 840 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and who have the necessary facilities for doing the work. ow31

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IF SHOULD BE FIRST TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEBRIDEMENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Daily Chronicle.

A Night at Saratoga.

John Paul writes to the New York Tribune as follows:—

"You see, a man of my age must sleep occasionally, and ever since the rheumatism struck my other knee and extra flannel became necessary, I've made it my practice to retire early; not that I'm bashful about showing my prehensile features in the parlors, but I don't exactly thirst to exhibit my 'linaments' miscellaneously. Well, by the time I've got soaked and swathed, and packed comfortably away, like a croton bug in fresh country butter, the band begins to play right under me. It's a good band, a nice band, but an elderly gentleman, with his interest powerfully excited about sleep, and able to travel, would get up and hire a pair of horses, and drive off a hundred miles or so on the Ballston road, to get away from Gideon's Band. However, you know that Heaven will bless if mortals will be kind, and that, at some period of his natural life, the breath of the best bassoon must soon give out. So you lie awake and trust to Providence and apoplexy. By and by the trombone lets down a bit and the fellow on the flute weakens, and you begin to think that school's about out. Then the band across the way begins; my good friend Gilmore comes in with his anvil chorus and fires off a few columbiads on the sidewalk; but you call to mind how lightning struck the Boston Coliseum, and fall back on the fact that it looked black in the west when we came up to bed. By and by you get softly up, steal quietly to your trunk, unpack your Ballard rifle from its case, rapidly but careful not to break anything, and slide the muzzle out of the window without any attempt at ostentation. Just as you've got the top of Gilmore's head well covered, and wondering whether he will be able to get himself roofed over again without going on to Boston for it, his baton falls for the last time, like a benediction, and you go back to bed, happy in the thought of having saved a cartridge. Then the young lady in the next room, who has a piano, comes skipping up the stairs with the wild grace and gentle footsteps of a Texas steer; one of the airs the band played struck her fair and fragile fancy, and she wishes to play it. She plays it on you, so to speak, claws that ivory and howls like a lunatic under a full moon. But at last, even she stops. By the shower of hair-pins on the floor it is evident that she's taking down her hair for the night, and you return to its sheath the scalping-knife which you had drawn with a dim idea of going in to assist her in undressing. Now it's 3 o'clock, and you think it won't be absolutely necessary to kill any one before daybreak. But just as you get asleep, there's a smash and crash on the sidewalk under your window, and you jump up and look out to see which chimney has fallen down. It's only the iceman, who has dumped a load, ten tons or so, of congelation, and you retire, satisfied that patient prayer is a powerful purchase. But hark! the heavy sound breaks in once more, and nearer, clearer, deadlier than before. Did you hear it? No; 'twas not the wind nor the horse car rattling o'er the stony street, because they have no horse cars in Saratoga; this noise can be nothing short of an earthquake; you are positive on this point, but feel it your duty to jump up and look out and see if anybody's left alive. It's another iceman who has just dumped a bigger load under your window. From now until breakfast time more icemen than you thought could be found in the whole known world seem to have forsaken their wives and children, neglected their religious duties, abandoned their morning devotions and drinks, for the sole purpose of doing nothing but dump ice under your window. What wonder that you now give up all thought of sleep, lose your interest in earthly things, and, with the resigned expression of a blue fish when he discovers that he has no longer any business in the water and becomes madly bent on getting into the boat, turn with eager longing to a contemplation of that world where the provisions of the day are not gotten in quite so early in the morning, and the weary are not at all disturbed by the rattling of ice—not much!"

Crockery Smashers.

[MAX ADELER.]

We are glad to learn that the Emperor of China has issued a decree declaring that if the chief officer of his household handles dishes so carelessly as to break them, he shall be killed. We say we are glad of this, because we hope to have the same regulation put into effect in this country. If it is, about two thousand hired girls will be executed every week, and we may reasonably hope that the destruction of crockery will be checked. We have stopped in temporarily in our house by having a tea-set made of wrought iron and painted white. When a new hired girl comes she drops the coffee pot upon the floor. Finding with amazement that it does not break, she thumps it with a flat-iron and drops bricks on it and goes out and borrows a sledge hammer and whacks it; and then, perceiving that it is as good as ever, sits down in front of that coffee pot and bursts into tears. Then she gives warning, loads up with sugar and beef and butter for her sick aunt, embezzles three or four hemstitched handkerchiefs and any odd pillow-cases that are lying around, and starts for the nearest intelligence office. We wouldn't take a million dollars for that tea-set.

The Wagner Case.

[Portland Press, 1st.]

Yesterday the arguments before the full bench in the case of Wagner, indicted for the Smutty Nose murder, came to a close. The decision will be given to-day. We append a synopsis of the arguments of counsel regarding the question of jurisdiction:—

MAX FISCHACHER'S ARGUMENT.

In the matter of jurisdiction, the Court erred in passing upon the question whether or not Smutty Nose island was in the county of York; that was a question of fact for the jury to determine. Because: 1. While the Court may in certain cases determine whether or not it has jurisdiction, yet, when a question of fact is raised as to whether or not a certain place is within a certain county, the fact must be determined by the jury. 2. The jurisdiction may be questioned with the same freedom as any other fact in the case; therefore the defendant was entitled to the verdict of the jury thereupon. 3. In this case the issue of fact was distinctly raised and testimony presented to the jury for their determination as to the fact.

Even if the Court had power in this case to determine these questions without the aid of the jury, yet the proofs introduced on the question of jurisdiction were all, or nearly all, incompetent. Because: 1. The proof that jurisdiction was exercised by the courts claiming to sit for Yorkshire is not conclusive that said exercise was legal, even if Yorkshire and York county are identical. There was no adjudication on the question of jurisdiction shown. 2. The histories and other documents introduced were not proper and legal evidence. 3. Mr. Allen, as Clerk of Court, was not the proper custodian of the census returns, and the fact that he had a key to the treasury office did not qualify him. 4. It is by no means legal evidence that the towns returned in same were actually and legally in York county. 5. The testimony of Moses A. Safford was incompetent, because it simply appeared that he was in 1860 Assistant U. S. Marshal, and there was no evidence that, as such officer, it was his duty to take the census. An Assistant U. S. Marshal is not a State officer, and even if it was his official duty to take the same, the report above put in did not appear to come from the proper repository, nor was it adopted as correct; neither is the fact that he took the census (even were he qualified,) legal proof that the places returned by him were in York county.

But even if the evidence introduced was competent, yet it was insufficient, inasmuch as the whole taken together did not establish beyond a reasonable doubt,—and in fact did not establish at all,—that Smutty Nose Island was within the county of York; therefore the Court could not assume jurisdiction.

The defendant is entitled to the benefit of any reasonable doubt upon any matter essential to be proven against him. It was essential to establish, as a proposition of fact, that Smutty Nose Island was in the county of York. Therefore said fact must be clearly and legally proven beyond any reasonable doubt.

The trial of all crimes shall be by jury. If the allegation showing jurisdiction is a material one, and that allegation is traversed, thus raising an issue of fact upon a material allegation, does not that fact become an ingredient to fully establish the crime as alleged? And can the issues of fact be separated, so as to let the jury pass upon a portion and the court upon the residue?

Mr. Fischacher also urged that the declarations of the deceased women should have been excluded, because they were not part of the res gestæ, as they were not descriptive of the act sought to be established as having taken place in the presence of the defendant, and were not introduced for that purpose. The only purpose for which they were introduced, and, in fact, the only object the government could have in introducing them, was to establish the identity of the prisoner, and as such they were clearly incompetent. They were not competent as dying declarations, because there was no evidence to establish them as such. Neither were they as statements made in the prisoner's hearing, because the very point sought to be established was the presence of the prisoner. Therefore they were incompetent, and only tended to prejudice the case of the prisoner with the jury, and influence their minds with impressions that he was present, and thus establish his identity, for which purpose, as previously stated, they were clearly incompetent.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PLAISTED'S ARGUMENT.

Upon the question of jurisdiction the Attorney General replied, to the effect that the indictment alleges that the crime was committed on a certain island, called Smutty Nose, within the county of York. The court ruled as a matter of law, "that proof that the crime was committed on Smutty Nose Island was equivalent to proof that it was committed within the county of York."

The commission of the crime was proved to have been on Smutty Nose Island, at the house of John C. Hontvet. No question was made as to the precise place or spot where the crime was committed; there was no evidence that a part of this island was within or without the county. The whole or none was in the State or county. The issue therefore presented by the question of jurisdiction was this: Whether or not the island of Smutty Nose belongs in Maine?

The statement of the question itself seems conclusive as to the correctness of the Court's ruling. For the issue raised brings into question the boundary between this State and New Hampshire and hence cannot be the ordinary question as to the locus in quo of a criminal action. If the question of boundary had been submitted to the jury, no conviction could have taken place except upon proof beyond a reasonable doubt that Smutty Nose Island was within the bounds of the county, unless the court had instructed the jury that they might determine that question upon slight evidence or none at all; and what is that but taking judicial notice only in a sinister way? The question which the court did not submit to the jury as to the question of locality, was this: Was the crime committed on Smutty Nose Island? But where the island itself is, whether within or without the State and county, is a totally different question, and not for the jury.

Courts even do not preside over boundaries of State; these are established and maintained by the political authorities and can be brought in question by no other tribunal. When a question like this presents itself, courts only determine the boundary line as established, claimed or recognized by the political authorities of their State. It is not a legal but a political question, and only concerns the court because involved in a question of private rights. The very nature of the issue therefore precluded its submission to the jury and compelled the court to take judicial notice, nor was the respondent aggrieved. Are not our laws just and very efficiently executed? Upon no principle, therefore, it seems, is the presiding judge chargeable with error.

All the authorities in the books accord with this view of the case, except the Jacksalow case in 1st Black., and that is fairly distinguishable, for the question in that case was, "where the crime was committed." There was no distinct, fixed island, only a vessel at sea; no piece of territory of definite limits, over which political authorities had exercised jurisdiction. If the dividing line between Maine and New Hampshire had parted the island of Smutty Nose by some uncertain course and position with respect to the Hontvet house, the Jacksalow case would apply. For the question then would be, not where is Smutty Nose, but where is the Hontvet house, and that the court could not judicially know.

The first proposition, that maintained for the government, is, that courts are bound to take cognizance of the boundaries of their State as in fact claimed by the political authorities. This proposition is sustained by all text-writers and courts, as appears by numerous cases cited.

The next question for the consideration of the court is, where is the boundary line between Maine and New Hampshire, with respect to the island of Smutty Nose as established, claimed or recognized by the political authorities of this State. All sources of information deemed worthy of its confidence are open to the court, as they would be to the political authorities of the State in a controversy with New Hampshire as to the business in question. The Attorney General then proceeded to outline the main facts upon which the government relied to prove that Smutty Nose Island is within the bounds of the county, referring to the report of the joint commissioners of Maine and New Hampshire in 1828, establishing the line between the two States; to the decree of the Royal Commissioners, which was to the same effect: and arguing that the language of the decree was to be construed by reference to the old provincial charter, and to prior deeds, under which Massachusetts and New Hampshire claim title to, and exercise jurisdiction over, their respective provinces; also to the original records of the General Assembly of Maine, showing the actual exercise of jurisdiction by legislative acts over this island of Smutty Nose. The Attorney General contended that this evidence established conclusively that the island was always accounted a part of the Province of Maine under the charter of Gorges, of 1630, and under the charter of William and Mary, of 1691, to the time of the Commonwealth and under the Commonwealth till 1820, and even unto this day. That the island is within the bounds of the county of York, also, is demonstrated by the fact that until 1760 the county of York comprised the entire province of Maine; and that, at that date, Cumberland and Lincoln counties were merely set off from York county by a legislative act, which defined the line between Cumberland and York, but expressly declares all the other bounds of the county of York, upon the south and west, are to remain unchanged, and as established by the act incorporating the old county of York, November 20, 1652.

A Kiss in the Dark.

[Long Branch cor. Phila. Ledger.]

A young New York gentlemen stopping at one of the lower hotels requested the proprietor to change his room, as the next apartment to his was occupied by that torment to bachelors, a crying baby. When he arrived from New York he went off to take a drive, and on his return to the hotel he was shown to his new apartment with the information that the baggage of the former occupant had not yet been removed, but that it would be taken away during the course of the evening. It was growing dark, so our hero sat down by the window to indulge in a little twilight meditation, and possibly a cigar. Suddenly the door opened, the frou-frou of a woman's dress was heard, and a soft voice exclaimed: "Why, Jack, dear, when did you come down? I am so glad!" and simultaneously with the exclamation he found himself

"Tenderly clasped in a loving embrace,
With a pair of long lashes just sweeping his face."

"So am I," was his very natural and involuntary rejoinder, whereupon there was a shriek, a rush and a slamming of doors, and my friend was left alone to meditate at leisure upon the charms of the twilight hour.

Leslie Smith, son of Frederick Smith of Lancaster, was drowned in Baker Pond. He was running on a jam of logs, and fell in. It was supposed he went under a log, as the body did not rise, and was not re, covered until too late to restore life.

What kind of Horses Should be Raised?

A correspondent of the New England Farmer hits a hard blow at Agricultural Society practices when he tells their managers, substantially, that their practices teach that trotting horses are emphatically the best kind of horses that the farmer can raise, so far as remuneration may be concerned; and if a good draught horse is exhibited at their shows they pay no heed to it, and the owners of such animals feel almost ashamed to bring them forward. But the writer says that, in the markets, as business takes precedence of pleasure, so the work horse is preferred to the pure roadster or fancy animal. There is a steady demand for draught horses, and their price does not fluctuate as with roadsters. A sound, good worker brings a good price as soon as he is old enough to work, and in his decline he maintains his price better than a light trotter. The call for greater weight in most classes of roadsters is increasing. Some car and omnibus companies have added 100 to 200 pounds to their standard. The 900 and 950 lb. horse, it is freely admitted will travel more miles in a month for a year under certain conditions, than a heavier animal, but the latter have a decided advantage in starting their loads; and the continded starting of the cars, omnibuses and loaded wagons is the hardest part of a city horse's work. So particular are city buyers on this point, that about the first question the seller hears is, what weight is your horse? A short stay in the market will convince any one that New England horses are falling below the standard in weight for city purposes.

Looking still further into the market, we find the trotters whose price ranges among the thousands are few and far between; that before fancy rates are obtained fast colts must be proved, and a reputation established. This is usually done by a trainer, and this trainer, or intermediate man, calculates to get a large profit. Pedigree alone does not sell a horse; it may help sell a colt, but the mature horse must stand upon his own merits. For very few of the fast stock come up to expectations, and not unfrequently can they be bought at seven and eight years old for less than when they were colts. The risk with working horses is not so great, if the prices are less tempting. Plain farmers can train them for market and realize nearly their full value, and at the same time they can make the period of training more remunerative. Let twenty farmers raise fast stock, and twenty, with equal advantages, working stock, and the latter will come off with more dollars and greater satisfaction. But in aiming to produce working stock, something besides mere strength is required to command quick sales at prices tempting to raisers. The standard for a work horse has advanced essentially within a few years. There are plenty who are willing to pay for what pleases the eye, even in a team horse; hence, color, symmetry, style of action, disposition &c., as well as size and strength, are to be taken in consideration, and the profits of raising will depend largely upon the ability to meet the full requirements of the market, or to produce first class animals.

Pisciculture.

An extensive inlet at Peconic, L. I., known as Goldsmith's Inlet, has been stocked with 1,000 fish of choice varieties. The inlet receives its supply of water from the Sound, and averages from three to six feet deep. The importance of the fishing interest on the south side of the island may be judged by a statement of the business of Patchogue alone. There are about 350 men engaged in gathering oysters in Patchogue Bay. Each of these men earns during the oyster season about $600—amounting to over $200,000 for oysters taken from the natural beds alone. Besides, there are the planted beds, belonging to private owners, to whom the town has leased from 600 to 800 acres for planting, and this interest is estimated to be worth at least $150,000 a year. From fish and clams is realized at least $100,000, making an aggregate of nearly half a million a year from this interest alone in a single village. This sum may be multiplied by every sea-shore village on the south side.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS.

The Testimony of Travelers.

All travelers who have tested the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as an acclimating preparation and as a means of avoiding the painful and dangerous disorders of the bowels and the liver, which occrue from a change of water or unwholesome vapors, refer to it with enthusiasm as an unequalled preventive medicine. Whenever the atmospheric conditions are unfavorable to health and the water impure, this powerful tonic is indispensable alike to the settler and the transient sojourner. There was a time when raw brandy or whiskey was almost universally used to qualify the waters of the western rivers, and the wells, &c., of the low-lying districts of the south. Now, the liquors of commerce have been generally discarded by travelers and residents in these regions, and Hostetter's Bitters substituted in their stead. At this season when the sun is near the zenith and the heat oppressive, two or three doses of the Bitters will have a salutary effect on the appetite, the digestion and the spirits.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, PERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. It taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 1u6

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &C.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

"NEW AMERICAN,"

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am soring up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

City Council.

On Thursday evening, the Board of Mayor and Aldermen appointed a committee consisting of the Mayor and Alderman Davis, to communicate to the Association in New York the action of the Board, together with thanks for their gift of staff and flag on Manhattan Square.

Voted, That the sidewalk on Pleasant Street, front of Exchange Building, be relaid when the owner is willing to pay one-half the expense.

The committee to whom was referred the subject of moving buoys in the river reported that it was not necessary to prosecute the proposed protest, the arrangements proposed being not more dangerous than the present. The report was accepted.

Charles A. Norton, M. D., was appointed a member of the Board of Health.

Complaint of pens for swine kept by George Stott and Michael Leary was received, and the usual notice was ordered.

The subject of repaving Market Street was referred to the Mayor and Alderman Wilson to report.

Petition of William F. Parrott and others relative to the name of Haymarket Square, was received. Voted, That the petitioners have a hearing next Thursday evening.

Protest of A. J. Penhallow against change of the name of Haymarket Square was received.

Voted, that he be notified of time and place of hearing.

The special committee to whom was referred the subject of printing the City Ordinances, reported that they have employed the City Clerk to attend to the same, and would also recommend that when the work is completed a sufficient number of said Charter and Ordinances as revised be printed. The report was accepted and laid on the table.

A Bill entitled "An ordinance relating to Port Wardens" was read a first time and referred to committee on bills on second reading.

Aldermen Hayes and Davis were appointed a committee to confer with Mr. Hartshorn relative to the public use of the pump on Sagamore Road.

The committee on streets were empowered to introduce the Aqueduct water into the city stable.

The Piscataqua Monument.

["Piscataway" in Boston Adverliser.]

No one interested in the history of New Hampshire can read the account of the meeting at Portsmouth on Monday evening last without real pleasure and satisfaction. The movement betokens an awakening interest in the early history of the Piscataqua settlement, and an appreciation of the great historical event which renders that region forever memorable. When wandering over this historic ground in bygone years, without finding a single memorial or trace of that early settlement excepting always the ancient burial-ground, and otherwise marked by many sunken, moss-grown and rudely-sculptured stones, it has occurred to me that the locality ought to be permanently marked by some conspicuous monument. I had even thought of appealing to the public in this behalf; but my experience with other historical matters dissuaded me from the undertaking.

"Where heaves the turf in many a mouldering heap,"

The design of erecting an appropriate monument on the site of this first English settlement within the limits of New Hampshire is now happily made public both in time and space. The two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the great event can hardly be more fitly commemorated than by placing a granite monument, cut from native hills and suitably inscribed, on the ever memorable site of David Thomson's residence, near the entrance to Little Harbor. The citizens of Portsmouth and Dover should quite and take the lead in this enterprise, for among other reasons the monument will bear the date of their origin and mark the site of the first landing of the founders of their municipalities; it will remain to the eyes of posterity the visible commemorative act of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the first settlement of these towns.

The movement happily originated among private citizens, and it seems desirable that it should be continued in the hands of citizens. No corporate assistance is needed. A monument association, with the Hon. John Elwyn at the head, can successfully carry out this design. The funds required can be supplied by subscription. Let every one give according to his ability; let not the widow's mite be rejected. Every historical consideration favors the building of the monument this present year of grace. No day is more fitting in the New Hampshire calendar of historical events for the consecration than the 28th day of September, the 194th anniversary of the placing by King Charles II. of a royal provincial government over the people and territory of New Hampshire. No event in the history of the State compares with this in political importance and historical significance. Our historians have estimated the event too lightly. Had the royal decision been otherwise, the territory of New Hampshire would now form a few northern counties in the jurisdiction of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The 28th day of September falls, this year, on Sunday. Monday following is the festival of St. Michael the Archangel, memorable in the ecclesiastical and civil calendar of England, as it was in the calendar of the early New Hampshire colonists.

In view of this admirable initiatory movement, so auspiciously begun on the banks of the Piscataqua, I read again, with renewed interest and pleasure, the stipulations contained in that venerable parchment roll, two and a half centuries old, recently discovered, wherein David Thomson and his associates in Old England plan the settlement of Piscataqua in New England, in the autumn of the year of our Lord, 1622.

Boston capitalists have purchased land in Newcastle, for the erection of a summer hotel.

Steamer Appledore will make a trip to the Shoals, Sunday morning, at 10 o'clock. Tickets at 75 cents each may be purchased of Mr. Richard D. Smart.

Den Stone's Circus and Menagerie will exhibit in this city to-day. The performances are said to be better than Barnum's by our exchanges, and the menagerie is very attractive. Take your little ones.

We learn that there is a prospect of a race between the Lelap Boat Club of this city and a Dover crew. If satisfactory arrangements can be made, the race will take place near Dover Point within a few weeks.

As will be seen by an advertisement elsewhere, Mr. William Plaisted is to commence running beach wagons three times a week from this city to Wallis' Sands, affording excellent opportunities for picnic parties.

The New Orleans Minstrels, a talented company of singers, negro delineators, and instrumental musicians, are soon to appear in our city. They are meeting with good success, and giving entire satisfaction, as there are many excellent performers in the company.

The stone-work for the long bridge of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad, across the Cocheco, is completed, and the bridge is nearly ready to be placed in position. It will be about four hundred feet long. Work on the carriage and foot bridge across the Silver street cut, Dover, began Thursday.

The person who announced the project of opening a school in this city wishes to inform the public, that Miss A. Johnstone, the proposed principal, has been detained in Maryland by an accident, but is daily expected; and immediately after her arrival her address will be published. Great interest having been manifested in the project, a school will be opened early in September. Miss Johnstone has held a similar position in the Cambridge Academy, Dorchester Co., Md., and comes highly recommended.

Singular Phenomenon.

A lady in Paducah was recently awakened from a sound sleep by a noise in her chamber. It was quite dark, but she could see an immense fire-bug performing eccentric gyrations around the bed, accompanied by a noise which sounded altogether different from that made by any insect she had ever seen. She was startled at first, but soon recovering, she watched her opportunity and made a sudden grab at the large brilliant star as it approached. She caught something and held on to it, while at the same moment the familiar voice of her husband was heard muttering indistinct anathemas against bats and other vermin. The lady found that it was her husband's nose she held. He had been out to the lodge, and somehow fallen asleep, during which a mischievous brother had painted his nose with phosphorus, causing it to shine out in the darkness like a jack-o'-lantern.

Loose Terrapin.

Mr. George A. Townsend relates the following incident of the "middle passage" between Washington and Cape May:

A Washington stableman was taking to Cape May, by steamer, twenty or thirty teams and carriages for fashionable livery. He had the misfortune to add a volunteer negro to his company at Baltimore,—a negro possessed of the devil of inquisitiveness, who was constantly examining into everything. Amongst the cargo were several curiously perforated and hinged boxes, containing Baltimore terrapins and snapping turtles, going forward also to the Cape for wistful gourmands there. In the dead of night, when the negro hostlers and stablemen were fast asleep, the inquiring negro released terrapins and turtles, which straightway went on discursive tours of observation, rambling up and down the lobbies and into the cabins, wearing that begoggled and imbecile look of surprise and anxiety, and moving with that fitful backaction, snap-headed, and all-legged locomotion, interspersed with dead stops and head-wagglings, peculiar to terrapins. The horses apprehend that something larger than roaches are under their feet, and stamp and kick hindwise. The sleeping negroes, lying amongst the harness, snoring like donkey-boilers, push away the scaling goblins with their paws, and cry:

"My Lord! What dat feeling over me?"

A little more bewildered, and therefore more imbecile than ever, the terrapins increase their speed forwards and backwards, and climb up on the water-coolers, get in the tin-cup, race up and down the dining-tables and surprise the belated supercargo, who is writing up his invoices late, with the noiseless apparition of a red-eyed, diamond-backed demon coming down the open page of his blotter. Following the terrapin is heard the heavy thud and suction-like croak of an o'er ambitious snapper who had arranged to climb like the terrapin and had tumbled on the floor.

"'Pve got them," said the Purser. "I've got them things. They're after me!"

Pretty soon the whole boat's crowd was up, and, if a man would tread on a rope's end, he would take a spasm. It seemed that the delirium tremens had become an epidemic. Half the turtles and terrapins went overboard at last, and the inquisitive negro dropped to rest, wholly satisfied. Mr. Nailer, who owned the horses referred to, told me that at Cape May he exchanged this negro for a dog, and the dog for a brush-heap, and then burned the brush-heap.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
20 CASH GIFTS	4,000 each	80,000
30 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	30,000
200 CASH GIFTS	200 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
225 CASH GIFTS	100 each	22,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continued to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Navy Department.
BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.
SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live-oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 940 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.
The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.
Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.
The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.
The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.
Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work. oawjl

NEVER
NEGLECT A COUGH. Nothing is more certain to lay the foundation for future evil consequences.
WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS
are a sure cure for all diseases of the Respiratory Organs, Sore Throat, Colds, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, Dryness of the Throat, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Windpipe, or Bronchial Tubes, and all Diseases of the Lungs.
In all cases of sudden cold, however taken, these TABLETS should be promptly and freely used. They equalize the circulation of the blood, mitigate the severity of the attack, and will, in a very short time, restore healthy action to the affected organs.
WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS are put up only in BLUE BOXES. Take no substitute. If they can't be found at your druggists, SEND AT ONCE TO THE AGENT IN NEW YORK, who will forward them by return mail.
DON'T BE DECEIVED BY IMITATIONS.

The Great South American Blood Purifier,
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, Strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in perfect circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative powers.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUCENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

OCEAN'S STORY:
OR Triumphs of Thirty Centuries: By E. B. Goodrich (son of "Peter Parley") and E. Howland. A work of great historical research, written in truly graphic style the wonderful growth of navigation, and history of discovery since the flood; is replete with incidents, thrilling adventures, battles, shipwrecks, mutinies, piracies, &c. Describes how from the first tiny bark, when ocean was the dark realm of terrors, sails now whiten every sea, lightning flashes tidings from shore to shore; and men bring up wonders from deep caves, with many other matters of lively interest, which go to make up one of the most valuable, fascinating and remarkable productions of the age. What is our Daughters' Value?

["Daisy Eyebright," in Country Gentleman.]

There is a tendency of the times to decry women—to talk of their extravagant ideas, of the cost of their dress trimmings, ribbons, chignons and hats—and to say (I quote from a well-known agricultural paper) that—

"Your modern country miss, with her Harper's Bazar and Peterson's Magazine for the law and gospel of her attire, is apt to be a sort of well-dressed mortgage deed upon her father's farm, and to become a sort of ornamental millstone about the neck of the man who marries her.

Now I consider this statement very incorrect, to use the mildest term in our vocabulary.

There may be cases of such extravagant daughters. If there are, the fault lies with the foolish fathers and mothers, who have thought that their children were composed of finer clay than themselves, and have pampered their appetites, and indulged their desires, until they find themselves with lay figures upon their hands—expensive and pretty ornaments for the parlor, perhaps, but of little use elsewhere. There may be a few such isolated cases, but the rank and file of farmers' daughters are not made of any such stuff. They are good, honest, industrious, well-trained girls, each fitted to make an honest, industrious man a good wife, and a judicious mother to his children.

And if they have been brought up properly, they are of as much importance to the success of the farm as their stalwart, manly brothers, and in their department of the kitchen and elsewhere, should receive as much pay as their brothers. We all know that women are poorly paid for their work; when the brother, who works no more hours, and has nothing to boot, receives $25 per month, or at least $20, the sister may esteem herself fortunate if she receives $12.

"What!" exclaims neighbor B., "pay my darter $3 per week in my own house for her work. Sakes alive! I guess I shall!"

Now, friend B., you pay your son $22 per month and his board, for staying with you in your old age, and promise to leave him half the farm at your death. Is not your daughter of just as much worth to your wife as your son is to you? Could she do the daily housework without her assistance? Who does the washing every Monday, and all the ironing, excepting the starched shirts, which mother knows how to finish right? Who works every morning from half-past four or five until noon, cooking breakfast, washing dishes, making beds, sweeping, dusting, baking, roasting, broiling, but the only daughter of your house? When dinner is over the same routine must be again attended to. Before tea time, perhaps she may snatch a little time to "dress up," for the evening. Which of the two does the most work, the son or the daughter?

"Man's work is from sun to sun,
But woman's work is never done."

For if she has a chance to sit down after she has made herself tidy and comfortable, why, there is the mending basket piled high with father's and Joe's stockings and shirts; or there are pantaloons to be patched, and coats to be darned, and the hours of rest are spent very frequently only in change of work.

When Joe's work is done, he changes his pantaloons and goes to the post-office or the village store, or to the place where men most do congregate, and smokes his pipe and hears the news, lolling back in his chair and taking his ease; or perhaps he has a taste for more refined society than can be obtained at such places (and very lucky it is for him if he does possess such taste) and he seeks for it in his Mary's sitting room, or at the village library.

But Annette must sit at home, and read the newspaper to her tired parents, who perhaps nod acquiescence to the information she imparts, or snore in concert. Occasionally she may be allowed to visit a friend in the village, or to attend the winter singing school, or join in a sleigh-ride. Yet none of these pleasures can be enjoyed without the permission of her parents, and that is as it should be.

The point I desire to make is this—that farmers' daughters have equal rights with farmers' sons in the matter of wages; and when one accomplishes as much as a hired girl's wages. I think fathers, as a general rule, are insensible to the worth of their daughters, their pecuniary value. They do not consider of how much service they are in the execution of the daily work of the house, until marriage or death removes them—and then neighbor B. says:—

"Wal! Wal! who'd a' thought it? That girl did do a power of work, and mother and me are jist lost without her."

Now, neighbor B., let me tell you that if you had been willing to pay her from $2.50 to $3 per week for her work and allow her to spend the money as she pleased—to take newspapers and magazines with it—to purchase things that you might have pronounced "totally nonsensical"—her life would have been a great deal happier, and your retrospection might have been pleasanter.

It is no wonder that our Yankee girls flock to the cities—fill the manufacturing establishments—live in small, unhealthy rooms—eat boarding-house fare—and then, some of them, return home to die!

Change the state of affairs, fathers. Offer your daughters fair wages to remain at the homestead, and help the old mother who has borne the heat and burden of the day, and earned a comfortable corner and arm-chair; or teach them trades which will enable them to be self-supporting and independent, without resorting to the workshops and factories. Make them active, healthy, pleasant women. You can only do this by giving them an interest in the affairs of home life by paying them for their work.

Joe likes to earn money—is proud of his savings bank book. So would Annette, could she have the opportunity. But, alas! in many families this is denied her. The father doles out grudgingly the needed money to purchase an outfit suitable for Sunday, and Annette "looks like fury" while doing the day's work, and is not fit to go to the door if any one raps. She may possess a more decent dress for afternoon wear, but this is not always the case.

"What does that gal want of money?" cries neighbor B. when "mother" gently insinuates that a new calico dress is indispensable. "My marm never had so many clothes as you and she have!"

Perhaps not; but his "marm" had a thick, homespun, linsey-woolsey dress, which would outwear three Merrimack print dresses of the present day.

I live in a farming district. I have seen and talked with the daughters of farmers, and know how they feel on this subject, and why they are forced into the factories, if not into worse places. From early childhood the boys are made of the most importance; they are allowed to have lambs of their own, from which quite a flock of sheep may be gained in ten or fifteen years; or they keep hens and raise eggs and chickens, or make money in some way—while girls are not allowed any such pleasant method of obtaining pocket-money.

It is nonsense for a man to quote what his grandmother or mother did, and think that his daughters are to govern their actions by them. Their times were not as ours. It is natural for girls to desire to earn money for themselves; and if not allowed to do so under the family roof, to seek an opportunity abroad to gratify their desires for it.

Antoine Ravel is dead.

The Germans evacuated Nancy and Belfort, France, Thursday.

Caspar Schull killed his wife in New York because she refused to get his supper.

The Great Eastern left Heart's Content, Thursday evening, to repair the cable of 1865.

A Boston boy only fifteen years old has been sent to jail as a common drunkard. And yet they have a prohibitory law.

The city marshal of Fulton, Mo., by taking Kessler and son, mule thieves, into the woods, saved them from being hanged by a lynching party.

The shining milk-pans of Mrs. W. R. Hayes, in West Ferrisburg, Vt., set her house on fire, a few days ago, by reflecting the sun upon the clap-boards.

A majority of the Mississippi democratic state committee have expressed themselves against the policy of nominating a democratic State ticket this Fall.

E. P. Whipple is credited with the observation that he never reads a newspaper in Summer without a suspicion that it is made of fried brains.

Boston banks use postal cards to notify their customers when their notes fall due, and customers are indignant at the publicity thus given to their business affairs.

James Brown, a Georgia veteran of the war of 1812, was reserved for a very ignoble death. Last week he was tripped up by a hog and died in consequence.

We may anticipate an extensive and gratifying migration of divorce lawyers to Salt Lake should the example of Mrs. Brigham Young the seventeenth be extensively followed.

Demands for large damages for injuries are getting common. A small child had its arms cut off by a locomotive in Iowa recently, and its parents have sued the company for $15,000.

The spirits have "busted" an Aurora (Ill.) family. They revealed to the unsuspecting wife the desperate sins of her husband, and she has sued for a divorce and he has sued for her lunacy.

An Indiana man who shot another, and afterward repented, wrote to his victim that if he would only get well he would give him $10,000. The wounded person expressed a willingness to get well at any price.

A Japanese prince, Macao, may be found daily in the State printing office at the Hague, working at the case. He is sent to Europe by the Japanese Government to learn the art of printing.

Beecher and Murray are going for the "Perfect Horse," in a book. It will be a good deal more profitable than going after a perfect horse at the present prices.

An alarming increase of Indian forays into Texas from Mexico is reported, the troops being too few to prevent the raiders from crossing and re-crossing with impunity.

Nicholson and Hallahan, the murderers of Mrs. Lamprey, were hanged at Baltimore. Both confessed on the gallows that their sentence was just.

The Kansas Grange of Patrons of Husbandry has adopted resolutions deprecating horse-racing at agricultural fairs, and demanding the taxation of farm and railroad property on the same basis.

A whole county in Connecticut is excitedly discussing whether it is morally right for one church member to sue another. Perhaps they had better turn it about, and ask whether it is right for a member to be sued.

The members of the fifth Maryland regiment assisted in quelling a disturbance at Cape May on Thursday, occasioned by a rough insulting a lady bather. The affair at one time threatened to become serious.

Violent cholera epidemics are reported at Carmi, Ill., Jonesborough, Tenn., Murfreesborough, Tenn., One death has occurred in the Ohio penitentiary. The disease has almost entirely disappeared from Kentucky, prevailing only at Lagrange.

A dreadful accident occurred on Saturday on the Northwestern Railway, near Wigan, to the Scotch tourist express train from London. Twelve persons were instantly killed, and thirty wounded. Many of the injured persons will die.

Newspapers that ought to be authority plainly hint that Vice-President Wilson has suffered a stroke of paralysis, and that there is no prospect that he will be able to preside over the Senate next Winter. The Boston Globe fears that even if his general health could be won back his voice cannot be restored.

A jealous Philadelphian killed his wife and then committed suicide on Thursday night. A drunken man fatally injured his sick wife at Crawford, N. J., and was arrested. A very dangerous young Spaniard was arrested at New York Friday, having attempted to murder an old merchant, who alleges that the young man committed a murder in Jamaica, W. I., and escaped from punishment through family influence.

Henry T. Bray got the prize as the handsomest baby in the San Francisco baby show. The other prizes for babies were awarded the handsomest twins, the one having the heaviest head of air, the one with the smallest feet and hands, the fattest dark-eyed baby, the fattest blue-eyed baby, the smallest, the best dressed, the sweetest smiling, and the loudest bawler. Then prizes were given to the youngest mother, the oldest mother, and the handsomest mother.

It is positively asserted that the fortune of the Astors of New York has swollen to two hundred millions of dollars, and yet we hear it stated that no family in that great city has done less with their money to help others and improve the metropolis. The whole property is left in trust for the benefit of the heirs of old John Jacob. After the expiration of the trusteeship, which will occur at the end of the third generation—that is, after all the grandchildren have passed away—the estate is to be divided among all the descendants.

A freight train on the Hudson River Railroad, in attempting to cross to a third track, between Tarrytown and Irvington, at ten o'clock, Friday morning, mounted the rail and ran off the track. Just then the Saratoga train came along, when the engine of the freight train struck the baggage car and disabled or wrecked every car in the train. The brakeman on the freight train was fatally, and several passengers were seriously, and others slightly injured. Vasburgh, the baggage man on the Saratoga train, was badly hurt, also Mr. Warren and wife of New York. They will recover. The brakeman on the freight train will die.

State News.

"A corpse," discovered by some Keene boys, made its way to a more secluded position while the police and coroner were en route to view it.

The folks in the Nashua Gazette office have slain a bat a foot in spread.

Capt. Freeman Hutchinson, residing in Milford, committed suicide by hanging, Friday morning. He was a well-to-do farmer, sixty-five years of age, and depression of spirits from sickness, inducing temporary insanity, was probably the cause.

The Great Falls Journal states that Hon. John W. Sanborn has not been appointed Superintendent of the Conway division of the Eastern Railroad. Jere. Prescott, Esq., the able Superintendent of the Eastern, fills that position.

About British Constitutions.

The British Constitution, meaning thereby the body of laws and customs in force in the kingdom of Great Britain, has not only demonstrated its vitality and strength through almost every phase of national life, but is to-day the most magnificent evidence existing of the instinctive aptitude of Englishmen for self-government. The other British constitution, however, meaning thereby the physical power of endurance belonging to each individual Englishman, appears to be, by way of contrast, exceedingly delicate and fragile. The English weather, which those who carefully watch the cable telegrams know, is always either favorable or unfavorable to the growing crops, has recently risen in temperature to the height of eighty-five degrees Fahrenheit and the ordinary Englishman faints in consequence. Whether this is due to the fact that he adheres with painful devotions to his flannels and his great coat—that quality of mind which tends to the maintenance of the Constitution of his country, thus tending to the destruction of his own—or whether it is due to his unalterable loyalty to roast beef and beer, we do not pretend to say. But it is apparent, whatever the particular method may be, that in some way an Englishman is unable to fit himself to a changed condition of the temperature, since a heat of eighty-five degrees is by no means oppressive, and with proper precautions in respect to clothing, eating, and temper of mind, is not especially uncomfortable.

Hence the wisdom and benevolence of Providence in making it possible to send such unnerving accounts of English weather become manifest. The changes of temperature which occur in Washington not only every month, but sometimes in a single day, if a trustworthy inference can be drawn from the present instance, would certainly decimate the British islands, and might, perhaps, depopulate them.

A Domestic Tragedy and Its Moral.

[Danbury News.]

When a woman puts three mackerel to soak over night in a dish-pan whose sides are eight inches high, and leaves the pan on a stairway, she has accomplished her mission and should go hence. This was what a Division street woman did, Friday night. Filled the pan at the pump, and then left it standing on the steps to the stoop, while she went into the next house to see how many buttons would be required to go down the front of a redingote. And a mighty important affair that was, to be sure. And there was her husband tearing through the house in search of a handkerchief, and not finding it, of course. And then he rushed out into the yard, wondering where on earth that woman could be, and started down the steps without seeing the pan, or even dreaming that any one could be so idiotic as to leave it there. Of course he stepped on it; or at least that is the supposition, as the neighbors who were brought out by the crash followed, saw a horrified man, and a high dish-pan, and three very demoralized mackerel shooting across the garden, and smashing down the shrubbery. And he was a nice sight, was that unhappy man when they got him on his feet. There wasn't a dry thread on him, and his hair was full of bits of mackerel, and one of his shoulders was out of joint, and his coat was split the whole length of the back, and he appeared to be out of his head. He was carried in the house by some of the men, and laid on a bed, while others went after the doctor, and sixteen women assembled in the front room, and talked in whispers about the inscrutable ways of Providence, and what a warning this was to people who never looked where they were going.

To Make Boys Good Farmers.

The American Agriculturist says:—Induce them to take an interest in the farm, in the implements, in the stocks; tell them all your plans, your successes and failures; give them a history of your life and what you did, and how you lived when a boy; but do not harp much on the degenerate character of young men of the present age; praise them when you can, and encourage them to do still better. Let them dress up in the evening instead of sitting down in, their dirty clothes in a dirty room. Provide plenty of light. Thanks to kerosene, our country homes can be as brilliantly lighted as the gas-lit residences in the city. Encourage the neighbors to drop in evenings. Talk agriculture rather than politics; speak of the importance of large crops, of good stock, of liberal feeding, and of the advantage of making animals comfortable, rather than of hard times, low prices and high wages. Above all, encourage the boys to read good agricultural books. Papers are well enough, but an intelligent boy wants something more. Get him some good agricultural book to study. Read it with him, and give him the benefit of your experience and criticism. When he has mastered this give him another. In our case we owe our love for farming principally to the fact that our father told us everything he was doing on the farm, answering all the questions, and encouraging rather than refusing our childlike desire of helping him to plough, to chop, to let off water and fire the brush heap.

Notice to Mariners.

The Managers of The Daily Graphic would respectfully call the attention of navigators and all having command of vessels which may leave American ports during the coming month, to the fact that it is intended that the transatlantic balloon expedition of Professor Wise and Mr. W. H. Donaldson shall leave the city of New York, for Europe, on some day late in August or early in September, which will hereafter be definitely announced.

The balloon will carry two life-boats, and every part of the apparatus that is capable of being detached will be legibly inscribed with the words, "The Daily Graphic." Mariners are requested, in case any articles so marked are picked up by them, to ascertain the locality where found, that all necessary particulars may be published.

During the progress of the balloon, the aeronauts will occasionally throw over in the night-time torpedoes, which will explode on striking the water, for the purpose of marking the direction they are traversing. Note of these should also be made. In case the balloon gives out before it reaches land, the passengers will have recourse to the boats, in which emergency, it is hoped, they may be seen and rescued by any vessel passing near.

The wide dissemination of the above notice will insure a watchfulness on the part of navigators that may result in saving human lives, and it is hoped that newspapers generally will give it prominent insertion in their columns.

A Leap for Liberty.

A Pennsylvania deputy sheriff, who had a prisoner in his charge in a railroad car, recently, left him for a moment, and as soon as his back was turned the prisoner deliberately jumped out, feet foremost, through the open window of the car. He alighted in a soft morass, and was not hurt, for he immediately picked himself up and broke for the woods at a gait quite rapid. The officer noticed his sudden exit, and without a moment's hesitation jumped after him. He brought up in the same morass, but his efforts to recapture the fugitive were somewhat impeded by the fact that he pitched headlong into the mud and stuck there. He so struck that his arms were imbedded nearly up to the shoulders in the tenacious mire, and it was therefore an impossibility for him to bring his pistol into requisition. The prisoner took advantage of this singular combination of circumstances in his favor by making a fresh spurt, and soon disappeared in the distance. The train was stopped, and the deputy sheriff was fished out of the mud, but he declined to enter upon further pursuit of the prisoner, and continued on his homeward route, the muddiest and maddest man lately seen in the State.

Public Schools in Germany.

One of the very first questions taken up in Germany after the recent war was that of improving the public schools, and that is now being done in a great many ways. The number and the pay of the teachers have been increased; the attendance of pupils is made compulsory; the training of the teachers is carefully looked after; the way in which money is to be raised and be expended for school purposes—all this is prescribed by the highest authority, and their orders are enforced by a system of thorough and minute inspection, which is made by the State alone. The public schools in Germany are even yet as plentiful as our own in proportion to the population, but it is doubtful if ours are as well arranged, as thorough in their instruction and as useful, for we have not yet succeeded in uniting our public schools and our colleges into one great system of education, controlled by the Government, and gradually raising the standard of instruction, so that the colleges can be recruited from the schools, and the schools made great reservoirs, whence boys made ready for business, or for trades, or for professions can be taken, already prepared for their next step, either into active hard work or for further study and training. When we come in 1876 to write our own school history we may be glad if we can make a favorable comparison with that furnished by the school history of Germany.

The Texas Cattle Fever.

Considerable excitement exists in the northwestern part of Missouri in regard to the Texas cattle fever. The Hannibal Courier says: "Some time in April last Frank Taylor and his partner shipped into Daviess county, by the Hannibal and St. Joe Railroad, unloading them at Kidder, 265 Texas cattle. The cattle were grazed mostly in Colfax township, Daviess county, and have been since all, or nearly all, sold and re-shipped. About a week since, in the trail of their range, the Texas fever broke out among the native cattle, and up to this time some 300 have died. The disease acts rapidly. The animals seized with it droop and die in from two to six days. Milch cows at once go dry. One farmer lost fifty-nine head out of seventy. Citizens have had to turn out and dig trenches to bury the dead animals to prevent the spread of the disease and the eugendering of a pestilence. The region in which the cattle pest is prevalent is one of the best stock districts in the northwest. The loss will probably be large. The excitement is great, and the feelings of the people are represented to be against the summer importation of Texas cattle. Suits have been commenced against Taylor, who, becoming alarmed, attempted to fly the country, but was arrested and brought back. It is also said that some six or eight suits have been commenced against the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad Company."

A Mother-in-Law in a Balloon.

[Cor. Daily Graphic.]

I see by the Scientific American that you have a few seats in the Daily Graphic balloon to dispose of, and fearing that my telegram and pony-express despatch may not reach you in time, I write in great haste to request you to reserve a seat for my mother-in-law. It a choice of seats is left, I should prefer to have her seat as near the edge as possible. The cost I am not particular about, but if you knew her special value for such an expedition you would give her a free pass. What I mean by her value is that, in the event of an exhaustion of gas, the Professor would only have to call her attention to the fact that the balloon was at fault, when she would give it such "a blowing up" as would astonish old Boreas himself. If you will allow me to adjust the ropes on her side of the car, I will pay double fare.

P. S.—If the seat next to her should be occupied by a member of Congress, or any other approachable person, please let me know.

N. B.—The old lady is worth $100,000, all of which I should touch if anything should happen to her, and I would cheerfully divide, &c., &c.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

CLAVERACK, Columbia, Co., N. Y.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.—Dear Sir:—I am sixty years of age, and have been afflicted with Salt Rheum in its worst form for a great many years, until, accidentally, I saw one of your books, which described my case exactly. I bought your Golden Medical Discovery and took two bottles and a half, and was entirely cured. From my shoulders to my hands I was entirely covered with eruptions, also on face and body. I was likewise afflicted with Rheumatism, so that I walked with great difficulty, and that is entirely cured. May God spare you a long life to remain a blessing to mankind. With untold gratitude, MRS. A. W. WILLIAMS.

The Testimony of Travelers.

All travelers who have tested the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as an acclimating preparation and as a means of avoiding the painful and dangerous disorders of the bowels and the liver, which accrue from a change of water or unwholesome vapors, refer to it with enthusiasm as an unequalled preventive medicine. Whenever the atmospheric conditions are unfavorable to health and the water impure, this powerful tonic is indispensable alike to the settler and the transient sojourner. There was a time when raw brandy or whiskey was almost universally used to qualify the waters of the western rivers, and the wells, &c., of the low-lying districts of the south. Now, the liquors of commerce have been generally discarded by travelers and residents in those regions, and Hostetter's Bitters substituted in their stead. At this season when the sun is near the zenith and the heat oppressive, two or three doses of the Bitters will have a salutary effect on the appetite, the digestion and the spirits.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

BARNABEE & WINCH,

For the sale of the justly celebrated

WEBER PIANOS.

Messrs. Barnabee & Winch will gladly welcome their friends and the public at the warerooms 294 Washington Street, Boston, over Williams & Everett, entrance 3 Bedford Street, where they will make it their pleasant duty to exhibit the superior merits of these magnificent instruments. Prices as low as consistent with thorough workmanship.

THE WEBER UPRIGHT PIANO HAS NO RIVAL.

WHITEFIELD'S NEW VIEWS OF PORTSMOUTH.

THESE views have been taken within the last six weeks, are highly finished in India ink, and show Portsmouth as she is in 1873. One view is taken from the North Pond and the other from the South.

Every son of Portsmouth should carry back with him copies of these beautiful pictures, which can be obtained at Foster's bookstore and Burleigh's picture store on Congress street, also at Montgomery's, 23 Market Street.

Only a limited number have been issued.

They are of two different sizes.

Should the large copies be selected, they will be sent, carefully packed, to any part of the United States free of expense.

Local Matters.

S. P. C. A.

Mr. Charles Farwell, son of the owner of the stage line between Portsmouth and York, was brought before Judge Page on Saturday, charged with cruelty to a horse. The complaint was made by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and Mr. Edward H. Balch testified that although Mr. Farwell had put up his horses at the Balch stable for two years, he had not seen the harnesses off the horses during that time. Mayor Marvin and Drs. Norton and May testified that the horse was the poorest they ever saw and had sores on his breast and hip. Mr. Balch testified that he was not fit for service. Judge Page ordered Mr. Farwell to find bonds in the sum of $300 to appear at the S. J. Court, which he did. The case was brought as a warning to all owners of dumb animals who do not take the best of care of them.

Laconics.

More picnics this week.

Now, ye cruel horse-men, beware!

The churches were generally well attended yesterday.

Foreman D. B. Newell, of S. F. E. Co. Kearsarge, No. 2, of Concord, was in town on Saturday.

A young daughter of Mr. John Varrell, living at Little Harbor, on the Davis farm, was severely cut in the leg on Friday by a scythe in the hands of her brother. It is feared the bone is injured.

While four men were raising the frame of a barn for Mr. Henry Colson, on Pray street, Saturday afternoon, it gave way, and they fell to the ground, a distance of twenty feet. One man was injured internally, and was carried home.

Yesterday morning opened bright and warm, and the livery-stables were hard pushed to supply all the teams that were called for. In the afternoon a shower came up—or rather it came down—tempering the atmosphere pleasantly.

There was a heavy run on the juvenile savings banks, Saturday, to raise the wherewithal to go to the circus. Some of these institutions are in a state of hopeless collapse; others will weather the storm if the old nail market continues active.

Den. Stone's Circus and Menagerie came Saturday, and brought a crowd into the city from the adjoining towns. The street show was a poor one, though extensive in number of teams and painted Indians! At the tent, the monkey-show was good, a two days' old infant monkey being a great attraction.

On next Sunday the pulpit of the Universalist church will be occupied by Mrs. A. J. Patterson, wife of the former pastor of that church. Mrs. Patterson is a well-known contributor to the literature of the Universalist faith, and her appearance in the pulpit here will doubtless bring out a full tendance of old friends and acquaintances.

Saturday evening was very foggy in the harbor, and the steamer Appledore, on her trip to the Shoals, got stuck in the mud, and lay there all night. The Major pulled her off in the morning. All the other steamers hereabouts have been ashore at one time or another, but this is the first time Capt. Baker has had an accident of this kind.

The agent of the Miller platform is now superintending the application of the platform to the cars on the Maine Central Railroad. This will involve an expenditure to the road of nearly $4000, and is brought about at the suggestion of the general manager of the Eastern, Mr. Hatch, who is determined that the equipment of the road shall be first class. All the cars will be equipped at the shops in Augusta.

A gang of workmen in the department of construction and repairs at the navy yard are busily engaged every day in constructing piles of rotten timber from the bulk of the Nantasket. The wood of which she was built is so greatly decayed in many places that it is a marvel she did not fall to pieces long ago, from her own weight and weakness, as she probably would have done but for the thorough manner in which she was strapped together with iron bars. The iron is not rusted entirely out, and the copper bolts are quite sound,—about all there is sound in the vessel. She was built during the war, and (like all the other vessels constructed at the time) of coarse green timber. It is a good job that she has rotted herself out of the navy, for she must have been a "fearful brute in a sea-way," even in the days of her youth and strength.

The Oceanic.

[Boston Advertiser, 2d.]

The Isles of Shoals were inspected on Thursday by a party of journalists, under the escort of the proprietor and manager of the new Oceanic Hotel and Mr. George F. Field, the efficient passenger agent of the Eastern Railroad. Leaving Boston at 8:30 A. M., the party arrived in Portsmouth at 10:35, on time, and the steam yacht Major, Captain Franklin, landed them at Star Island at noon. Dinner was served in a style that attested the thorough experience of Mr. Frank W. Hilton, the manager. The hotel can easily accommodate four hundred persons, and every detail for the promotion of the comfort and convenience of guests has been carefully attended to. Excursions were made to Smutty Nose, the scene of the Wagner murder, and to the other isles, and some time was spent in fishing until evening, when the guests of the house, some two hundred strong, reenforced by visitors from Appledore, joined in a hop to the music of the fine orchestra attached to the establishment for the season. The Oceanic occupies one of the finest off-shore sites to be found in the eastern waters; and this hotel is likely to become, before the season is over, one of the best and most favorably known American summer resorts.

A Long Computation.

A New Orleans school has been the scene of a very rare, if not wholly unexampled, performance in arithmetic. The problem was to multiply 9 by 9, and 81 by 81, and so on, using each succeeding product as its own multiplier, until the operation should be performed nine times. How stupendous and discouraging the work becomes after a few steps are taken in the process, any one will find who makes the trial. For several years a handsome premium had been offered the patron of the school for the pupil who should first succeed in accomplishing this feat. At last the task was completed, and the prize, a splendid silk dress, won, after patient labor of three months. The work comprises 263 numeral compounds and 90,000 figures, and the whole covers four or five square yards of paper. It is deserving of remark, in this connection, that boys have made less progress, and shown less perseverance in working at this problem than girls.

Opium License in the Sandwich Islands.

[Honolulu Gazette.]

The sale of opium license on Saturday last drew a crowd to the auction room of Mr. Bartow. After disposing of some leases of real estate, one opium license was put up, starting at $2,000, and rapidly advanced to $12,000, at which it was knocked down to Loongok, the same party who had it last year. The second license was then offered, which started at $5,000, and advanced to $16,000, at which figure it was knocked down to Abswan, making $28,000 to be paid for the privilege of drugging the people of Honolulu for one year. It is understood that both licenses were purchased by a Ring, composed of a number of Chinese, who were determined to control the sale of opium. It shows what the profits must be in this trade.

—A wise man in the East, that is in Springfield, Mass., says that if you wish to determine whether your watch keeps correct time or not you should select any given star from the corner of a window-sash, or through any small hole, and note the precise instant at which the star disappears behind a chimney, or other stationary object within a short distance. If from the same stand-point the same star disappears earlier by three minutes and fifty-six seconds the next night, and by seven minutes and fifty-two seconds the third night, the watch is right to the half of a second.

REMOVAL.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a GOOD stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

"NEW AMERICAN,"

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am sorting up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND TOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

Eli Perkins Discovers a Flirting Dodge.

To-day, there was a very sweet young lady from Brooklyn sitting on the Congress Hall balcony. She always has lots of admirers—a natural thing enough when you know that the report had gotten around that she is an heiress. She is a very shrewd young lady. Instead of entertaining a galaxy of fellows all at once, she takes them one at a time. Then, if one wants to talk business, he can always have an opportunity. A Knickerbocker Club fellow got hold of her, yesterday. He must have "buzzed" her for an hour steady—at least until a young Chicago fellow thought he never would go. He despaired of getting a word in edgeways. If he had known the Knickerbocker Club fellow, he would have been tempted to have joined in the conversation, and run him out. The young lady seemed to like the fellow and was bound to let him have his way clear to the end. This made it all the worse for the Chicago fellow.

Well, how did the Chicago fellow manage it?

Why, he simply walked around behind the New York fellow, and remarked to a friend, just loud enough for the enraptured lover to hear it—

"Why, John, that fellow wouldn't sit there talking so sweet, if he knew what a fearful rent there was in the back of his coat, would he?"

The New York fellow overheard the remark. His look of interest cooled in a moment, as he worked his back around towards the wall, as if he were trying to conceal something. He imagined ten thousand people were looking at him. He didn't lean forward and look sweetly into the young lady's eyes any more. He put his hand convulsively around towards his back, shem-ed a few times in a business-like way, looked red in the face, and then said he expected a friend was looking after him. Then he excused himself abruptly, and shied off towards the elevator with his face to the young lady. He didn't walk straight, but worked himself along sideways, keeping his back towards the wall, and then disappeared up the elevator, just as the young fellow from Chicago sat down by the young lady and commenced his version of the oft-repeated tale of love and hope.

Are such things right?

— The New York Star undertakes to show why women don't succeed in the various employments they undertake. One reason is, it says, that they are insolent to customers of their own sex. It takes the occasion to indulge in a fling at female physicians, and says: "It remunerative feminine occupations were secured them, surely but few girls would plunge—for instance—into the study of anatomy side by side with young men. If pursued to any scientific extent all such studies are clearly calculated to unsex them. The attention of medical lady aspirants is directed to the fact that most men instinctively dislike female doctors, and that very few women ever consent to have recourse to them. And of female clerks, also, that unless they change their manner, and cultivate a better, they will in time lose their situations as well."

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets issued is less than one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		25,000

150 CASH GIFTS	300 each,	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each,	50,000
322 CASH GIFTS	100 each,	32,200
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each,	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts will be paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22½ Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The undersigned, Managers of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, deem it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who have to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when recorded to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistars Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

Navy Department.

BUREAU OF CONSTRUCTION AND REPAIR, WASHINGTON, June 21, 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Bureau until 12 o'clock noon, August 7, 1873, for the construction, including all the materials except the live oak timber, of the hull of a sloop-of-war of about 660 tons measurement, complete for sea service. Plans and specifications in detail for the hull, showing the work to be done, may be seen and examined at this Bureau, and at the Commandant's Office at the Navy Yards at Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Charlestown and Kittery, on and after the 6th of July next.

The hull must be completed in all respects according to the contract and specifications; the materials must be of the best quality, and the work must be done in the best manner, and the vessel be delivered at such Navy Yard on the Atlantic coast as the Department may direct in eight months from the date and signing of the contract.

Payments will be made as the work progresses, in proportionate amounts, reserving the usual percentage until the final completion and acceptance of the vessel.

The bids must be accompanied with the guarantee required by law, that if the contract is awarded, it will be promptly executed, and the names of the parties who are to become the sureties to the amount of the face of the contract will also be stated.

The Department reserves the right to accept or reject any or all bids which, in its opinion, are not to the public interest.

Bids will only be accepted from parties who are known shipbuilders, and to have the necessary facilities for doing the work.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS

are a sure cure for all diseases of the Respiratory Organs, Sore Throat, Colds, Coughs, Diphtheria, Asthma, Dryness of the Throat, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Windpipe, or Bronchial Tubes, and all Diseases of the Lungs.

In all cases of sudden cold, however taken, these TABLETS should be promptly and freely used. They equalize the circulation of the blood, mitigate the severity of the attack, and will, in a very short time, restore healthy action to the affected organs.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS are put up only in BLUE BOXES. Take no substitutes. If they can't be found at your druggist, SEND AT ONCE TO THE AGENT IN NEW YORK, who will forward them by return mail.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to Bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties. It will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known to the whole range of medicinal plants.

Daily Chronicle.

Suit in Equity.

To the Supreme Judicial Court:

Patrick Hennessey, John E. Hennessey, James Mahoney, Michael McCarthy, Michael Cunningham, Daniel Sullivan, Michael Walsh, Owen Hare, Cornelius Casey, David Walsh, Jeremiah Hennessey, all of Portsmouth, in said county, complain against Thomas Canon Walsh, of said Portsmouth, Catholic priest, and David Wm. Bacon, of Portland, Maine, Bishop, and Charles McCallion, Priest, whose residence is unknown, and say:

That about the year A. D. 1850, it was proposed by the people of the Catholic persuasion, in said Portsmouth and vicinity, to purchase a piece of land and erect a church and parsonage thereon, for the purpose of having a place of public worship for all the Catholic residents in Portsmouth and vicinity, and for all persons desiring to attend services in the Catholic form to attend the public worship therein to be had according to the Catholic religion and for the conversion of the people of that faith. That for that purpose it became necessary for those who were believers in that faith to subscribe such sums of money as they were able, to be applied to the purchase of a lot of land, and for the erection of a house of worship and a parsonage house, &c., to be held in trust for that purpose forever; and in order to carry out the purposes of said trust it became necessary to have the deed taken in the name of one person, viz: said Rev. Charles McCallion, a Catholic priest, who had charge of the said Portsmouth Catholic church at that time, as priest. That a subscription was started for that purpose, and at sundry times since money has been raised for that purpose of said trust property, to pay for insurance of the said church and parsonage house and to keep the same in repair.
